Union Calls 4 Hour Phone Tieup

PLANS TO QUIT WORK TO CAST STRIKE BALLOT

Walkout Scheduled 2-6 P. M. Friday

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—J. J. Moran, vice president of the independent National Federation of Telephone Workers, announced tonight that members of the union would leave their jobs thruout the country Friday from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m., Chicago time, to "vote on strike action on a nation-wide basis."

Moran said the demonstration and the strike vote were called in protest against a ruling by Charles W. Whittemore, national labor relations board trial examiner, recommending dissolution of a federation affiliate, the Western Electric Employes' association at Kearney, N. J., on the ground it was company dominated.

CIO Loses Election

He said an NLRB election today at the Western Electric company's Point Breeze plant in Baltimore, Md., to determine a bargaining agent for the company had no bearing on the decision to call the work stoppage and take a strike vote.

The election showed 1,967 votes for the employes' association and 1,082 for the CIO United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers union.

"The real issue here is not the result of the Point Breeze election, but the policy of the NLRB granting immunity to a union which joins the AFL or the CIO," Moran said.

200,000 Persons Included

He said 200,000 persons would be affected, including all telephone operators, both long distance and local, and some teletype and broadcast operations. Dial telephones, which operate automatically, would not be affected, he added.

Employes of the Western Electric company who are members of the Western Electric Employes association also will not work during the four hour stoppage period, Moran added.

OIL PACT DELAYED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—The CIO oil workers and 11 companies obtained a 24 hour delay tonight in the deadline for their reply to Labor Secretary Schwellenbach's back-to-work proposal to halt spreading refinery strikes.

Union President O. A. Knight said his group's stand had been decided, but that it was not conveyed to the conference or to the government because of the postponement requested by the companies. Meanwhile, he declined to make it public.

Knight said the operators either were "unready or unwilling to answer" Schwellenbach's proposal.

Nine Companies Ask Delay

The labor secretary said that in postponing decision until 4 p. m. tomorrow he was acting on the request of nine of the 11 companies involved in the conciliation conferences over the union's demand for 30 per cent higher wage rates.

Schwellenbach had suggested that work be resumed immediately by the 36,000 striking CIO oil workers, and that a 15 per cent wage increase be put into effect when operations are cut to a 40 hour week, expected soon in most refineries.

The secretary proposed that an

Patton Ousted as 3d Army's Commander

'Communism Seethes'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Rep. Jonkman [R., Mich.] today cited the removal of Fritz Schaeffer as minister-president of Bavaria as evidence that Europe is "seething with communism." Recently returned from a European tour with a foreign affairs subcommittee, Jonkman told the house that Schaeffer is "anti-Communist." In Europe today, he added, a person can't be anti-Communist and "continue to hold office very long—as even Churchill found out."

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 2 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower announced today he had ousted Gen. Patton as commander of the 3d army and administrator of Bavaria and had placed him in charge of a "paper army," the 15th.

The order, effective Oct. 7, followed complaints that Patton had kept Bavarian Nazis in office, and was made public just four days after the general was called on the carpet to give a personal report to Eisenhower on his denazification actions.

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, who commanded the 5th army in Italy and later headed the 7th army, will succeed Patton as commander of the 3d army and administrator of the eastern military district.

Has Research Job

The 15th army at present consists only of headquarters and special troops engaged in research work on allied relations during the war.

[It was reported in Washington that Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, who has headed the general board and the 15th army, will be named chief of the army's command and general staff school at Leavenworth, Kas. Gerow was reported en route to Washington.]

The official announcement gave no reason for the shift, but disclosed that Eisenhower had notified Patton of the transfer last Saturday, the day after Patton had been summoned to Frankfurt.

Patton was silent tonight on the announcement. A sentry at his lakeside villa at Tegernsee turned away a correspondent with a message from an aide, "You're not admitted."

To Save Civilians

Patton's transfer followed his statements of Sept. 22 when, replying to charges he was keeping Nazis in office, he defended his action as necessary to avoid anarchy.

He told a news conference that it might be necessary to keep some Nazis in office "to insure ourselves that women, children, and old men will not perish from hunger or cold this winter."

He also compared "this Nazi thing" to the "Democratic and Republican fight back home."

"You always find the outs back home making charges against the ins," Patton said.

120,000 Nazis Ousted

Eisenhower ordered a house cleaning in Patton's territory with the result that Fritz Schaeffer was removed as minister president of Bavaria. Several other Patton sanctioned officials also are reported scheduled for removal.

Eisenhower's headquarters also disclosed that 120,000 Nazis had been removed from office in the American zone, an increase of 50,000 over the last totals announced in August.

Truman 'Finish Job' Plea Opens War Fund Drive

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—President Truman opened the 1945 national war fund campaign tonight with an appeal for generous contributions to help war fund agencies "finish the job they were set up to do." The President, in a broadcast from the White House, said the drive for three causes—continued "friendly services" for those still having a job to do in the military forces, for health and welfare services for people at home, and for relief of war stricken persons in liberated areas.

Globester Off Again After Motor Fails

GUAM, Oct. 3 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The Globester developed engine trouble today on the homestretch and was forced to return to Guam after it had sped 315 miles along the road to Kwajalein.

This was only a temporary interruption of the first around the world flight of the army transport command, and passengers were quickly transferred to another plane for the resumed flight.

[The ATC command in San Francisco said the Globester left Guam at 7:45 a. m. Wednesday, Guam time, for Kwajalein after the turnback caused by engine trouble.]

The four engined world traveler developed magneto trouble and the No. 2 engine cut out.

With 1,236 miles still to be flown to Kwajalein, Capt. Marion H. Click of Denver, Col., decided to turn back to Guam.

[The army transport command at Honolulu said the globe girdling plane was scheduled to arrive there at 9 a. m. Wednesday, instead of 11 a. m., as first announced. The plane picks up a day by crossing the international date line.]

It Was a Busy Day

The Globester, scheduled to be in Washington, D. C., by Thursday, had left Guam at 3:15 a. m. and returned at 7:05 a. m.

The delay came after a full day in which the Globester's eight around the world passengers:

1. Ate breakfast in Kunming, China, after flying at 14,500 feet across the Himalayas.

2. Had lunch at Manila and were taken on a tour of the broken and ruined city.

3. Welcomed aboard 22 homeward-bound Americans who had been prisoners of the Japanese, including nine colonels.

4. Had box luncheon 10,000 feet over the Pacific en route from Manila to Guam.

5. Landed at Guam at 1 a. m., [10 a. m. Tuesday, Chicago time] seven hours and four minutes after leaving Manila on the 1,587-mile flight.

Begin Flight in Dark

Dropping down at Kunming after a rolling, pitching flight that drove the Globester to oxygen mask altitudes over the hump, the around the worlders had breakfast at 4:30 a. m.

The jump to Manila was begun in darkness and the Globester was well toward the China coast before dawn broke. The travelers saw little more of China than the windlashed little air transport command mess hall in the 6,000 foot high city of Kunming.

After what was seen of Manila from the air, it was a sober group that disembarked at Nichols field to be greeted by Brig. Gen. E. H. Alexander of Watseka, Ill., commander of the southwest Pacific wing of the ATC.

Heroes Get Seats

Heroes of the death march from Bataan were among the 22 former prisoners of war who were given Globester seats at Manila. Some have not been home since 1940.

The flight of the Globester called for a change of planes at Manila in this first trip of what will become regular globe circling service of the army transport command.

The crew that flew the Globester on the Manila to Guam leg included Capt. William D. Lewis of Moline, Ill., co-pilot.

REPORT BRITISH RUSH RE-ENFORCEMENTS IN PALESTINE CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 2—Fearing Arab and Jewish outbreaks, the British tonight were reported rushing army, navy, and air force reenforcements to Palestine.

The British cruiser Sirius and destroyer Haydon were anchored off Jaffa and Tel Aviv this morning. Meanwhile, boatloads of illegal Jewish immigrants were reported disembarking on the shores of Palestine.

Tewfiq Saleh Husseini, acting chairman of the Palestine Arab party, was quoted tonight as saying that "tranquility of the Arab countries will be imperiled" if Arab demands for permanent suspension of Jewish immigration and declaration of independence for Palestine are not conceded.

FINDS WRITING OF WITNESS AT 'CHRIST'S DEATH'

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Oct. 2 (AP)—A burial urn bearing a Greek inscription believed by Hebrew university archeologists to have been written by an eyewitness to the crucifixion of Christ has been found near the Jerusalem-Bethlehem road, the university announced today.

The announcement termed the inscription the oldest archeological record of Christianity and said that it expressed bitter lamentation at Christ's death. Symbols on the urn, in addition to the inscription, university archeologists said, identified it with the beginning of the Christian era. They said the inscription appeared to have been made by one of Christ's followers.

The university said the urn was discovered in a family burial plot accidentally unearthed by Arab workers.

Sugar Hoard Found in Java; Share Due U.S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Anderson disclosed tonight that 1,600,000 tons of sugar have been discovered in the ports of Java since the Japanese surrendered.

He told reporters that this should greatly shorten the period of rationing in this country. Heretofore, it has been expected that rationing might be necessary thru 1946.

Goes to Allied Pool

Discovery of this sugar was reported by E. C. Zimmerman, commissioner for the Netherlands East Indies. The secretary said the sugar will be added to an allied pool and should start moving to this country within two weeks. It will become available at a period when domestic supplies are at the lowest level of the year.

Anderson said the sugar will be apportioned among claimants to the allied nations' pool by the combined food board, representing the United States, Great Britain, and Canada. He said no allocation had been made, and he could not yet say how much this country would get.

However, the United States portion might run between 700,000 and 800,000 tons if divided on the basis of past allocations.

Bakers to Get It First

Anderson again expressed hope that all food rationing except sugar may be ended by Jan. 1. Sugar rationing may be ended a few months later, limiting governmental distribution controls to refineries and industrial users, he said.

He said bakers, whose quotas have been reduced sharply, probably will be the first to get the benefit of the Javanese supply.

The secretary announced he had been informed also that 35,000 tons of crude rubber had been found in Java. This information, he said, has been turned over to American rubber authorities.

German May Get Nobel Prize for Atom Work

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 2 (AP)—The newspaper Aftonbladet said today that Otto Hahn, German authority on radio-activity and the atom, probably would receive one of this year's Nobel prizes. The newspaper said Hahn was now in England.

Child Benefit Tag Day Nets $85,126; Tops 1944

The Chicago Children's Benefit league tag day Monday in Chicago and suburbs netted $85,126. This was $695 more than was contributed last year, Mrs. Morton Bodfish, publicity chairman, said.

MOLOTOV HOLDS OUT FOR TREATIES DRAWN UP BY ONLY THREE NATIONS

Mitscher, Doolittle Warn V. F. W. We Must Be Ready

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Discounting the value of the united nations security council, Vice Adm. Mitscher and Lt. Gen. Doolittle yesterday pleaded with the Veterans of Foreign Wars to help keep America prepared for war with major powers.

Adm. Mitscher, assistant chief of naval operations in charge of aviation, addressed the V. F. W.'s annual banquet in the Hotel Sherman. Military representatives of 17 other nations, including Russia, attended.

Gen. Doolittle, organizer and leader of the first air raid on Tokyo, spoke before 5,000 veterans in the Stadium. He flew here from New York in one of the three B-29s which recently made a nonstop trip from Tokyo to Chicago.

Challenges Propagandists

Adm. Mitscher cited the slogan of the V. F. W.'s 46th annual encampment, "Win the Peace." He conceded that it sounds fine, but he challenged the propagandists who have been contending that there will be no more war if this nation can succeed in keeping other nations happy.

"Let us not be misled by the fact that our intentions toward others always have been peaceful because that doesn't mean that others are similarly disposed," he said.

"We're talking about peace today—and it is only right and just that we should—but the blunt fact remains that as long as human nature is what it is, there will continue to be people—yes, powerful nations—who will start wars."

Time Short in Next War

For that reason, Adm. Mitscher said, Americans with vision and foresight will prepare now to intercept any attack. Such an attack, "if and when it comes, will fall without the slightest hint of hostile intent," the naval air chief warned. Furthermore, he said, the enemy will be prepared to follow thru his surprise advantage.

"The very existence of this nation, following such an attack, would depend upon whether we could strike back within a few days," he declared.

Adm. Mitscher said the navy plans to train 3,000 aviators each year, plus 2,000 air crewmen. Aircraft carriers should be policing the oceans of the world at all times accompanied by supporting vessels, he said. He called for maximum flexibility in planning, admitting that carriers might not even figure in the next war.

Air Power Parity Urged

Gen. Doolittle joined Mitscher in urging unceasing scientific research to keep this country ahead.

"Air power has a great future and mighty new potentials for preventing or, if necessary, making war," he said. "Make sure that those potentials are realized in the air fleets of our own nation. Make sure that our military establish-

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT DENIES MORAL DEBT TO PAY BACK LOANS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 2 [Special]—Elliott Roosevelt feels he is under no moral obligation to pay back the money he borrowed to finance a Texas radio chain, he told an interviewer today.

The late President's son borrowed $200,000 from John Hartford, chain grocery head, and $50,000 from David Baird, insurance broker. Hartford received $4,000 from Jesse Jones, former secretary of commerce, in settlement and Baird received $500.

"I feel that I am under no moral obligation to pay back the money borrowed because I made both Hartford and Baird a firm offer thru Jesse Jones to turn over all my net assets, including the collateral stock which they held in connection with these loans. They chose not to accept the offer for their own reasons, of which I was not advised," Roosevelt said.

"This in any business man's language concluded a business deal," he said.

COL. M'CORMICK PAYS TRIBUTE TO U.S. WAR LEADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, today declared that, thanks to American victories in this war, "there will never again be a class of groveling snobs who will seek to be better than other Americans by admitting inferiority to foreigners."

This assertion drew a stirring round of applause from members of the Washington Advertising club, who heard Col. McCormick speak on "Washington Over Fifty Years."

World War II. Won by America

The colonel said America won the first world war, but that that fact has not been generally recognized because of the machinations of jealous nations. In the second world war, Col. McCormick said, American units suffered their only serious defeats in the Pacific and in Africa when they were directed by foreign commanders.

All the distinguished admirals and generals of this war are Americans, he said. He asserted that American accomplishments in winning the war in Europe and in the Pacific should forever silence those Americans who put other countries above their own.

Wave of Foreign Influences

He traced the heavy play of foreign influence thru embassies and titles from the era immediately following the Spanish-American war, when victories in the Pacific and in the Caribbean made it clear to Europe that America had arrived as a great nation.

In the address, Col. McCormick paid tribute to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, saying that the great flyer's contributions in aircraft development and in combat have been suppressed by the navy department.

U. S. AND BRAZIL TALK OF CALLING OFF RIO PARLEY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—As an apparent outgrowth of the Argentine problem, this government is discussing with Brazil either cancellation or postponement of the scheduled inter-American conference at Rio de Janeiro.

This was learned reliably tonight in the wake of Capitol hill discussions in which acting State Secretary Acheson and Spruille Braden, recently returned ambassador to Argentina, talked over the situation with leading legislators. The Rio conference was called for Oct. 20 primarily to agree on an inter-American defense treaty.

After Argentina clamped new restrictive measures into effect more than a week ago, it became apparent here that the Rio meeting would be confronted with a decision on the touchy subject of Buenos Aires' militarist regime.

Rejects Byrnes Plea Big Conference Be Called

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 2—The council of five foreign ministers broke up tonight in complete failure. United States Secretary of State Byrnes, in a statement issued in polite diplomatic language, laid the blame for the colossal flop in the European peace negotiations on the doorstep of the soviet union.

To the bitter end soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov stuck to the demand that the peace treaties be drafted only by the soviet union, United States, and Britain, excluding France and China. The only exception was that France could participate on the Italian treaty. The American and British delegates held just as firmly that the French and Chinese should be dealt in at the peace table.

Press Conference Today

Byrnes will hold a press conference at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow and then he and his aides will fly to America. Molotov will hold a press conference at the soviet embassy at 11 a. m.

The quintet of foreign ministers are reporting back to their governments without a single commitment binding on any of them. In the words of Byrnes' statement, the work of the foreign ministers "will be held in abeyance."

"There is good reason to believe," Byrnes added, "that with continued patience and understanding on all sides agreement on essentials can be attained.

"We are determined upon that outcome."

The trend of thinking among diplomatic observers is that there must be a return to the discussions by the three main powers—guided by President Truman, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Attlee—but when there will be another tripartite conference is anybody's guess.

Assails Molotov's Methods

That post-war feeling runs bitter and deep was shown in verbal clashes between British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Molotov. It is reported that at one private meeting Bevin, angered by Russia's stand, said Molotov's methods were "Hitlerian." Molotov is said to have threatened to walk out. But instead the final result was a mutual walkout of all five nations.

Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh issued a statement reiterating the claim that all members of the council, including China, should be represented in any future discussions.

In a last minute desperate attempt to save the conference, Byrnes made the formal proposal that the peace making machinery of the council, once described as the "cornerstone of the world peace structure," be scrapped and in its stead a big peace conference be called. He urged that the world press be admitted to such a conference.

Would Include Many

Among the countries sitting around this peace table, according to Byrnes' suggestion, would be the permanent members of the united nations security council, which would include France and China, European members of the united nations, and non-European members which supplied military aid against the Nazi and Italian Fascist forces.

Molotov and his delegation, however, took the position that they could not make any commitment on such a peace conference without consultation with Moscow. There the matter ended.

There was no provision for a future meeting in Moscow, a rumor believed to have been planted by soviet sources several days ago, nor for a future meeting anywhere.

No Statement of Results

The final collapse of the three weeks' meeting came shortly before 8 p. m. In direct contrast to the conventional final statement of harmony and mutual protestations of loyalty from recent similar allied conferences, the terse announcemen said the "council decided to terminate its present session."

The grim faced members of the five delegations rose for the last time from the blue felt covered table in Lancaster House. There was a polite shaking of hands and a final drink at a bar in a side room. Then they filed out one by one into the murky London night. Byrnes stopped for a moment to chat with an American soldier, Sgt. Webster Cornwell of Indiana, whom he spotted in a crowd at the curb.

It was learned that the scholarly Dr. Wang of China, who presided over the last session, finally made the suggestion that they pack up and go home. On Saturday, when the council threatened to break up, Wang suggested that they try for a day or two more to reach an agreement.

Reds Reject Proposals

The council held sessions until 1 a. m. Monday, and 3 a. m. Tuesday, without gaining an inch. Both Byrnes and British Foreign Minister Bevin made proposals in vain. Molotov stood like a rock.

Tonight Wang looked around at his weary, woebegone colleagues. He said he had sponsored the idea of delay and as his plan had proved futile, they should adjourn. Molotov said they might try again tomorrow to work on the various items of the protocol, or official records of the council's decisions.

This brought up the old question of who would participate—three or five powers. Molotov again said three. That ended it.

The stage for this historic international impasse was set at the Potsdam conference two months ago when President Truman, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Attlee announced the formation of a council of foreign ministers to work out the peace settlements—a new wrinkle in diplomacy.

Were to Draw Up Treaties

The three chiefs of state said the council would draw up, with a view to submission to the united nations, treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland, and would propose settlements of territorial questions. The council also would be empowered to frame a peace settlement for Germany when an acceptable government was established.

Then follows the pertinent part of the Potsdam declaration invoked by Molotov. It reads: "For the discharge of each of these tasks, the council will be composed of the members representing those states which were signatory to the terms of surrender imposed upon the enemy state concerned. For the purpose of the peace settlement for Italy, France shall be regarded as a signatory to the terms of surrender for Italy."

Days of Wasted Work

While this would appear to put Molotov legally in the right on the controversy, Byrnes' statement pointed out that in deciding the way the council would proceed at the Sept. 11 session, the foreign ministers had agreed to invite France and China into all discussions.

It was on Sept. 22 that the soviet delegation took the stand that the council's Sept. 11 decision should be rescinded. This meant elimination of China from the pending discussion of the European peace treaties, and similar disqualification of France except in the case of Italy. Further, it meant throwing into the ash can all discussions on these treaties from Sept. 11 to Sept. 22.

Refusing to accept the soviet union's narrow interpretation of the council's powers, Byrnes pointed out the broader powers contained in the Potsdam declaration.

"The council may adapt its procedure to the particular problem under consideration," stated another section. "In some cases it may hold its own preliminary discussions prior to the participation of other interested states. In other cases the council may convoke a formal conference of the state chiefly interested in seeking a solution of the particular problem."

No Explanation of Motives

There has never been any real explanation of the motives of the soviet intransigeance. Theories range all the way from a desire of Russia to torpedo the conference for strategic political reasons—that is, to hold up things until after the Balkan elections—to the idea that Molotov believed the French and Chinese would vote against him anyway.

Reds Tell Proposal

LONDON Oct. 3 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The Moscow radio said today the Russian delegation to the five power foreign ministers' conference made a last minute effort without avail to keep the conference in session by proposing that the ministers sign a protocol on decisions to which they all agreed and continue discussions on "one or two controversial questions which had remained undecided."

THEATER OFFICE BURGLARIZED

Burglars yesterday stole a typewriter, an adding machine, and a radio from the office of the Metropole theater, 236 W. 31st st., Edward Burnell, the manager, reported to police. He valued the articles at $77.

ment is sound organizationally; that air is on a parity with land and sea.

"Make sure that all of our services have an adequate amount of the most modern equipment and are capable of rapid expansion in case of a national emergency. In a word, see that America is strong and free."

Gen. Doolittle suggested for sobering thought "the possibilities that have been opened for the swift invasion of our land which our enemies were incapable of mounting at the beginning of hostilities this time." All future policy must be based on military developments, he said, and therefore we must have "strong forces always in readiness."

Inertia Called Only Peril

"We have nothing to fear except our own inertia," he said. "We have the weapons in our hands [he had mentioned the atomic bomb and stratospheric rocket] if we will but remember to use them."

Most of the convention time was devoted to veterans' care problems.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, new veterans administrator, told the delegates in the Stadium that he is out to "cut red tape, simplify forms, and make our service easy to get." The press should serve as a watch dog, he said, and managers of veterans' facilities thruout the country are being instructed that "we have no secrets to hide."

Bradley beat the V. F. W. rehabilitation committee to the draw by his own criticism of the veterans' administration. He said he found "top-drawer administrators with too many functions, some of them unrelated; field offices without needed authority, supervision unequal to demands, and crippling shortages of personnel and space."

Cabinet Status Advocated

John L. Sullivan of Phoenix, Ariz., chairman of the rehabilitation committee, reported at a business session later in the day that federal burocrats have lost the human touch and measure work of the veterans' administration in dollars and cents. He urged that the veterans' administration be given cabinet status, and that a single committee of house and senate pass upon all veterans' legislation.

Omar B. Ketchum, V. F. W. legislative representative, recommended that veterans be granted special consideration to "penetrate the wall of seniority protection which has been thrown around millions of jobs." However he said the organization does not demand "super-seniority."

Green Welcomes Delegates

Gov. Green, in welcoming the delegates, said all should realize that whatever is done for the veterans will be done largely by themselves. Illinois has set up a commission which will meet today to begin study of the question of a state bonus, he said.

"Our general assembly," Gov. Green said, "has set up a commission composed of five senators, five representatives, five veterans' representatives appointed by the governor, and the chairman of the state budgetary commission, which this month is beginning a thoro study of how Illinois, within the limits of its resources, may best serve our veterans in every field of activity, including the question of a state bonus.

"This commission, established and operating under a forward looking program in which all personal and partisan considerations have been disregarded, will consult with the veterans themselves and work out a program of maximum service without regard to the schemes of the self-appointed veterans' spokesmen now springing up on every hand."

GEN. DOOLITTLE GETS BIG HAND AT THEATER FOR FANCY FOOTWORK

Gen. Doolittle, who led the historic first air raid on Tokyo, dances a pretty neat step, Miss Virginia Barrett, comedienne of the Olsen and Johnson show, "Laffing Room Only," at the Shubert theater, said last night. And a big audience agreed with her by loud applause.

The general, a friend of Olsen; Mrs. Doolittle, and a party of friends attended the performance. In one number feminine members of the cast dance in the aisles with patrons.

Gen. Doolittle demurred at first when invited to dance, but his wife urged him to go ahead. "The general's a very gay dancer," said Miss Barrett later. Gen. Doolittle was loudly cheered when introduced earlier.

4 CONGRESSMEN REFUSE $2,500 FOR EXPENSES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 [Special]—Four members of the house of representatives — three Republicans and one Democrat — today confirmed that they have declined to accept expense allowances of $2,500 a year granted by house action to each of its members.

The four are Reps. Hoffman [R., Mich.], Rees [R., Kan.], Judd [R., Minn.], and Weiss [D., Pa.]. Hoffman recalled that he voted for the allowance but announced at the time he would refuse any part of it for reasons applying to him only. He filed with the sergeant at arms an order that expense money assigned to him be turned over to the United States treasury.

Rees, Judd, and Weiss voted against the measure, contending that congress should not raise its own salaries while trying to hold down other government expenses. The measure entitles each member of the house to $1,250 for the January to July period upon the filing of vouchers, and to monthly expense checks thereafter.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 2 (AP)—A photograph which the Japanese sought to destroy, believed to be that of the first bomb dropped on Pearl Harbor, arrived in the United States today by army courier plane.

During the initial stages of Japan's occupation, Martin J. Shemanski, photographer's mate, 2d class, of Plymouth, Pa., flew from the aircraft carrier, Shangri-la, to help in setting up a photographic laboratory at the Yokosuka naval base.

In a waste basket he found a piece of a photograph. He recognized it as a section of Pearl Harbor. He hunted other pieces and fitted them together. Shemanski carefully copied the picture with a Japanese camera on Japanese photographic plates. The original was turned over to navy intelligence.

DIRECTORS CALL IN FOOD EXPERT FOR SANITARIUM

Action Spurred by Report of Restaurant Men

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Under fire by a mayor's investigating committee, by the medical profession, by women's clubs, and other civic organizations and by hundreds of patients, nurses, and employes, the directors of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium took the first step to remedy conditions that Chicagoans pay three million dollars a year in taxes to keep right.

With the consent of James B. McCahey, school board president, Frank O. Washam, director of public school lunchrooms, will report to the general superintendent of the sanitarium today with instructions to correct the diets and food so that patients may get "three wholesome and well cooked meals a day."

A request for Washam's services was made by the sanitarium directors after a meeting yesterday, Dr. Frederick Tice, the board president, said.

Free Hand Assured

Harry J. Reynolds, vice president of the board of trustees, said McCahey had agreed to "lend" Washam to the sanitarium. Reynolds said the sanitarium superintendent has been instructed to give Washam a free hand, and make any improvements in the handling, preparation, or service of food which Washam may suggest.

There were reports in several quarters during the day that Dr. Tice, who is 74 and not a member of the American College of Chest Physicians, was preparing to resign, but these were not confirmed.

Mayor Kelly acted independently at the same time. After Marion W. Isbell, head of a committee from the Chicago Restaurant association, appointed at Kelly's own request, had announced the findings of the group, the mayor initiated a second inquiry. He asked Dr. John W. Towey, president of the Mississippi Valley Tuberculosis conference, and head of the Pine Crest sanatorium at Powers, Mich., to appoint "a competent, neutral, and disinterested committee to inquire . . . and personally make a report to me."

Mayor Asks Impartial Inquiry

"I feel it my duty on behalf of the public and patients to explore the complaints thoroly," the mayor wrote Dr. Towey. "Such an inquiry as I have in mind would have to be honest . . . impartial, uninfluenced by petty motivation, untouched of local jealousies or disagreements."

Mayor Kelly added that he will recommend that the Isbell committee continue its work.

The mayor said he had no comment on the fact that Isbell, heading his own restaurant men's committee, said the meals at the sanitarium were "so bad the patients often could not and should not eat them," that the restaurateurs had intercepted decayed meat on its way to the kitchen, that enormous quantities of food were returned to the kitchens every day because the patients found it impossible to eat it.

No Comment on Meat

Neither did the mayor, the board members nor any one connected with the institution say whether that meat had spoiled after it got there or whether it was delivered in that condition.

The restaurant committee, in addition to Isbell, comprises John Ricketts Jr., A. J. Pixley, D. L. Toffenetti, and James P. Harding.

SPEED ON BIGGER AIRPORT URGED BY A. OF C. GROUP

Speedy action in obtaining an adequate airport for Chicago to meet the city's post-war needs was urged in a resolution adopted yesterday by the aviation committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by Frank S. Whiting. The resolution will be presented to the association's board of directors Friday.

"Chicago's requirements will be larger than anticipated," Whiting said, "and it is important that the city provide an adequate and safe airport with all possible speed to handle them. We know there is a capable committee considering the question, and we hope for rapid action. Chicago has the natural advantage of being on the front line of the air. We are not a seaport, but you can fly any place from Chicago. We have every advantage here except a large airport to handle the traffic."

Winter Jam Predicted

Andrew Rebori Jr., former army air forces major who is a member of the advisory board of the state department of aeronautics, voiced prediction that Chicago airport will be unable to handle all the incoming plane traffic under instrument flying conditions this winter.

"The Douglas airport will be needed in its present condition as a stopgap," said Rebori. "Men whose judgment I trust say it would make an excellent air terminal.

"Chicago doesn't realize how much progress has been made in aviation and how close we are to being out of date with our ground facilities. Unless action is taken, planes bound for Chicago may be landing as far away as Urbana, Ill."

Equipping Douglas Simple

Expansion and development of the Douglas airport site near Park Ridge has been advocated by aviators and civic leaders and is under consideration by a special board named by Mayor Kelly. Chicago airport, at 55th st. and Cicero av., will be outgrown in five to eight years, a committee of air lines engineers has reported.

Rebori said it would be comparatively simple to put equipment for instrument landings on the existing Douglas field runways, and thus give Chicago two airports for bad weather traffic.

Rebori, son of one of Chicago's leading architects, has been associated with a construction company since his discharge from the air forces. During the war he was operations officer for a reconnaissance group in the Panama Canal Zone, commanded light planes for Maj. Gen. Wingate in the British Burma campaign, and conducted experimental work at Wright field.

Washington's Experience Cited

"At Washington, D. C., when the weather is bad, many planes must go to Baltimore to land," Rebori said. "The airplane has developed so fast that it has left the ground facilities miles behind."

The aviator said that Chicago, if it becomes the air transport center, will need several airports, in addition to the present field and Douglas.

'TIRED OLD DAD' PENS LOVE TO 3 SONS, THEN DIES

"To my dear boys, Bob, Joe, and Bill: Fondest love. I am sorry not to help you open your boxes, Bill, dear. And Joe, thank you for the message in your last letter. Bill sent me a similar one a while ago, and I loved them. And Bob, I have been too severe and you did things you might not, but it is forgotten. I am proud of your school work, dear. Fondest love, Bob, dear. Fondest love, Joe, dear. Fondest love, Bill, dear. From your tired old dad."

That note, on yellow ruled paper, was found beside the body of Harry N. Wentworth, 61, of 933 Ash st., Waukegan, general superintendent of distribution for the North Shore Gas company, in the kitchen of his home yesterday. His head was in a bag into which had been introduced a rubber tube attached to an open gas outlet.

Two of the sons to whom the note was addressed, William and Joseph, are in the army. Robert is a student at Waukegan Township High school.

The body was found by Clayton E. Baird, 128 N. Martin av., Waukegan, manager of the gas company, who went to the house to find out why Wentworth had not appeared at work. Monday night, Wentworth's automobile struck a parked car on Ridgeland av. in Waukegan, but no one was injured. Police released him with instructions to call at the police station yesterday. Mrs. Wentworth committed suicide by hanging in 1939.

ACT TO RELIEVE OVERCROWDED STATE HOSPITAL

New employes have been added and extra equipment has been ordered at Chicago State hospital [Dunning] in an effort to improve dietary service and relieve overcrowding, Director Cassius Poust of the state department of public welfare reported to Gov. Green in Springfield yesterday.

The governor and Poust visited the institution Sept. 7 and found that the 4,500 patients there were 950 more than the rated capacity and that the man power shortage had reduced the staff of employes.

Since then Miss Birdie Himitz has been transferred from the state eye and ear infirmary as chief dietitian, in charge of the preparation of 15,000 meals a day for patients and employes. Orders were given to add 10 new employes to the kitchen staff, but not all the positions have been filled. Ovens, refrigerators, dishwashers, food choppers, and other new equipment have been ordered.

Permanent beds in regular rooms have been provided for 117 patients who were sleeping on temporary beds in day rooms before the governor made his inspection.

POSTPONE TRIAL IN PEACE CASE OF MANUFACTURER

Justice of the Peace Roy F. Nix in River Forest yesterday continued to Oct. 9 the trial of Harold J. Stromsen, 45, of 1017 Park av., River Forest, on charges of disturbing the peace and assault and battery on complaint of his estranged wife, Evahlyn, 34. Atty. Thomas J. Barrett entered a plea of not guilty yesterday for Stromsen, a woodwork manufacturer, and he was released in $400 bond. Mrs. Stromsen is suing in Circuit court for divorce and a partitioning of the couple's home.

REVEAL WHY U. S. RUSHES WORK ON ARABIAN FIELD

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 2 [Reuters]—Behind the story of a letter written by an unidentified American soldier to his family telling them that American troops were being used as a labor battalion to build an airport at Dahran on the Persian gulf is another story. It is a story of competition between Britain and America to win the race for civilian air travel and transport.

In the meantime American authorities in Cairo have promised a statement this week on Dahran, in reply to the soldier's letter revealed by Rep. Philbin [D., Mass.].

American military engineer troops are directing American civilians building Dahran airport which was started as a military field on the direct route from Cairo to Karachi, India, across the middle east—called the air crossroads of the world.

It is understood the American army will have the lease of the airport for a short period, after which it reverts to the Saudi Arabian government.

British Air Policy

Britain's policy in the matter of military airdromes in other countries is to transfer military airdromes—by sale or otherwise to the countries where they are if desired for civilian use. These airdromes then might be available for use by foreign air lines if the owning countries consented, but such foreign lines would have no authority in the airdromes' administration or control, that being a domestic concern.

The Americans during the war realized their vast peace time resources and potentialities in planes and pilots and made clear their attitude towards complete freedom of the air at the Chicago international air conference.

The American position is that air lines on a regular schedule should be permitted to pick up and discharge passengers and cargoes within territory served by a locally owned air service. The British view is that locally originating traffic should travel by locally owned lines.

Want Best Equipment

Because of the large and fast planes Americans are using on their around the world air transport lines and the even larger and faster planes which will presently be in service, the Americans also are interested in various safety matters such as the length and strength of runways, weather and communications services, radio beams for bringing in their aircraft in bad weather and other similar items.

'KEEP AMERICA STRONG AT SEA,' NIMITZ PLEADS

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 2 (AP)—Adm. Nimitz, who guided the world's largest ocean area, urged the nation today to "maintain ourselves strong at sea."

"New weapons such as the atomic bomb will undoubtedly change the character of battle," he said, "but the prerequisite for military success remains: You must have control of the sea. We have the power and the resources now. Let us keep them. Our navy today is a guarantee of peace for tomorrow."

Nimitz, who signed the peace for the United States aboard the battleship Missouri, arrived at the Oakland airport and was driven to the city hall here where he was welcomed by Gov. Earl Warren and city officials.

Nimitz will rest briefly at his Berkeley, Cal., home before proceeding to Washington, D. C.

COMPLETE TEXT OF SPEECH BY COL. M'CORMICK

Hails America, Always Winner of Wars

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2—Following is the text of the speech delivered here today by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, before the Washington Advertising club:

"About everybody is talking about creating employment. The President is concerned about it. The gentlemen on the hill are writing laws. Secretaries of manufacturing associations are issuing releases on the subject, but the job, if it is done, must be done by you men.

"Manufacturers can only manufacture as much as the public demands. That demand can only be created by advertising. That you will create such a demand I have not the least doubt, in spite of all the interference you will have from crackpots here and in New York mostly.

"I have known Washington for 50 or more years. I was at President McKinley's first inaugural, but what I remember more vividly was the day the Maine was blown up on Feb. 15, 1898.

"Thru my grandfather, Joseph Medill, I met a large number of the statesmen of that day, including President McKinley and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt.

Monroe Doctrine Established

"Away back then, Washington was the American capital of the upstart Republic which had conducted a successful revolution from its proprietor, and then had argued, threatened, and fought its way to the Pacific.

"The influence of its revolution brought about the revolutions in Central and South America. To protect these revolutions, it had established the Monroe Doctrine, which said:

"'. . . the occasion has been judged proper for asserting that the American continents are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers. . . .'

"The guaranteeing of the American continents against encroachment by foreign monarchies was a logical enlargement of the union of the states.

First Moral Foreign Policy

"It was also the first moral foreign policy in the world, and I think the only moral foreign policy the world has ever known.

"In upholding this Monroe Doctrine, the Republic had forced France from Mexico, had kept England out of California; had compelled her to give up the Mosquito coast; and only two years before, in the Venezuela case, President Cleveland had used this threatening language:

"'It will, in my opinion, be the duty of the United States to resist by every means in its power, as a willful aggression upon its rights and interests, the appropriation of governmental jurisdiction over any territory which after investigation we have determined of right belongs to Venezuela.

"'In making these recommendations, I am fully alive to the responsibilities incurred and keenly realize all the consequences that may follow. . . .'

British Claim Denied

"In view of all this, the claim that it was the British fleet that upheld the Monroe Doctrine is obvious falsehood.

"In the dispute over Samoa, the American commissioners had found Bismarck overbearing and cabled about his irascibility. Blaine promptly replied, 'The extent of the chancellor's irritability is not the measure of American rights.'

"Great ill feeling had been incurred in Italy when the United States government declared itself unable to punish the Louisiana lynchers of some Italian banditti.

"At the moment, Americans were giving great aid to the Cuban insurrectionists, and America was preparing to intervene.

European Powers Press U. S.

"England, France, Denmark, and Holland, holding islands in the Caribbean, had not welcomed insurrections among other island subject peoples, nor American support of them. Holland and Denmark were too small to fish in troubled waters, but the ambassadors of those outstanding democracies, Great Britain and France, joined those of Germany, Russia, Italy, and Austria-Hungary in calling in a body to coerce President McKinley. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, under the personal instruction of Queen Victoria, handed to the President a joint note from the European concert.

Issues of Reform Untouched

"The maintenance of peace, the reëstablishment of order in Cuba, were accentuated, but neither reform of existing tyrannies nor the freedom of the Cuban people was mentioned—conditions which have not been accorded to their own subject peoples in the nearly 50 years which have ensued since then.

"The atmosphere at that time was not propitious for fraternization between the embassies and missions of the foreign monarchies and the people of Washington. It never had been. These diplomats had continuously considered the United States not only as a threat to their imperial ambitions in this hemisphere and in the Pacific, but to their institutions at home, and as aristocrats looked down upon and treated with hauteur the American commoners, whom they termed 'the common Americans,' while the Americans, confident of their superior form of government and superior civilization, ignored the royalist pretensions.

War with Spain Declared

"President McKinley, the last of a long line of great American diplomats, made a diplomatic reply to the concert of Europe, but a few days later, congress declared that war had existed with Spain since April 21.

"What the European concert might have done if the war had been confined to the Caribbean will never be known, because, before they had reached a common attitude, Adm. Dewey won the battle of Manila bay on May 1 and broke the concert of Europe as neutrons fission plutonium.

"On May 19, Cervera's fleet entered Santiago and was blockaded by the American squadron under Adm. Sampson. Gen. Shafter's army landed at Daiquiri on June 22; won the preliminary skirmish of Las Guasimas and took San Juan and Kettle hills on July 1. This forced Cervera's fleet to leave the harbor on July 3 to be annihilated.

"Soon afterward, Gen. Merritt took Manila, and Gen. Miles captured Puerto Rico.

U. S. Victories Stun World

"Such complete victories, at such distant places, and so soon after the declaration of war, stunned the world.

"Verily, the upstart had become a giant.

"The European monarchies reacted in two ways: First, they organized a campaign to minimize the American military achievements, which, I regret to say, was aided by jealousies in our army command and in the navy by the bitter Sampson-Schley controversy.

"Time has shown that the criticisms were unjust. The alleged crowding and disorganization on the transports came at a time when maritime expeditions were unknown and the standards of comparison were those of private travel.

Yank Tactics Fit Weapons

"Since then we have had the South African war and the great world wars, which have shown that to transport armies speedily, either by sea or by land, conditions intolerable to private travel are unavoidable. The army suffered from the then not understood diseases of typhoid and yellow fever, and also discovered their causes and their prevention. As to tactics, the old Civil war generals and Indian fighters had accommodated them to the new weapons better than the English in Africa two years later or the European armies in 1914.

"Having put the Republic in its place by propaganda, there began a great competition to win its support. Stately embassies were raised in Washington and summer embassies at the fashionable resorts. The practice of sending royalty to flatter our democratic sensibilities was begun. An attitude of polite disdain was succeeded by one of kindly condescension to American millionaires. The response was instantaneous. The opinion soon gained ground that Americans could shine in the reflected glory of European aristocrats and become, as it were, a subordinate aristocracy superior to other Americans.

Internationalists Surge to Capital

"Millionaires from the mines, the marts of trade, and the gambling markets swarmed to Washington. Most of the great private houses in town were built at that time, and gave the internationalist movement the economic support of a real estate and building boom.

"Styles were set in the embassies and social position in America was fixed by their favor. International marriages tied American families to the nations of the bridegrooms. Graduates of our more polished universities became career diplomats to hobnob with their European confreres.

"In official life, they introduced the protocol, which substituted the European social hierarchy for American equality and made officialdom consider itself the master, not the servant, of the people.

Snobbery Rides Apace

"Some Americans, unable to reach the residential apex of Washington and Newport snobbery, did their best by joining various exclusive hyphenated organizations.

"From 1914 to 1917 the war on the battlefields of Europe also was carried on in the drawing rooms of Washington. That there might be an American point of view and an American interest was ignored on Connecticut av., as it was on Park av. Nobody in official life raised a voice in the American interest at the peace conference.

"After our entrance into the war our navy became a squadron of the British fleet in Scapa Flow. National guard troops were called out for training. The regular army regiments were broken into cadres that were to become five regular divisions in France, and a draft law was enacted.

Allies Try to Grab Army

"Before our declaration of war on Germany, the British and French in Washington, of course, had worked in harmony. After our declaration, they broke over the question as to whether the English or the French were to command the Americans.

"The British plan was that our soldiers should be incorporated as recruits in the British army. The French plan was for artillery batteries and infantry regiments to serve in French divisions. How public opinion here divided I do not know, as I was not here, but the bulk of the Americans in Paris favored the French. There was, however, a not inconsiderable fraction, including the diplomats, that took to the British idea.

"To the American colony in Paris, the suggestion that American officers from Texas or the Philippines and unfashionable West Point could command large bodies of troops was unthinkable. I know, because I was on Pershing's staff part of the time and began those more or less acrimonious arguments with American diplomats among others, of which I am sure this is not the last.

British Lay Down Rules

"We had little merchant shipping to transport troops. British ships were offered on the sole condition that we would send only infantry and machine gunners.

"The 1st division, which was hurried to France at the request of Marshal Joffre, arrived on July 4 and went into training. I then was attached to the 1st field artillery brigade, and as somewhat of a French scholar, was used to assist the French teachers of the school of fire. I thus learned that instruction was to be furnished only up to the battery commanders—that the American regiments were to operate their own supply systems, but that all tactical orders were to come from the French command!

"In order to refresh my memory on these events, I have recently reread the memoirs of Generals Pershing, Harbord, and Dawes. I was reminded that where Clemenceau and also Foch insisted on commanding Americans, Joffre and Petain accepted our point of view.

Pershing Proved Right

"The correctness of Pershing's insistence was amply proved when, in a year of general allied defeats, the Americans suffered not one setback.

"The tide was turned at Cantigny, Chateau Thierry, and Belleau Wood, which battles have received some acclaim, but I have never seen anything published about the activities of the 1st division in the defense of Amiens or of Montdidier.

"Our allies never gave us credit for the five terrible days at Soissons when the 1st and 2d divisions broke the German army, which elsewhere had been stopped by American divisions at the Marne. The outstanding victory at St. Mihiel was explained away, while the determination and heroism of the Argonne, which won the war, have been generally disputed.

Era of European Collapse.

"As we know, the Russian empire fell in 1917, the German and Austrian empires in 1918, the Italian monarchy in 1922, and the Spanish kingdom in 1931.

"For the last 15 years, lovers of democracy could find kindly condescension in only one embassy. This of course, was the top patron; however, the habit of looking up to foreigners and looking down on Americans had become so well established that champagne and caviar at the embassy of the soviets have become as exhilarating as the same confections when set out by the ambassador of a crowned emperor. This delusion became so much of an obsession that indignation was not only expressed, but really felt against Americans who loved their country first.

"It fell so low as to try to blacken the nation's air hero, Charles Lindbergh, whose great technical accomplishments and battle achievements still are kept under a cloud by the navy censorship. People in authority felt their responsibilities were to foreigners and their duty was to control Americans to that end.

Aliens Take the Helm

"It is no secret that in the late '30s American generals and admirals were not the advisers to their respective departments. The much criticized tank was not designed to American specifications, nor were the fleet dispositions in 1941 those that had been made by American admirals.

"With the outbreak of the war, control of the Southwest Pacific was put under Gen. Wavell, who took from the Philippines bomber planes badly needed for the defense of Bataan; and our Western Pacific fleet was annihilated under command of a Dutch admiral, while the principal squadron of three American and two Australian heavy cruisers, to protect the landing at Guadalcanal, was surprised and sunk under the British Adm. Crutchley.

Victories When U. S. Takes Hold

"Across the Atlantic, our only check, at Kasserine Pass [North Africa], was with our troops under foreign command. The blunders in Italy were not American blunders. The landing in Normandy was under command of Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Bradley's famous breakthru at St. Lo came only after the original plan of campaign had failed. Thereafter all the victories, offensive and defensive, in France, Belgium, and Germany were exclusively American victories.

"The panics and routs on land and sea in the Pacific were not stopped until MacArthur assumed the command on land and American admirals the command at sea. All of the important land and naval victories in that ocean were American victories. All the distinguished admirals and generals in this war are Americans!

"The glory of our soldiers, sailors, marines, and aviators has astounded the world.

"It will be impossible to explain away these victories as the victories of 1898 and 1918 were explained away, and there will never again—thank God—be a class of groveling, obsequious snobs, who will seek to be better than other Americans by admitting inferiority to foreigners."

2½ BILLION TAX SLASH FAVORED BY COMMITTEE

Plan to Boost Exemptions on Normal Levy

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2—A reduction of approximately 2½ billion dollars in next year's income tax bills for individual taxpayers was approved tentatively today by the house ways and means committee.

The committee voted to effect the cut by increasing exemptions on the normal tax and reducing surtaxes 4 percentage points in all brackets, effective Jan. 1.

The plan was accepted tentatively on motion by Rep. Carlson [R., Kas.] who offered it as a substitute for the administration proposal to abolish the 3 per cent normal tax.

Carlson Plan Explained

The administration plan, as outlined yesterday by Treasury Secretary Vinson, would have meant a reduction of approximately 2 billion dollars in individual levies, or a half billion less than the Carlson proposal, and would have benefited chiefly those in the low income groups. It would have relieved approximately 12 million taxpayers of income tax liability.

Under the Carlson proposal, individuals would be permitted to take the same exemptions before figuring normal taxes as they now are allowed for surtaxes. At present, the normal tax exemption is limited to $500, regardless of the number of dependents.

The new plan would allow $500 normal tax exemptions for each dependent and thus would bring the largest tax reductions to those with large families.

Carlson's plan also would relieve millions of low income individuals with dependents from paying an income tax.

Typical Examples Given

The second section of the plan calls for cutting surtax rates four points all along the line. The surtax thus would start at 16 instead of 20 per cent on the first $2,000 or surtax net income, and run to a maximum of 87, instead of 91 per cent.

The following examples illustrate the effect on typical individuals of the Carlson plan, as compared with present tax rates:

Married men with two dependents earning $2,000: present annual income tax, $45. Proposed tax, none.

Same man earning $5,000: present tax, $755. Proposed tax, $590. Saving, $165, or 22 per cent.

Single person, no dependents, earning $2,000: present tax, $345. Proposed tax, $285. Saving, $60, or 17 per cent.

Same person earning $5,000: present tax, $1,105. Proposed tax, $925. Saving, $180, or 16 per cent.

Average Cut About 15 Pct.

Under the proposal the higher the income of the individual the lower would be the tax saving, but levies of all taxpayers would be reduced. On an over-all basis, the average cut for individuals would amount to about 15 per cent.

Today's action was taken behind closed doors, and was not announced officially. Committee Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] said the discussion of tax changes will continue tomorrow.

Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.] said that Secretary Vinson's opposition to a Republican sponsored proposal for a flat 20 per cent cut in individual income taxes "is the first real indication of the New Deal's intention to continue to squander and give away all our money."

The house group is expected to approve Vinson's recommendation for abolition of the corporate excess profits tax—a cut of 2 billion, 555 million dollars.

HINTS TRUMAN'S ATTACK ON IKE WAS POLITICAL

Blast on Treatment of Jews Assailed

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2—Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.] asked in the house today whether ulterior political motives activated President Truman in making public "an untrue, libelous, and misleading" report attacking Gen. Eisenhower's treatment of Jews in Germany.

The President Saturday made public a survey of conditions in Germany by Earl G. Harrison, his personal representative, which charged that the American administration under Eisenhower was treating the Jews as the Nazis treated them, except that they were not exterminated.

"Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters is willing to prove this charge is not true," Vursell said. "In fact, it already has proved that it is not true. Correspondents were invited to make an immediate investigation. Representatives of the Jewish welfare agencies in Frankfurt were surprised by the report. They said it was greatly exaggerated and out of date.

Better Diet than Germans

"Eisenhower's headquarters said Jews were receiving a minimum 2,500 calory daily diet, almost twice that of German civilians. In camps they have been allotted space per person larger than the minimum required by American soldiers.

"It remains for us to inquire if there was an ulterior reason for this unfortunate publicity. Some suggest that it might have been intended to have a favorable bearing on the mayoral election in New York."

Reply to Dewey Seen

President Truman, in calling upon Eisenhower to "clean up" conditions in Germany, also revealed he had appealed to British Prime Minister Attlee to open up Palestine for the emigration of the remaining 100,000 Jews in Germany and Austria. This followed a speech by Gov. Dewey of New York Friday night urging similar action.

"Cloakroom conjecture is that the President's appeal was made to offset the speech by Gov. Dewey," Vursell told the house.

ALLIES ASK POLAND TO DELAY EVICTION OF GERMAN NATIONALS

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—The allied control council has requested Poland to quit evicting German nationals until a population resettlement program can be worked out in accordance with the Potsdam declaration, it was learned today. A British officer said no reply had been received from Warsaw.

German welfare leaders had asserted in an appeal to the council that 4,500,000 Germans would move from Germany's lost eastern provinces in the next few weeks into the soviet occupation zone in Germany, which already contains an estimated 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 refugees.

The leaders asked the allies to prohibit German migration west of the new Polish frontier along the Oder and Neisse rivers unless each migrant was certified by the council.

Reports Marshal Zhukov Ill; Postpones Trip to U. S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—The White House said today the visit of Marshal Zhukov, Russian commander in occupied Germany, has been postponed because of the marshal's illness. Zhukov had planned to land in New York Thursday. The White House said a message saying Zhukov was ill and would have to delay his trip reached it thru the war department from Gen. Eisenhower.

SENATE IS TOLD BRITAIN SPURNS PLAN FOR JEWS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Senators sharply criticized Britain today as they relayed reports she has turned down a proposal from President Truman for the removal of 100,000 homeless Jews from Europe to Palestine.

Senators Johnson [D., Colo.], McMahon [D., Conn.], and Murray [D., Mont.] told the chamber they understood that proposal was the gist of Mr. Truman's recent communication to British Prime Minister Attlee.

All said the British government was reported affirming a policy of limiting Jewish immigration to Palestine. There was no official confirmation Britain had taken that stand.

Charges Treaty Violated

Johnson said the policy was inaugurated originally in violation of a "sacred treaty" with this country, and added: "Surely, our people are in no mood to have President Truman's recommendation vetoed by the British. Surely, Britain is not going to welsh on her solemn promises."

Senator after senator arose to commend the President's efforts and to express displeasure at Britain's reported attitude.

The White House made known last week that Mr. Truman wrote Attlee in an effort to open Palestine to displaced persons wishing to go there. It did not disclose just what Mr. Truman said, explaining no conclusions had been reached.

Made public at the same time was a report from American aids abroad that thousands of Jews are being held in camps for lack of any place to go.

No Reply: Truman

At the White House today, it was said that the President had not received a reply from Attlee altho the British ministry of information said in London yesterday one was dispatched Sept. 16.

At one point in the senate discussion, Sen. Taft [R., O.] suggested that the United States use its influence more forcefully with Britain in the case. He hinted he had in mind British requests for economic and other aid.

Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.] said there are 600,000 Jews in Palestine and it could absorb 3 million.

McMahon described the British government as "following sheeplike behind Hitler's leadership" when it promulgated its white paper in 1939, which limited immigration into Palestine to 75,000 during the following five years.

Approves Special Gold Medal for Gen. Marshall

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Legislation directing the President to have a special gold medal made for Gen. Marshall was approved today by the house military committee. The medal would be presented to the chief of staff "in the name of the people of the United States of America."

Plan to Quit Work to Vote on Strike

impartial arbitrator make a final and binding settlement if the parties are unable to do so in the meantime by collective bargaining.

Schwellenbach said two of the companies and the union indicated they were ready to reply when sessions resumed at 4 p. m. today. The other companies asked for the delay.

Expects Acceptance

"I have decided to grant the request with the expectation that the companies will accept my proposal at that time," the secretary said in a statement issued to reporters.

Signs of delay appeared an hour and a half after the showdow meeting began.

That was when the chief spokesman for the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, C. S. Teitsworth, walked out of the conference and left Washington for New York.

"Some of the people think they need more time, that their opinion in not final as yet," said Teitsworth.

The Sinclair Oil company announced, however, it would accept Schwellenbach's plan without change.

Submit Differences

Other conferees on both sides had brought in some qualifications they wished to attach to Schwellenbach's back-to-work proposal, Teitsworth said.

In a letter given to Schwellenbach, Teitsworth said Socony-Vacuum "gladly subscribed" to most points of the government plan, including a temporary 15 per cent wage boost pending final settlement.

A CIO official close to the striking union said its secret caucus on the Schwellenbach plan might result in a turndown. Locals over the country have been wiring their spokesmen here not to compromise.

Price May Go Up

The price of oil and gas was involved, too. OPA officials said a price increase might be avoided if the final settlement was 15 per cent but probably would be needed if it were 30 per cent.

U. S. RESTRICTS COAL SHIPMENTS IN FOUR EASTERN DISTRICTS

Washington, D. C., Oct 3 (AP)—Bituminous coal producers in four eastern mining districts were prohibited today from shipping to retail dealers and various other users because of spreading mine strikes.

Deliveries by retailers to domestic consumers were not directly curtailed by the emergency order of the solid fuels administration, but dealers will be unable to obtain shipments from mines in the affected districts to replenish their stocks.

The order applies only to bitumi nous coal shipments by rail and water from mines producing more than 50 tons a day.

Producers with mines located in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, and northeastern Tennessee were prohibited from shipping available coal to any users except: hospitals, water, gas and electric utility plants, railroads and city transit systems, vessels, mine power plants, the Great Lakes docks, and river and tide water docks.

WEST COAST AFFECTED

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 2 (AP)—The widespread strike of the CIO Oil Workers' union spread to Californit today with the closing of refineries at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The plant of the Union Oil company at near-by Wilmington was shut and a picket line established after J. E. McGee, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said company officials "refused to cooperate" with the union.

Simultaneously, more than 1,100 workers struck at the Oleum refinery in the San Francisco bay area.

W. W. Allen, Bakersfield, Cal., representative of the union, said the union is asking 52 hours' pay for 40 hours' work. Reese H. Taylor, president of Union Oil company, said the demand was rejected yesterday.

N. Y. TRAFFIC SNARLED

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—A bus drivers' slowdown snarled traffic in New York City today and a chauffeurs' walkout withheld supplies from 5,000 metropolitan bakeries.

Fifth av. buses ran as much as 67 minutes late as drivers refused to work overtime and began a slowdown which delayed automotive traffic. The bus drivers, members of local 100 of the CIO Transport Workers' union, voted to discontinue vertime last night and charged that the Fifth Avenue Coach company was "stalling" in settling a dispute in which the unign sought to continue two man operation of double deck buses.

Members of local 138 of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, employed by companies supplying ingredients to bakeries, continued what the Association of Wholesale Food Merchants, Inc., termed a "wildcat strike."

A strike was threatened by members of the CIO State, County, and Municipal Workers of America, who said four area hospitals had failed to comply with a war labor board directive ordering pay increases. They scheduled a strike Oct. 15.

100,000 MINERS IDLE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 2 (AP)—Approximately 100,000 men, nearly one-fourth of the nation's soft coal miners, were idle today in a dispute growing out of demands for recognition of a union embracing supervisory mine employes. The two great fuel producing states of Pennsylvania and West Virginia were hardest hit.

Pennsylvania reported 104 mines shut and 44,328 men idle; West Virginia reported an estimated 100 mines closed and 40,000 men out. Kentucky had 10 mines and 10,000 men idle, and Ohio seven mines and 4,350 men.

The strikes started Sept. 21 at four mines producing fuel for the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, in Washington county, Pa. Supervisory employes asked recognition of the United Clerical, Technical, and Supervisory Workers, an affiliate of the United Mine Workers. Coal operators opposed it on the grounds that foremen and similar employes are part of the management.

CIO WORKERS QUIT

Newark, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP)—Four thousand members of the CIO United Electrical, Radio, and Machine workers went on strike today at four north Jersey plants after taking a strike vote last night.

At three plants of Thomas A Edison, Inc., 2,500 members of local 407 were out and 1,500 members of local 431 struck at the Orange plant of the Monroe Calculating Machine company.

Union officials told the employes both companies had turned down a demand for a wage increase of $2 a day.

BUS STRIKE THREATENED

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 2 (AP)—A strike of 2,700 drivers and station employes of Pacific Greyhound Lines in seven western and southwestern states was threatened for midnight Thursday unless the company agrees to "satisfactory contract action" by 4 p. m. Thursday, a union spokesman said today.

David Duncan of the national labor bureau, an organization representing the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, said the ultimatum was delivered today and affects union members in California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas.

"We want a contract, which we have not had since the last one in July, 1944," Duncan said, "and we want a wage increase for all drivers and station employes.

CIO-AFL DISPUTE

Portland, Ore., Oct. 2 (AP)—The big Weyerhaeuser and Long-Bell lumber mills at near-by Longview, Wash., operated again today after a CIO injunction action banned AFL picket lines.

But at other northwest mills striking AFL workers succeeded in halting operations. The union also announced it would put union men in patrol cars on the highways to tail delivery trucks and request drivers to return lumber to CIO operated mills.

WORK HOLIDAY, STRIKES TAKE 20,710 OFF JOB

17 Chicago Area Plants Are Affected

Strikes in 17 Chicago area plants and a holiday declared by members of local 16, International Typographical union [AFL], kept 19,810 employes of the plants from their jobs yesterday.

In addition, 900 employes of the David Bradley Manufacturing company, a subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in Kankakee, were out of work because of a wage strike by local 184, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers' union [AFL]. The company makes farm implements and stokers.

Nine hundred employes of the Diamond T Motor Car company, 4401 W. 26th st., refused to cross a picket line set up by the independent Automotive Workers Industrial union because the company refused to discharge 48 employes of its motor service branch at 320 S. Sangamon st. who had refused to pay a $1 assessment.

Try to End Unauthorized Strike

A strike of local 917, United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers' union [CIO], which has kept 8,000 employes from their jobs at the General Motors Electro-Motive diesel division at McCook since Friday night, continued.

Joseph Mattson, regional director of UAW-CIO, said that he had sent a committee to Detroit, Mich., to confer with R. J. Thomas, UAW president, about settling the strike. Both Mattson and Thomas have declared the strike unauthorized.

A strike of members of local No. 65, United Steel Workers' union [CIO], which started Friday in four mills of the south works of Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, 3426 E 89th st., kept 850 employes from work.

In a strike vote conducted by ITU local No. 16, members employed in more than 300 commercial shops voted 1,988 to 54 to strike. President Thomas Canty estimated that 2,000 of the union's 3,000 members would be on strike today.

Independents Join CIO

Employes of Cribben & Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento blvd., who have been members of the independent United Stove Workers union, voted to affiliate with local No. 1114, United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers' union [CIO]. Nearly 500 of the company's employes have been on strike since Aug. 27. The CIO ordered the strikers back tomorrow.

The Taylor Forge and Pipe works, 4735 14th st., Cicero, was completely shut down yesterday. A strike by the independent Forge and Machine Workers Industrial union, kept 1,300 employes from their jobs. The strike by 110 members of local No. 387, United Mine Workers union, continued to halt production by the Morden Frog and Crossing company in Chicago Heights.

Many Plants Affected

Other plants affected by strikes were: General Chemical company, 12260 Carondolet av.; three plants of A. Finkl and Sons company, which has general offices at 2011 Southport av.; Vogue-Wright Studios, Inc., 459 E. Ohio st.; Revere Copper and Brass, 2200 Natchez av., and 6630 Fullerton av.; General Electric X-Ray corporation, 2012 Jackson blvd.; Dearborn Glass company, 2414 21st st.; American Forge division of the American Brake Shoe company, 2621 S. Hoyne av.; Samuel Bingham's Son Manufacturing company, 636 Sherman st.; Bucyrus-Monighan company, 913 Kilpatrick av.; Chicago Molded Products company, 1020 N. Kolmar av., and Central Screw company, 3501 Shields av.

ASK STRIKE VOTE AT 11 PLANTS OF HARVESTER CO.

The United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union [CIO] yesterday petitioned for a strike vote under the national labor relations board regulations at 11 plants of the International Harvester company in Chicago, downstate Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, and New York.

The union is currently negotiating with the company for a 30 per cent wage increase to offset peace time reductions in hours and wages. The union also wants agreements embodied in contracts on an industry wide basis.

DETROIT MAYOR OFF TO CAPITAL IN OIL DISPUTE

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2 [Special]—Mayor Edward Jeffries left for Washington, D. C., today, reportedly to seek a conference with President Truman, in efforts to "see about getting gasoline for Detroit." He said he would remain in the capital until he gets some action.

Meantime, Gus Scholle, CIO director of Michigan, predicted gasoline would be flowing thru Detroit filling station pumps within 48 hours. The lines of motorists going to Windsor, Ont., to purchase fuel have been growing larger daily since the strike by CIO oil workers has been under way.

E. J. Cunningham, regional director of the federal conciliation service, met with CIO officials late this afternoon in an attempt to restore a normal flow of gasoline here. After the meeting, Cunningham said all involved had decided the workers' demand for a 30 per cent wage increase must be met on a national level.

Paper Firm Pays $7,476 for Over Ceiling Sales

Damages of $7,476.83 were paid by the Atlas Paper Company, Inc., 1948 Fulton st., in a consent judgment entered yesterday by Judge Walter J. La Buy in federal District court in an office of price administration suit charging that the company collected more than ceiling prices on wrapping paper, bags, and other paper products.

U. S. PROPOSAL DENOUNCED BY OIL STRIKE HEAD

Elwood E. Phelps, president of local 210 of the International Oil Workers' union [CIO], which with local 513 has closed eight oil refineries in northern Indiana suburbs of Chicago, yesterday termed "ridiculous" a proposal by Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach that oil workers accept a 15 per cent pay increase and an arbitrator's final settlement.

"Your offer is ridiculous," Phelps told Schwellenbach in a telegram. "We could have got a better offer without a strike. We're watching the political maneuvering going on and we not only will reject your offer but will reject any 8 to 10 per cent additional that the President may offer in the near future."

Phelps, who also is chairman of the Calumet oil strikers' committee, said the proposal was "either naive or provocative, and we're standing pat." He represents about 6,000 strikers in the area.

Chicago's gasoline supply was reported adequate.

Theft of 2,000 Letters Is Admitted by Carrier

Joseph Glaberson, 32, of 4720 N. Kedzie av., pleaded guilty yesterday in federal District court to a charge of stealing 2,000 letters while employed as a carrier at the Chestnut st. substation of the post office from January to June. Asst. United State's Atty. Jack Arnold Welfeld said Glaberson got about $400. The case was set for trial Nov. 7.

WIDOW'S DEATH CALLED SUICIDE

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide in the death of Mrs. Catherine Engebretsen, 65, a widow, who was found asphyxiated by illuminating gas in the rear of her candy store at 1505 Fillmore st., Sunday.

PREDICT UMW'S EARLY RETURN TO AFL RANKS

Because a vacancy has occurred on the 15 man executive council of the American Federation of Labor, AFL leaders in Chicago predicted yesterday that John L. Lewis and the 500,000 members of his United Mine Workers union soon would be back in the AFL.

The vacancy occurred when Edward Flore, veteran president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International union and Bartenders International league and 10th vice president of the AFL, died last Thursday.

During the AFL board's meeting in Miami, Fla., last February, Lewis stipulated that the UMW would return to the AFL if a UMW member could be guaranteed a place on the AFL council. William Green, AFL president, notified Lewis that the board could not give such a promise, because no place was open on the council.

Since the board vacancy now exists and because no convention is scheduled by the AFL this year, AFL leaders said, the board, if it wishes, now can promise the UMW a place on the executive board.

LONGSHOREMEN END NEW YORK HARBOR STRIKE

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Oct. 2—The strike of 15,000 longshoremen belonging to the International Longshoremen's association [AFL] ended suddenly tonight after crippling shipping operations at the world's busiest port for two days.

The decision to return to work came after a closed meeting tonight of delegates from various locals. The action was taken after Joseph P. Ryan, president of the international, presented the New York Shipping association's proposals.

Coming at a time when the harbor was filled nearly to its war time shipping peak, the strike halted loading and discharging operations on 41 ships operated by the war shipping administration and nearly two score foreign flag ships.

Threatened Overseas Ships

Capt. Hewlett H. Bishop, Atlantic coast WSA director, said the dispute, tieing up ships with relief cargoes destined for Europe, threatened to disrupt the return of American soldiers from overseas.

Before the announcement of the decision to return to work, Ryan termed the walkout "hasty action." He said the men should have remained at work pending settlement of the dispute with the shipping association. Altho negotiations were still in progress, the men refused to load cargo nets with more than 2,240 pounds in a single sling. When ship cargo hatches were closed at this point in the controversy the union termed it a "lockout."

The strike was not the only problem worrying ship operators eager to begin rebuilding world commerce. Since the WSA took over privately owned vessels, besides operating the fleet of government owned ships, the operators have been agents for the government.

Their immediate concern is the return of their pre-war ships, which are in a shipping pool comprised mostly of United States vessels, but including ships from Great Britain and other nations.

Quick Return Urged

Action on the pool is expected at meetings beginning Thursday in Washington, D. C. Vice Adm. Land, war shipping administrator, will preside.

Commenting on the need for early return of vessels, one of the principal operators said:

"The government is laying up privately owned ships and at the same time operating its own ships built during the war. Many of the privately owned ships were specially designed for their trades and should be returned to their owners without delay. The government should not be in competition with them when they are returned."

More than 100 ships have been laid up in the James river at Norfolk, Va.

UTILITY SYSTEM GIVES WAR VETS STRIKERS' JOBS

Vet Bill Proposed

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], chairman of the house veterans committee, urged congress today to enact legislation that he said would permit discharged veterans to "break these strikes overnight."

"It is time to call a halt" to strikes, Rankin said in an interview disclosing he would ask the rules committee to send to the house floor for debate a bill approved by Rankin's committee several months ago. It provides that no honorably discharged ex-service man shall be required to join a union, retain membership in a union, or pay union dues as a condition of employment.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 2 (AP)—Ninety striking AFL union workers of the Lower Colorado River authority who closed four hydroelectric plants and stopped electric service to a large area of central Texas for 30 hours were fired today. Their jobs immediately were offered to war veterans and a number were hired.

Electric power was restored to most of the area today.

General Manager Max Starcke of th LCRA said:

"The men who walked off are out of their jobs and will not be re-employed." He said several veterans had been hired as linemen, dispatchers, and switchboard operators.

Previously, Starcke had complained of "acts of sabotage and vandalism."

Backed by Governor

Gov. Coke R. Stevenson approved the action. "Any man who commits sabotage on the property on which he is employed should not be re-employed," he told a news conference.

Union officials said they were not ready to comment on the LCRA's announcement that it would not rehire any of the striking employes. Harry Bernhard, business manager of local 520, AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, whose members were involved in the strike, indicated he might make a statement later.

Sought Bargaining Rights

He said the sole issue was recognition of the LCRA workers' right to bargain collectively. The LCRA asserted that as a state created agency, it had no legal power to delegate matters involving hiring and firing.

The LCRA placed the number of men affected by this order at 90. Union sources said 140 members walked out. The operating department has 160 employes.

Power was restored, at least partially, to such larger towns as Kerrville, Giddings, Fredericksburg, and Brenham, and to three army camps. Only the Lampasas area was completely without electricity.

Gov. Stevenson assured Starcke that the state would provide the LCRA with as many armed guards as necessary to protect property.

Gets Phone Threat

MRS. EVELYN SPENCE

Mrs. Helen Zingraf, of 1737 N. Oak Park av., Oak Park, and Mrs. Evelyn Spence, of 6917 S. Damen av., members of the jury impaneled for the trial of Patrick Flaherty in connection with the E. H. Rumbold vault robbery, told Assistant State's Atty. Blair Varnes yesterday that they received threatening telephone calls after they disclosed last week that another juror was acquainted with the defendant.

Police have been posted at the homes of Mrs. Zingraf and Mrs. Spence, Varnes explained. They said a man threatened them with harm if they did "any more talking."

Judge William J. Lindsay in Criminal court declared a mistrial Saturday after six jurors testified Mrs. Grace Russell, 22, of 3725 Union av., member of the panel, had told them she knew Flaherty and his family. Mrs. Russell was ordered by the court to appear tomorrow for questioning.

VOTES TO START 3 BILLION ROAD BUILDING JOB

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Congress today voted an immediate start on a 3 billion dollar federal-state highway construction program.

Senate passage sent to the White House legislation declaring the end of hostilities permits beginning a program previously authorized for post-war years.

Senate passage was by voice vote. Congress still has to appropriate the funds.

The program was authorized last December by congress as a post-war measure to cushion the shift to peace. Under it the states must match dollar for dollar the federal funds provided.

The program authorizes more than 500 million dollars in federal funds for the current fiscal year ending June 30 and the same amount for the two following fiscal years.

The planned allocations for Chicagoland for the first year, as set forth in a report issued by the public roads administration, follow:

States—	Federal aid highways system	Secondary or feeder roads	Urban highways
Illinois	8,847,357	4,761,820	9,510,696
Indiana	5,402,363	3,622,366	3,065,734
Iowa	5,567,260	3,979,710	1,592,107
Michigan	6,826,974	4,129,025	5,682,433
Wisconsin	5,434,891	3,681,127	2,654,468

In addition, the program includes $87,250,000 annually to help build highways, roads and trails in forests, parks, and Indian lands.

ASK 365 MILLION IN GOVERNMENT BUILDING PLAN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Congress was asked today to put up 193 million dollars for new government buildings in the states and territories.

The proposed legislation also seeks $172,405,000 for buildings in or near the District of Columbia. It was submitted jointly by the public buildings administration and the postoffice department.

A list of 4,020 projects was sent to House Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] with the bill. Proposed projects include public health service hospitals, federal court houses, postoffices, and office buildings.

JAP CABINET MAY QUIT OVER FOOD SITUATION

Housecleaning Is Urged; Riot Over Rice

TOKYO, Oct. 3 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Disclosure of a rice riot in northern Japan and a flood of letters from Japanese critics, demanding governmental changes, added strength today to reports that the Japanese cabinet may fall or be drastically revamped.

Yomiuri-Hoichi said 100 villagers in Otakasawa-Migayi prefecture broke into a government owned warehouse Sept. 26 and took 54 bales of rice after the watchmen refused permission for them to borrow some. Prefecture police subsequently made arrests and recovered most of the rice.

The newspaper Asahi said Premier Higashi-Kuni, who solicited public expressions a month ago, has been deluged by thousands of letters, particularly by women complaining of difficulties in obtaining food.

Nine in Legislature Quit

Asahi also reported numerous letter writers demanded "overthrowing" government burocracy and "general withdrawal of present higher-ups in political and financial circles."

Nine members of the house of representatives already have submitted resignations to Speaker Toshio Shimada. Others are expected to follow.

The newspaper Mainichi speculated that Foreign Minister Shigeru Yoshida might be a candidate for the premiership, replacing Higashi-Kuni, because "he is free from all suspicion of being a war criminal."

With a forthrightness impossible under the old regime, the press demanded the dismissal of "feudalistic officials" such as those who tried to stop publication of the emperor's visit to Gen. MacArthur.

With his investigators already tracking down the spoils of war which Japanese exploiters gathered in the orient, MacArthur set out today after the munitions industry that armed Japan's warriors.

Calls for Arms Report

He told the imperial government to submit a complete report on the production of arms, ordnance, ammunition, and automotive equipment from 1941 to August of this year, when the empire crashed in defeat.

Well informed Japanese reported Emperor Hirohito was waiting for the Japanese army to finish demobilization, possibly by Oct. 15, before cleaning house in the government.

As part of that disarming, MacArthur's headquarters announced the imperial general air force had been completely demobilized and all air matters now were directly under American control.

Faced with almost certain ouster were at least three cabinet members who had an active hand in the war.

Independence Claim

HANOI, Indo-China, Oct. 1 [Delayed] (AP)—Leaders of Hanoi's new political party asserted today it controled three towns in Indo-China and that it had been assured Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would support Annamese independence claims.

Immediate independence was sought by native Annamese whose recent uprising was against return of French colonial control.

The southeast Asia command, in a broadcast reported by Reuters news agency at London, said an agreement to "cease fire" in French Indo-China was reached Monday by French authorities and leaders of the Annamese independence movement.

[The Paris radio quoted a Saigon broadcast by a French spokesman as promising full French-Annamese collaboration. The spokesman also recalled an earlier French announcement that a federal government and a free parliament would be granted to Indo-China.]

Hanoi's new political party, the union of revolutionary parties of Viet Nam, was said by its leaders to be known in China as the "Annamite Kuomintang."

MALAY RUBBER FAILS TO MOVE; LACK TRANSPORT

SINGAPORE, Oct. 2 (AP)—Transport bottlenecks both at sea and inland are impeding removal of rubber stockpiles found at a number of points in Malaya and are causing concern to buying agencies which have been active since the beginning of reoccupation.

Despite the high priority officially allotted to shipment of rubber, agents thus far have been able to effect the movement of only a small fraction of the estimated 70,000 tons found stored here and at points up the peninsula.

Military Aid Lacking

Pre-war transport from these shipping centers was by boat, railroad and truck, none of which now is available for such traffic. This means the military administration must provide special transport for rubber, and this has not been forthcoming.

Rubber buyers and growers' agencies both agree that while the Japanese did not harm the rubber plantations to any great extent, destroying only an estimated 5 per cent of the trees, they struck a crippling blow to the industry by the removal of plantation labor.

Labor Supply Cut

Thousands of Tamil [south Indian] rubber tappers were impressed into labor gangs which were sent to work on construction of the Siam-Burma railroad or were transported as slave labor to Japanese island bases. Enormous numbers are known to have died; others simply disappeared.

The consequence is that in some Malaya rubber sections man power available for production work has been reduced more than 50 per cent.

Anthony De Lordo, 38, of 6455 Wood st., who was acquitted of a murder charge in the assassination of Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk in 1943, was ordered by Judge Joseph B. De Lordo testified he earns $36 a week as a clerk in a handbook.

120 WAR BRIDES READY TO LEAVE FOR AUSTRALIA

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 2 (AP)—North American war brides—120 of them with 30 babies—were bound for new homes in Australia today, reversing the trend which has brought many Australian women to this continent.

The girls, including two American citizens, all married members of the royal Australian air force who trained in Canada. Also in the party were 20 brides-to-be, whose fiances await them in Australia. All of them will sail later in the week from San Francisco.

The girls said the Australian government was footing the transportation bill, altho they had to pay their fares in advance, with remittance promised after the weddings.

BAR AFFIDAVITS FROM ENGLAND FOR CONVICTED GI

Donald Hicks

Williamsport, Pa., Oct. 2 (AP)—Depositions from citizens of Corby, England, were ruled out today in a habeas corpus hearing of Donald Hicks, 27, of Kingston, N. Y., fighting a 25 year prison term imposed in England by an army court-martial.

Hicks, acting as his own attorney, sought to submit depositions concerning the character of the woman named in the case which resulted in his conviction on a charge of rape while serving as a private in the United States army in England.

Judge John Biggs Jr. of the 3d United States Circuit court of appeals, refused to admit the papers, ruling such action would constitute retrial of the court-martial. Judge Biggs ordered hearings in the case after Hicks instituted habeas corpus proceeding Aug. 21. His action was supported by 1,625 residents of Corby, where the attack allegedly occured. They filed affidavits asserting that Hicks was convicted unjustly.

200,000 PACIFIC VETERANS WAIT SHIPPING THAW

Every Returning Vessel to Carry Passengers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Sept. 28 [By Air Mail]—At least 200,000 veterans of the Pacific ready for discharge are awaiting ships to take them home, a survey of the progress of demobilization in the Pacific disclosed today.

Many of them have been waiting five weeks in overcrowded transient camps and receiving stations where impatience and restless anticipation of going home have produced fretting complaints and grumbling.

The common complaint is, "We've done our job. Why do we have to wait week after week?"

Thaw Expected Now

The official answer stacks up this way:

Shipping is scarce because the primary military task of occupying and policing the Japanese empire has diverted transports which would otherwise be available to carry men back home.

What's the outlook?

The frozen traffic will begin to thaw early in October. The navy is putting the heat on and is enforcing a mandatory directive that every ship heading for the United States be packed to maximum capacity with passengers. In addition, the navy is rushing transports to the Pacific as rapidly as they become available from other duties.

"All available space aboard ships leaving the Marianas is being utilized for the movement home of men eligible for discharge," Vice Adm. George D. Murray, commander of the Marianas area, said today. "Every ship is inspected and means provided to put as many passengers aboard as possible.

"Flow Will Rise"

"Daily more shipping will become available from other more pressing military duties, and the flow of men home will rise noticeably. In a very short time a regular passenger transportation schedule will be effective and will assure expeditious and equitable transportation for men returning home."

The navy has worked out the following schedule as a guide for loading combat and other ships going to the United States: A battleship can carry 1,000 passengers in addition to its crew, a heavy cruiser 800, a light cruiser 350, a destroyer 30 to 90, a destroyer escort, 30, an escort carrier 500, and a big carrier 1,500 to 2,000.

The navy has established a special passenger carrying task group comprising the carrier Saratoga and at least 23 escort carriers under the command of Rear Adm. Harry S. Kendall with headquarters at Pearl Harbor. The "Sars" can hold 4,000 passengers with bunks installed on the hangar decks where planes formerly were stored. The escort carriers can take 1,000 each. [The Saratoga convoy reached San Francisco Sept. 30.]

First Carrier at Okinawa

The escort carriers are being fitted with 700 bunks in tiers of eight and cooking and sanitary facilities are being added to accommodate the heavy passenger load. The first of these converted CVEs, the Marcus Island, already has arrived in the Pacific to load men at Okinawa.

The remodeling requires from a week to 10 days. The CVEs will be able to make about one round trip each month.

LSTs, which used to move onto beaches and unload tanks from their opened bows, now are being fitted with 600 cots on their tank decks and are being pressed into the passenger service.

Adm. Murray said a dozen transports would arrive in the Marianas Islands by Oct. 3 and remove 16,800 men. Transportation authorities predicted that by early spring there will be no waiting.

NEW YORK IS CONGESTED

New York hotels have never been more crowded. To our great regret, Waldorf patrons of years' standing have been disappointed because of our inability to meet their requirements. The most vivid indication of the extraordinary condition now existing is that we are forced to send regrets to approximately nine out of ten requests for reservations.

We advise postponing New York visits that include The Waldorf-Astoria unless they are imperatively necessary.

The reason for this advertisement is that we feel it our duty to warn patrons about the existing situation, which, in our opinion, cannot be measurably relieved for some time. At present, the trend is in the direction of greater demand.

Cruiser Indianapolis Survivors

REPORTS FINDING WIFE DEAD; KNIFE WOUNDS IN SIDE

Steve Wittman of 1528 Mohawk st., a janitor, telephoned Hudson av. police yesterday that he had found his wife, Helen, 57, dead on the kitchen floor.

Steve Wittman

Police responded. First examination indicated she had died of a heart attack. They took her body to an undertaker's. A second examination revealed three knife wounds in her left side. Police returned to the apartment and found a butcher knife, apparently used to inflict the wounds, on the kitchen table.

A post-mortem examination showed that either of two of the knife wounds could have caused death. Wittman told police his wife had been drinking heavily lately.

Police arrested Tony Simons, 66, a junkman, who has no home, for questioning. He denied stabbing Mrs. Wittman. Police said that she had had him arrested four times, once complaining that he had chased her with a knife. Simons, police said, had accused Mrs. Wittman of withholding $120 he had entrusted to her care.

HEART ATTACK IN STREET FATAL

Frank Gilroy, 60, of 6428 N. Richmond st., a salesman for the Botanical Decorative Supply company, 14 N. Franklin st., collapsed and died of a heart attack in front of the Marshall Field & Co. store in Oak Park yesterday.

Heading for Home

Five survivors of the heavy cruiser Indianapolis which was torpedoed at midnight, July 30, in one of the worst naval disasters on record, passed thru Chicago last night on their way to their homes.

They were Storekeeper 3d Class Charles Greenlee, 31, of Waynesburg, Pa.; Fireman 1st Class Frank Lucca, 19, of Cleveland, O.; and Ralph D. Klappa, 18, of 2756 E. Crawford av., Milwaukee; Paul R. Podish, 20, of Eighty-four, Pa.; Frank H. Nelson, 22, of Greenville, Mich., all seamen 2d class.

Three hundred fifteen of the cruiser's 1,159 men were saved. Those rescued spent five days and nights without food and water, floating in heavy seas with rafts and life jackets, before patrol planes sighted them. The Indianapolis had made a high speed run to Guam with equipment for the atomic bomb and was traveling without escort when she was hit. She sank within 12 minutes.

NETWORK SUED TO ENJOIN USE OF LETTERS ABC

The Associated Broadcasting corporation of Grand Rapids, Mich., asked the federal District court yesterday to enjoin the American Broadcasting Company, Inc., from the use of the call letters ABC. The plaintiff network asserted it has referred to itself as the ABC network since Dec. 28, 1943, while the American Broadcasting company did not begin using the same letters until June, 1944.

ACQUIT SOLDIER WHO CONFESSED RAPE ATTEMPT

Freed by Army Court at Fort Sheridan

Pvt. Louis Shark, 19, of 1110 Florence av., Evanston, who signed a confession after his arrest by Evanston police a month ago that he had entered one apartment and tried to enter two others with an intention of rape, was acquitted yesterday by a general court-martial at Fort Sheridan.

He was tried before the military court on one charge of "breaking and entering with intent to rape." The complainant was Mrs. Carl Hiertz, 139 Custer av., Evanston, whose husband, an army corporal, routed Shark early on Sept. 4 after he allegedly had entered their basement apartment.

Corp. Hiertz had returned home on furlough several days previously after fighting in Europe and since has been sent to Texas.

Awakened by Prowler

Mrs. Hiertz testified she was awakened by a prowler in their apartment and that she roused her husband, who chased the man out of the window he had entered.

Sgt. Henry Engstrom, who arrested Shark in the vestibule of another Evanston building, testified Shark signed a confession admitting breaking into the Hiertz apartment and attempting to enter two others.

Engstrom also told the court of Shark's previous record. He was arrested in a stolen automobile by Evanston police in August, 1944, after they had fired several shots at him. The charge was nolle prossed in court so he could enter the army. He had been arrested six times as a juvenile on charges of burglary and larceny, but was never convicted.

Officers Have "No Comment"

After giving their testimony, Engstrom and Mrs. Hiertz were required to leave before the defense was started. After learning of the verdict of acquittal, Sgt. Engstrom said, Mrs. Hiertz commented, "It looks like my husband will have to take over from here."

Officers at Fort Sheridan and at the 6th service command headquarters said they had "no comment" on the verdict.

Sgt. Engstrom said he will ask Police Chief Carl Ekman of Evanston today to confer with the state's attorney's office on the possibility of getting Shark in police custody for trial in a state court.

SENTENCED FOR CARRYING GUN

Ellsworth J. Schlophoff, 30, of 1008 Monroe st., was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in South State Street court when he pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying a revolver.

PRAYER that BRINGS RESULTS

IN NORTH AFRICA, in Europe, in the Southwest Pacific, and elsewhere, the world has been witnessing stirring examples of answered prayer.

Food, water, safety, greater effectiveness, and healing of sickness and wounds, have been acutely needed, and have come through prayer. Even skeptics, seeing the results, have been convinced.

What, broadly, is the meaning of these experiences? Is there a kind of prayer that can be counted on — that is definitely available and availing under all conditions?

The answer to this question, Christian Science shows, is an unqualified Yes. The words of the Founder of Christianity, "Ask, and ye shall receive"—words which bore no hint of an exception —are revealed in this teaching as a statement of pure Science.

The first chapter of the Christian Science textbook,

SCIENCE and HEALTH with Key to the Scriptures
by Mary Baker Eddy

explains the spiritually scientific and unfailing prayer, or treatment. Study of this chapter has brought to great numbers of people the healing, protection, or other help that was immediately needed, and given them in addition a permanently useful understanding of prayer.

There are seventeen other similarly valuable chapters in the book.

Science and Health can be had in cloth for $2 or $3, or in morocco leather (brown, blue, or black) for $5, at

JAP POLITICAL PRISONERS STILL LINGER IN CELLS

Tribune Man Visits Them Despite Obstacles

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Oct. 2—The sudden death in Tokyo's Toyotama prison of Kiyoshi Miki, noted Japanese critic and philosopher, has aroused interest here in the fate of thousands of other political prisoners. Investigation prompted by the death of Miki, who was held incommunicado since last March, disclosed the following information:

1. The Japanese "thought control" police, under whose reign of terror the critics of the government were persecuted, are still in existence with their war time personnel of 3,000.

2. Iwao Yamazaki, home minister, under whose department the "thought control" police come, has announced there is no intention of either disbanding these police or of freeing political prisoners.

3. Not until the Tribune correspondent produced a letter signed by Gen. MacArthur's press chief, Brig. Gen. L. A. Diller, was he permitted by the Japanese to interview some of the 18 political prisoners held in Toyotama prison. Previously he was told it was "illegal" for any one to talk with most political prisoners without the sanction of the ministry of justice.

Demand Investigation of Death

Meanwhile, friends and relatives of Miki are demanding an investigation into the circumstances of his death, the cause of which was officially given as bright's disease. The Tribune correspondent asked to see the prison doctor who attended Miki, and was told that he is now "traveling."

In addition to the death of Miki, who taught at several universities, two other political prisoners died in Yokohama prison and one in Ibaraki prison during September. Altho Miki was never brought to trial, the charge against him was that he sheltered and gave money to a fellow political dissident sought by the police.

The Japanese official who reluctantly granted permission for the visit to Toyotama said that, of course, an interpreter would be needed and that he would be happy to provide one. Told that a nisei Japanese would be the interpreter, the official protested blandly that niseis speak "very poor Japanese," and it would be better to take his man. However, he was told with equal blandness that this particular nisei, Sgt. George Ishikawa of Seattle, Wash., spoke perfect Japanese.

We first went to the cell of Keitaro Iibuchi, 41, who was arrested in October, 1942, for writing an article on economics that violated the all inclusive clauses of the thought control laws. He has been held without trial ever since.

Prisoner Poorly Fed

Iibuchi said he was poorly fed and lost much weight, but otherwise was well treated in prison, except that he had seen his wife only seven times since his arrest.

We offered him a cigaret. He took one puff, then put it out and handed it back, explaining it is against the rules for prisoners to smoke. He is permitted to read only censored books and magazines, and is refused all daily papers. He said he was not surprised to see us, however, since he saw "many American planes from my window," and thought the Americans would come to free him soon.

At the next cell the prisoner clutched my hand and the hand of Sgt. Ishikawa's and murmured, "Thank you, thank you." The sergeant motioned the warden and two other officials away. The prisoner said he is Tsumu Nakanishi, 36, who had served three years and four months of a life sentence, which was commuted from the death penalty.

He was accused of having plotted to aid the Chinese liberation movement in Shanghai. He was held by the metropolitan police eight months, during which time he was beaten and kicked until he fainted. He has a wife and two young daughters.

The next man was Muneo Kiseki, 27. He said that while he was a student at Waseda university he read the works of Karl Marx and Adam Smith. Two years later, on July 3, 1945, he was arrested for having read the books.

Police Burn Records

He was brought to Tokyo and beaten by the military police many times in an attempt to force him to confess that he was a Communist, which he refused to do, since it was untrue. When the Americans came the police burned all the records in his case. Now he cannot be tried because there is no charge against him—but he is held, nonetheless.

He said he would like to be freed soon, so that "I can do my best to make a new world and a new Japan," and that he had been waiting "for Gen. MacArthur to come to give us freedom."

The "thought control" or "peace preservation" law was first passed in 1925, and since amended to include provisions that the death penalty is possible for any one forming an organization advocating a change in government. It also provides a penalty up to 10 years for any one advocating a change in the system of private enterprise.

The thought control police are headed by Eiki Okazaki, a fat man with an oily smile, who has held the post since April. He said he still has 3,000 men in his department, unchanged since the war ended.

Told that his department is "not highly regarded in the United States," Okazaki and his four assistants burst into laughter.

When asked to prepare a list of political prisoners arrested since 1931, Okazaki laughed again. Asked whether this was because there were so many of them, he smilingly agreed.

"That's the new automatic scratcher for sunburned backs."

JAVA'S 'PRESIDENT' WON'T NEGOTIATE WITH DUTCH ALONE

BATAVIA, Java, Oct. 1 [Delayed] —(AP)—President Soe Karno of the 47 day old "Republic of Indonesia," which claims the support of millions of natives in the Netherlands East Indies, said today he would negotiate with allied representatives but not with the Dutch alone.

"We do not recognize any Dutch return to power and we will not deal with the Dutch," the white-robed Soe Karno said. "Our republican government practically rules the country.

"We will appeal to the great powers for immediate freedom. We want at least the same position as the Philippines, with technical equipment and aid from the allies."

Vice President Mohammed Hatta of the native republic added:

"We had three and a half centuries of Dutch colonization and three and a half years of Japanese imperialism. That's enough."

British occupation forces have been trying to get the native independence leaders and Dutch officials together for conferences.

AUTOISTS URGED TO SPEED VISITS TO SAFETY LANE

An appeal to the 48,243 motorists who are due to have their cars inspected at the city's six testing lanes this month to come in early and avoid crowding at the end of the month was issued yesterday by Edward J. Gorman, public vehicle license commissioner.

About 4,200 cars were tested on Monday, the first day of the month, Gorman said, pointing out that cars that were last inspected in April are due for reexamination this month.

Gorman disclosed that 20,238 automobiles rejected for mechanical defects in the last six months have never returned for inspection.

BARES ROMANIAN TRIAL OF 33 ON PLOT CHARGES

[Following is another dispatch from a Tribune correspondent who has just toured the Russian occupied Balkan countries and returned to Naples, Italy, to write without censorship.]

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 2—Late last August the Romanian Siguranza police announced they had unearthed a conspiracy of young liberals to overthrow the Petru Groza government and assassinate Anna Pauker, Moscow's leader in Bucharest.

Ten days later, 33 alleged conspirators, members of two organizations, known respectively as Free Youth and "T," were placed on trial.

The trial is still the talk of Bucharest, but news of it has been suppressed by the censor for the outside world and Romanian government controled papers are forbidden to comment on the verdicts.

Tell of Roundup

Here is what appears to be the facts of the case as disclosed at the trial:

Late in July the Siguranza police began rounding up Free Youth and "T" members. Included were Mircea Stefanovici, leader of Free Youth, and Remus Tetu, leader of the "T" organization. Another was a handsome young woman, Adriana Georgescu, who had been chief of the cabinet of Gen. Nicolae Radescu. Radescu's government was ousted last March by Moscow and replaced with the Groza regime.

A month later, after the prisoners had been subjected to gruesome and harrowing tortures, according to court tsetimony, the police announced that the 33 had confessed to subversive acts aimed at upsetting the Groza regime.

Among other charges against the accused were that they had been in contact with British and Americans and were in possession of information that conflict would eventually break out between the Russians and the western allies. They denied this.

Court Chief Freed

The trial began on Sept. 10. The president of the court was a Col. Petrescu who was under detention. Sept 7 he had been released on condition that he agree to preside at the court martial with the alternative that if he did not he himself would be tried as a war criminal. Two other judges had refused to have anything to do with the trial after they read the evidence.

The court was cleared on the second day to let the prisoners testify to atrocities and tortures inflicted on them by the Siguranza. Police Inspector Bulz was named as being especially brutal.

Tell of Beatings

Tetu testified he had been beaten on the feet and received other sadistic tortures. Adriana Georgescu testified she had been beaten and raped and was with child. Constantin Dragoi said he had been kept in a dungeon for two and a half days without food and water.

All the accused denied their activities had been political.

After four days of hearings, the court sentenced Tetu to seven years in prison, Stefanovici to one year, and Adriana Georgescu to four years. All the others, except four, were sentenced to terms of one month to seven years.

CODE INCREASES BUILDING COSTS 20 TO 50% HERE

City Lowers Demands on War Housing

(The following article is the third in a series reporting a survey of the Chicago building code and building trades to determine whether the regulations encourage or dismay the family planning to build a home.)

BY LEWIS HUNT

One specific purpose of the survey of Chicago's building code by THE TRIBUNE was to learn the extent to which it affects the cost of building. Because the code is the city government's statement of the least it will accept to assure safety and sanitation in building, the question boiled down to whether existing standards are arbitrarily excessive or reasonably liberal.

No one disputes that the code must protect the community against hazardous and insanitary building and that these safeguards must be adequate. But, as reported in previous articles in this series, experience with the Chicago code since its passage in 1939 has resulted in a general opinion among builders that its margins of safety are unreasonably high. In some instances, these margins serve as protection for certain building materials and labor practices beyond the needs of public welfare.

High Costs Recognized

The city council recognized the code's effect on costs when it adopted, Aug. 5, 1942, the federal housing administration's minimum requirements as a temporary code amendment to promote single dwelling construction for war housing. In the amending ordinance it was stated:

"Whereas, it is well known and acknowledged that the cost of construction in the city of Chicago for war housing could be substantially decreased and costs brought within the limits established by national housing officials if building code requirements could be adjusted quickly to the national emergency and small construction go ahead with all materials and types of construction which reasonably protect the health, safety, comfort, and welfare of the public. Unless immediate flexibility and adjustment of minimum requirements is accomplished, residential construction in the city . . . will cease and housing shortages and the movement to the suburbs and to other cities will be accelerated."

Modification Lowers Cost

By adopting the FHA minimums, the council approved the use of many cost-saving materials and devices that are excluded by the city code. The aim was to provide a house within the national war housing limit of $6,000 and satisfactory to a common sense degree.

Use of some substitute materials was dictated by the unavailability of standard items listed as critical in the war effort, but the net result was a demonstration that building costs could be lowered by modifications in the code.

Among concessions granted by the temporary ordinance were:

Wood frame construction, "dry wall" substitutes for lath and plaster, an electrical wiring system less expensive than the code's standard requirement, lighter sheet metal for heating pipe and flues, insulation fiber board for outer wall sheathing, plywood for sheathing and sub flooring, and more liberal terms for brick walls where masonry construction was used.

Limited Neighborhoods

The amendment limited these war housing homes to neighborhoods with similar building types by stating they could not be built in "established residence districts which are developed with buildings of greater value."

Homes built under the amendment, now three years old, are regarded as having proved to be good values for the price. Building industry leaders believe a great demand for houses of this grade will continue and that the city should approve them permanently for certain areas.

Unless some relaxation is made in this direction, builders declare, many families of modest means will be unable to build in Chicago.

Experience with the FHA regulations also is viewed as a demonstration that Chicago's standards for residential building are excessive compared with requirements elsewhere. It also is pointed out that FHA's successful nation-wide record has been made by approving generous loans on homes built to low, common sense specifications. The government, it is said, bets its money that these houses are good.

Survey Seeks Comparison

In making its survey, THE TRIBUNE endeavored to get from architects, builders, and material handlers a close comparison between the cost of building a medium priced home in Chicago and in cities with more liberal building codes. Their estimates ranged from 20 to 50 per cent more in Chicago.

Those whose figures were lower declared Chicago's high requirements were the principal factor. The others said they could not determine the exact extent to which the code increased costs, but they agreed that code liberalization would lower costs noticeably.

Code revision to bring home building within the means of families with modest savings would mean trimming a few dollars in cost from each of many items. Plumbing installed as recommended by the National Bureau of Standards is cited as being $100 less expensive in a small home than the system of pipes required by the Chicago code. Similar savings could be realized by adoption of the same level of standards for other parts of the building job. Altogether, these reductions would make home building possible for many families that could not afford it under a strict code.

Code for Single Dwellings

Builders emphasize that the largest group wanting to build homes is made up of families whose means are limited, including ex-service men with their GI bill loans. Code liberalization is urged especially in consideration of these families. The need to figure all possible means of reducing or holding down building costs is urgent now because of increases naturally expected to come with the anticipated building boom.

One suggestion considered in the building industry in Chicago is that the council take the FHA or some other basic code and adapt it as a manual for single dwellings apart from the general code. Besides its practical effect, such action by the council would display a spirit of leadership, which the present code, its severest critics assert, entirely lacks.

[Another article in the survey will be printed in an early issue of The Tribune.]

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

October 2, 1945

FROST blanketed Iowa over the week-end, catching more than half of the corn crop at an immature stage. Illinois corn is in danger of sustaining similar damage. Consequently, wise farmers are laying out temporary silos to store their soft corn crop.

Probably the most satisfactory temporary silo is one made out of snow fence or wire. Sections of snow fence tied together, one on top of the other, will make a silo of any desired height. Lined with sisal paper, the silo will keep ensilage in good condition. Wire fencing lined with the paper also makes an adequate silo.

Way to Fence Silo

In setting up a temporary fence silo, one must make sure it is built on level ground. It should not be less than 10½ feet in diameter, for anything smaller is not practical. The height of the silo after the silage has settled should not be greater than the diameter. The silage should be distributed evenly in the silo and tramped down firmly. Be sure there is enough slack in the paper so that the fence and not the paper bears the weight of the silage content.

Cross section of a trench silo. Dug in the ground, it affords a good method of handling soft corn.

A fence silo 10½ feet in diameter and three fence sections tall will hold 16 to 20 tons of silage. A silo 20 feet in diameter and five sections tall will hold between 80 and 100 tons.

The fence silo should not have doors cut in it, and farmers must make sure the paper does not have tears or holes. It must be airtight. When the paper is placed inside the fencing, it should not be in strips more than 15 feet long. Each strip should overlap the next one by at least a foot. This permits the paper lining to expand as the fence stretches with the settling of the silage.

Let Silage Settle

When a second fence section is to be added, it should be tied to the first section with binder twine, making sure the wooden slats touch each other. After the second section is filled, cut away the binder twine. The slats must not be fastened together permanently, as this will prevent the silage from settling well.

A trench silo, as shown in the diagram, can be dug with a slip or bulldozer without much trouble. The dirt walls should slope to prevent caving and the silo should be placed on high, well drained land. Plenty of water should be added to the silage, especially where it touches the dirt, to prevent spoilage.

In the trench silo, the silage should be heaped above the top of the ground to allow for settling. The silage should be covered immediately when the trench has been filled. A foot or so of wet straw or chaff makes a good first covering. This should be tramped and packed well. When the silage has finished settling a final covering may be added. This may be of straw about 3 feet deep, with logs or poles to weight it down. Earth may take the place of straw.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

HYBRID varieties of tomatoes and cucumbers, grown in the Wheaton farm gardens this year for the first time, proved to be outstanding in flavor and productivity. These are the Fordhook hybrid tomatoes, both yellow and red types, and the Burpee hybrid cucumber.

The farm gardener will provide additional space for the hybrid tomatoes next season as a result of this year's test. The fruits have been firm, with a mildly acid flavor, and were less susceptible to cracking than other varieties. The plants are vigorous, and survived plant diseases that were common in this unusually wet season.

The hybrid cucumbers, like the tomatoes, were vigorous growers, with high resistance to bacterial wilt disease. The cucumbers have been large, and retain their firmness over a long harvest period. Reports on other vegetable varieties grown this season will be published in succeeding articles.

A free copy of the rules will be mailed to each applicant. A copy may be obtained by filling out and returning the adjoining form.

The contest closes Dec. 15. To encourage home building in the Chicagoland area, it offers 24 prizes of $1,000 each for the best solutions of three home-building problems presented by typical families.

Paul Gerhardt Jr., president of the Chicago chapter, American Institute of Architects, is chairman of the jury of awards. The institute has ruled that its members are permitted to enter the contest.

Winning designs will be reproduced in color in THE TRIBUNE during the winter.

FROST WILL NIP SOME AREAS OF SUBURBS TODAY

A light frost in the western suburbs this morning was predicted by Forecaster E. S. Hanlon last night.

"It should not be too threatening to crops except, perhaps, in low spots," he said. "Tomato leaves may turn, for instance, but not the fruit. Corn should not be affected."

The frost threat was general west of Illinois to and including eastern Iowa, Forecaster Hanlon said. Temperatures in Chicago today should rise to the middle 60s, slightly below normal, and skid to the 40s early tomorrow. The outlook for today and tomorrow is fair.

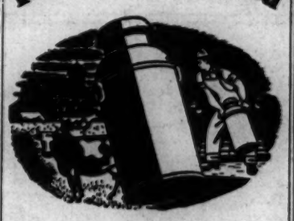
Full Speed Ahead



ON FARMS

Here's one industry that has no reconversion problem. Peak farm production will continue without even a temporary let-down. Hundreds of thousands of discharged veterans will go to work on farms as soon as they return home. Cash income to farm owners and employees will continue at an all time high.

Farmers have a huge backlog of spendable cash. Assured prices of agricultural products make the farm market the brightest spot in America to absorb industry's flow of all kinds of merchandise.

In the top half agricultural counties of the nation—the Gold Counties—farmers received 81.4 percent of the nation's cash farm income last year. FARM JOURNAL has over 80 percent of its 2½ million circulation in these Gold Counties. Half a million more than any other farm publication.

NAVY TO SEND 1,800,000 HOME IN 11 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—The navy estimated today that approximately 1,800,000 navy, marine, and coast guard officers and men will be brought home from the Pacific before next Sept. 1.

When the withdrawal is complete, only approximately 200,000 navy and marine officers and men will be on duty in the Pacific. All will be replacements, since the number to be returned is about equal to the number now on duty in the Pacific.

More than 300 naval vessels, with a combined capacity of about 500,000 men, have been assigned the job of bringing men home.

The navy also announced it will release reserve officers lacking two points or less for discharge if they cannot be profitably reassigned to other duties. It estimated that fewer than 1,500 officers would be affected.

The navy also plans to place approximately half of 33,000 regular navy enlisted men, who hold temporary appointments as warrant or commissioned officers, on inactive duty or discharge them.

SUPREME COURT HELPS VETERAN LAW ASPIRANTS

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday announced the reenactment of a rule in force after World War I. by which service men or veterans will be permitted to take the bar examination after two years of study, instead of the usual three.

The announcement was made in a letter from Justice Francis S. Wilson of Chicago to Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, who benefited from the rule in 1917.

"The amendment to the rule will help service men whose studies have been interrupted by their war service and will be a definite incentive to returning service men to pursue their originally chosen profession," Judge Harrington said.

"There may be a lost generation of professional men, if colleges and universities do not revise their courses to shorten the time needed for degrees in the cases of men whose education has been interrupted by the war."

CLOTHING TAKEN FROM STORE

Joseph Cohen, 16 S. Canal st., Monday told police that burglars had stolen 10 men's raincoats, 30 pairs of shoes, 100 pairs of socks, 30 shoe ration coupons, and $72 from his store at that address.

"Can't you think of anything but flying? You've got me wishing I was back in the air force."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Oct. 3—The Battle of Corinth, Miss.

ONE of the hardest fought battles of the Civil war campaigns in the west began on Oct. 3, 1862, at Corinth, in northeastern Mississippi, where the Union forces, under Gen. William S. Rosecrans, were entrenched.

In the spring of that year the Union armies had cleared Kentucky and west Tennessee of the enemy. The Mississippi was open as far as Vicksburg. But Gen. Grant, commanding in western Tennessee, was pinned to the ground because his army was seriously depleted, and Gen. Earl Van Dorn, the Confederate commander in Mississippi, began a well conceived movement to destroy Grant's left flank at Corinth.

Grant ordered Rosecrans to hold his fortified position until the enemy assault failed, and then to assume the offensive. Van Dorn's Confederates, about 22,000 strong, formed for the attack three miles northwest of Corinth. By feinting on the Union left, they managed to draw troops there from the right. Then they attacked strongly on the right, gaining two miles and capturing two guns. Darkness ended the fighting, which was resumed the next morning, an intensely hot day.

Van Dorn, feigning a new attack, retreated instead, and Rosecrans missed his opportunity. Instead of obeying Grant's order to advance, he delayed 24 hours, and lost his chance of capturing Van Dorn's force.

Grant was about to remove Rosecrans from his command for this and earlier failures, but Halleck, the general in chief of the armies, regarded Rosecrans as the victor in the campaign and promoted him to succeed Buell in command of the army of the Cumberland.

Union losses in the battle of Corinth were 355 killed and 1,841 wounded. The Confederates listed their losses as 505 killed, 2,150 wounded, and 2,183 missing.

COMPLAINS U. S. FORGETS BRITISH ROLE IN A-BOMB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 2—The Canadian Press association, in a Washington dispatch prominently displayed in Montreal newspapers, asserted today that England "virtually fathered" the atomic bomb and complained that the United States tends to claim all credit for it.

"So far, United States authorities apart from the President seem reluctant to admit that Canada or even Britain, which virtually fathered the experiments, had much part in the atomic development," the dispatch, signed by C. R. Blackburn, said.

KRAMER DENIAL OF GAS DEATHS READ IN COURT

Calls Testimony of Mass Executions Untrue

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 2—The chief accused in the trial of war criminals at Lueneburg, Joseph Kramer, had his day in court today when for an hour and a half the court listened to a reading of his 15 page statement describing life in concentration camps in Germany, which he helped run since 1933 and until he was arrested in Belsen in the midst of corpses of 13,000 who are alleged to have died under his rule.

CHING CHOW—
THANKS TO LIL' OSWALD CHICAGO
STANLEY INK
OCT. 3

According to Kramer's statement, all the deaths in concentration camps he witnessed were "natural." Only once did he himself supervise a hanging in Munich in 1932 and in 1936 he was assigned to Dachau concentration camp where he "worked only in the office and where no death sentences were meted out. Only occasionally people were shot while trying to escape."

Then his career took Kramer to Sachsenhausen, near Berlin, Mauthausen, Natzweiler, Auschwitz, and finally Belsen. Wherever he went he always tried to take his family with him, he said.

'Guards Behaved Always'

In the huge Auschwitz camp in Poland with 80,000 to 90,000 prisoners, and Belsen with its steadily swelling number of inmates, Kramer said, he always was satisfied with the male and female SS [elite] guards. "Sometimes the female guards were too familiar with their charges while the behavior of the men was exemplary," the report said. He insisted he knew nothing of mass murders in the gas chambers there. Charges to the contrary, he said, were untrue from beginning to end.

He stressed that Berlin ordered that prisoners themselves be compelled to administer corporal punishment.

Kramer pointed out that he was decorated with the war service medal, first and second class, for his administration of concentration camps. He admitted that conditions "deteriorated in Belsen starting in February because huge transports of prisoners from eastern camps were shipped to Belsen despite the fact I had reported typhus had broken out."

Rebury Raid Victims

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 2 (AP)—Under a towering cross roughhewn from a pine tree, 24 of Lueneburg's leading Nazis were forced today to give 243 exhumed bodies of their former slave laborers the decent burial denied them when they died last April.

The victims, 80 per cent French, were being transferred from labor gangs in the Elbe estuary when an allied bombing attack caught their train in the Lueneburg yards. Many were killed in the raid. Others were shot down in cold blood.

Today, watched by an angry crowd composed largely of former internees, nazi party leaders reburied the bodies as British NCO's gave commands while the Nazis worked "at the double."

LOOT STORE OF $200 AND LIQUOR

Sam Epstein reported to police yesterday that burglars broke into his store at 1139 E. 43d st. and stole $200 and five cases of liquor.

GERMANS SLEEP ON NO BED OF ROSES: MONTY

LONDON, Oct. 2 [Reuters]—No one need be under the illusion that the German people are getting off lightly, Field Marshal Montgomery, British representative on the allied control council in Germany, said today. He gave the first authoritative British version of life in Germany in which he painted a somber picture of the situation in that country.

Speaking at a luncheon given here in his honor by the British Newspaper society, Montgomery said that only the minimum of food could be obtained in Germany, and added that in the winter there would be no coal for heating. In large towns, especially in the Ruhr, more than half the housing had been destroyed and large numbers of people were living in cellars or improvised shelters.

"I do not think that we can overestimate the difficulties with which we are going to be faced in keeping Germany running this winter. The damage to the railways and the inland water communications has been so great that it is extremely difficult to move even what stocks of coal and food we have from one part of the country to another," he said.

THIS IS THE RECORD

Critics of the New Deal political machine have from time to time cast aspersions on the public morals of the metropolitan bosses who are among its followers. Now we know that there never has been an offense proved against Frank Hague, Paving Blocks Flynn, Ed Crump, or any of these other bosses, except Tom Pendergast, to compare in gross abuse of public power for personal profit with the actions attributed by the house ways and means committee to the late President Roosevelt in connection with his son Elliott's financial transactions.

This is the record. John Hartford, one of the owners of the A. & P. chain store system, was approached for a $200,000 loan to Elliott. His company may even then have been under investigation on anti-trust charges by Mr. Roosevelt's department of justice. There is no doubt at all that Patman, the New Deal congressman, was pressing his bill to put such chains as the A. & P. out of business with punitive taxes. Elliott called on Hartford and was told by Hartford that he would not make such a loan without the President's approval. Elliott got his father on the telephone. The President, Hartford testified, assured him he was entirely familiar with the transaction, thought the business proposition involved, a Texas radio chain, was a fine one and would appreciate anything Hartford could do for his son.

"I then told Elliott," testified Hartford, "I was going to make the loan and that the only reason I was making the loan was that his father practically asked me to make it, and I further told Elliott that I was not interested in radio and that I was not asking any favors."

Jesse Jones testified before the committee that in December, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt asked him as a personal favor to see what could be done about Elliott's financial difficulties. When he reported back to the President, Jones said, he was asked to confer with Elliott's creditors. He then dickered with Hartford and advanced $4,000 of his own funds, which as yet have not been repaid, to settle Hartford's $200,000 loan and recover the radio stock which Elliott had pledged as collateral.

[Hartford testified that he was incensed and disturbed when he was offered the settlement on the assurance "that Elliott was broke, the collateral stock was no good, and the President was worried about Elliott's finances."]

Jones gave the released collateral to the President, who personally transmitted it to one of Elliott's divorced wives. It is now, according to the record of the committee's hearing, worth $100 a share. The record well justifies the conclusion of Rep. Jenkins, a minority member, who commented in the report:

"All thru the testimony there runs evidence of the smooth manipulation of the President and the crafty horse trading of Jesse Jones. They were anxious to get the stock back and led Hartford to believe it worthless, yet immediately after these transactions the stock began to advance in value."

The committee, controled by a Democratic majority, obviously was trying to whitewash the Roosevelts. The evidence was too strong to permit that. As the Republican minority says, many things were passed over which should have been investigated. Elliott negotiated other loans than the one from Hartford. The committee and the treasury have as yet evaded the duty of determining his tax liability on the profits he made out of the deal, altho the revenue regulations are plain on the subject.

The record shows that John Hartford feels, and had reason to feel, that he was intimidated into making the loan to a member of the President's family. That is one Roosevelt secret that has now been exposed to the light of day. Another recent disclosure was of his personal use of government property. He closed the Catoctin recreation area, a national park, to the public and took it for himself, spending many thousands of dollars of public money for his comfort and establishing a marine guard around the reservation to keep the taxpayers out.

In short, Mr. Roosevelt was publicly and privately dishonest.

PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION

President Truman, 10 days after he took the oath of his present office, recommended to congress that it revise the law governing the succession to the Presidency in the event that both the elected President and Vice President die or are otherwise disqualified for office. A gauge of the wisdom of his recommendation was the general relief in the country a short time later, when he nudged Secretary Stettinius out of the state department. The obviously inept Stettinius would, under the provisions of the present act, have succeeded to the Presidency had anything happened to Mr. Truman.

The Communists and other radicals patently had the succession statute in mind when they began beating the drums for Henry Wallace for secretary of state. They hoped lightning would strike twice in the same place.

The country has been without a Vice President 15 times in its history. The question of succession has been debated every time. President Truman recommended that congress abandon the statute of 1853, under which members of the cabinet would succeed, and return to the system provided by the first congress, which was that the president pro tem of the senate, then the speaker of the house, should succeed to the Presidency if both the President and the Vice President should die.

Mr. Truman held properly that no man should be President who had not been elected by the people. The officers of the houses of congress are, of course, elected, but not with the Presidency in mind, and on a historical basis secretaries of state have, on the average, proved better Presidential material than either of the two legislative officers.

Mr. Truman also recommended that if the vacancy for the Presidency were for more than two years and three months, provision be made for a special election in the off-year congressional election. This also is a wise recommendation, but it, as well as the proposal to have the president pro tem of the senate and the speaker succeed, runs into constitutional objections.

The Constitution provides that congress shall have the power to declare "what officer" shall succeed in the contingency, and there is legal doubt whether senators or representatives are officers of the government in the constitutional sense. A special election might run afoul of the constitutional provision that the President's term shall be four years. Thruout more than 150 years of debate on the question these questions of constitutionality have been raised repeatedly. A better solution would be to submit a constitutional amendment on the subject.

That would have further advantages. The value of the two term tradition was never more strongly demonstrated than after Mr. Roosevelt broke it. Since it is no longer a tradition, it must be made law, which necessarily must be by constitutional amendment. President Truman's suggestion to hold a special election to fill the vacancy is sound. If the two term limit were adopted and provision made for a special election, the designation of the interim occupant of the office would become of minor importance.

"WE WERE HEARTSICK"

The fact that food handling at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanatorium was to be investigated by a committee of restaurant owners was well advertised. Numerous complaints had been printed by THE TRIBUNE that the food was not fit to eat and that tubercular patients, whose very survival depends on a nourishing diet, had to subsist on meals smuggled in by their relatives or surreptitiously cooked by themselves in their rooms. When the restaurant committee chairman reported on what his committee found, his observations bristled with indignation.

"We were heartsick . . . enormous quantities of food . . . simply could not be eaten . . . decayed meat . . . the woman in charge insisted on cooking it. . . . I have seen restaurant owners like that—and they go broke . . . there is no excuse for anything like that."

Now this is hardly an elevated view of the matter, but it does seem that a hospital administration with the slightest claim to competence would, knowing that it was going to be inspected, clean house, if only until the inspectors had left. That was one reason why we thought and said that nothing much would come of the restaurant men's investigation. We were wrong. The sanatorium authorities couldn't even clean up temporarily, when they knew they were under observation.

They must have thought that Mr. Isbell and his colleagues on the committee were coming out there to give them a coat of whitewash. They were wrong. The Isbell committee did a good job within the limits of its members' experience and its instructions. In the face of its findings, the need for a complete change in the management of the sanatorium becomes obvious. The need for change extends to the trustees of the institution, who are responsible for the management.

There must be a further investigation, by impartial and professionally trained sanitarium and hospital administrators. A housecleaning can, at best, correct only bad practices. It won't necessarily result in the adoption of the best possible practices for treating tuberculosis. That is what the patients at the sanatorium and the taxpayers of Chicago who support it deserve and should have.

THE NORTHERN

It is customary when writing about the northern pike to add his Latin name in parenthesis. This is done to show that the writer hasn't confused him with some other fish. It would be more serviceable to substitute snake, jackfish, and half a dozen other contemptuous aliases because then everybody and not just the curators would know what was meant.

At any rate, the northern pike, snake, or jackfish isn't the contemptible creature that his pseudonyms would suggest. We are thinking of him now, not as something to catch, but as something to eat. He is ugly and coated with slime, but his flesh is firm in texture and delicate in flavor. The bones, like those of the shad, are a nuisance, particularly when the specimen is small, say under five pounds. The bigger the fish gets, needless to say, the less troublesome the bones become. They are no trouble at all at 8 or 10 pounds.

If the northern pike [snake or jackfish] were native to France, he would be world famous among epicures. Sauces would be dedicated to him. Poems would be constructed in his honor. Special courses of instruction would be instituted in the methods of cooking him. Cold boiled is very fine. Baking is best.

The northern pike is despised because he is generally found in the same waters with bass and muskie; he is far more numerous than either, and pound for pound a good deal less fun to catch. He makes two or three lunges to the bottom and then, as a rule, quits. But don't let any one tell you that the big ones can't put up a battle, not such a battle as can be expected from a muskie of the same weight, to be sure, but nevertheless a battle to be remembered. The northern is no left half back among fish, no open field runner. He is just a first rate guard, fast, heavy, and perhaps not too bright.

But very fine eating, as was noted above.

Photos of the surrendering Japs show the usual high starched collars, and plenty of cuff, but no more aces up same.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE LAST PLAY

Let us speak of Shakespeare's "The Tempest," which many veteran playgoers are now seeing for the first time. It is a rare item on the professional stage, a veritable collector's piece. A young modern who frequents the school of speech productions at Northwestern university assures us that she has seen it twice, but less privileged persons, such as aged drama critics, regard it as a prime novelty.

This is generally believed to have been Shakespeare's last play, written after he quit London to become the first gentleman of Stratford. The theory is that his partners in the management of the Globe theater often coached up to Stratford to disturb the peace at New Place house with entreaties such as: "Now, see here, Bill, we need something new in a hurry, and you've got to help us." The special occasion that evoked "The Tempest" is believed to have been the court festivities which celebrated the betrothal of King James' daughter to the Elector Palatine.

There is a tradition that "The Tempest" contains Shakespeare's farewell to the career of dramatist, and scholars often accept this as a plausible idea. If such was his intention, the leave-taking should have come as an epilog, and the current production closes with a curtain speech in the mood:

. . . We are such stuff
As dreams are made on, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep.

That, however, is not the true epilog of "The Tempest," but a speech lifted from act iv., scene 1. The printed play has a formal epilog which has been deservedly thrown away.

The traditional farewell is still another earlier speech in which Prospero renounces the practice of magic, and it goes:

But this rough magic
I here abjure . . .
I'll break my staff,
Bury it certain fathoms in the earth,
And deeper than did ever plummet sound
I'll drown my book.

To which the old gang from the Globe probably answered with groans, "Say it ain't so, Bill! Say it ain't so."

OCTOBER'S WIND

How conscientiously October's wind
Explores the thickets and the tawny slopes;
He swings along on twisted grapevine ropes,
And prowls the meadowlands, frost-moccasined.
He winnows thru the grasses thoughtfully,
Tousles the asters' shaggy heads and hums
A vagrant tune to pale chrysanthemums
And watches Time transfigure bush and tree.
Selecting certain painted leaves he plans
October's gay mosaic floor; he stirs
Among the pine cones, thistledown, and burrs,
Bright beads of bittersweet and sumac fans.
At dusk he walks among the valley mists
Where wraiths of autumn hold their silent trysts.

A Crisis in Room Service

The switchboard operator answered a call from a guest, who said:

"Give me room service. I want barrels of food. There is a refugee from a horror camp in my room. Send a double order of fried chicken, tomato juice, and two DDT cocktails."

The operator called the house detective.

"You were to be notified when the cattleman came to," she told the officer. "He has ordered food and drinks for two. Said there was a refugee——"

"Hold it," said the officer. "I'll call you back in a minute."

He did, and then told her:

"Send the cattleman what he wants. He'd been asleep a couple of days, and the first thing he did when he woke up was look in the mirror."

If you'll excuse it, just a word
Anent the humble hummingbird,

And seems to drift without a care.
But as you watch be not deceived;

No other flying things exceed.

So when untroubled folks you spy,
Remember that their ease may be
A sign of earned tranquility!

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

O. D. asks: "If a sailor is discharged and takes advantage of the 90 days allowed to apply for his old job can he draw unemployment compensation until he starts to work? How much will he get each week?"

This cannot be done. Before a veteran can qualify for the unemployment compensation of $20 a week he first must register with the United States employment service for a job. If there is no suitable job available for him he then may qualify for compensation under the so-called GI bill, but he is not entitled to compensation if he does not attend an available free course of training. This is required under regulations of the veterans administration. If the veteran does take a job and then becomes idle thru no fault of his own he is eligible for payment. No compensation is payable if the veteran takes part in a labor dispute. "Suitable" work is that which comes within the standards of state unemployment compensation laws. No work is "suitable" if the job is vacant because of a strike or if the wages and hours are below the local standard for similar work.

K. T. asks: "Does a bank have to make a loan to a veteran under the GI bill if he is eligible?"

No. Lenders can refuse without explanation to make loans. Borrowers under the GI bill must meet the lender's terms. The only restriction made by the government is that interest cannot exceed 4 per cent and loans must be paid within 20 years.

FOREIGN BODIES MAY BE INHALED OR SWALLOWED

NATURE is kind and, should we inhale a foreign body accidentally, our cough reflex is usually sufficient to bring it up. Many objects can also be gulped and lady luck is with us again, for the majority travel thru the intestinal tract without harm.

When one does become lodged in either the esophagus or a bronchial tube, a chain of exciting events occurs before it is removed. With newspaper publicity and high priorities, victims have been flown thousands of miles to specialists in this field.

An object may block the esophagus because of its size; others, such as chicken bones, may catch in a fold and actually penetrate the wall. Adults are more likely to encounter this mishap because they are rather careless in chewing, especially those with dentures. Furthermore, a child's food is inspected thoroly before it is served. Youngsters, however, may pick up coins or pins from the floor and place them in the mouth when no one is looking.

Once the material is firmly stuck in the passageway, discomfort beneath the breastbone is observed. This may be extremely painful and associated with difficulty in swallowing. Should the article be sharp, and pierce the wall, a serious infection may develop.

Foreign bodies which cling to lung tissue or a bronchial tube may create no disturbance whatsoever. Phelps cites the case of a seamstress who had about 25 pins scattered thruout her bronchial tree and was totally oblivious of the fact. But should irritation or obstruction follow, shortness of breath, coughing, or a whistling sound may be noted. It is almost a rule that any one who chokes on something and then begins to wheeze, probably has inhaled it.

One of the worst mischief makers is the navy bean which has a tendency to swell as it takes up moisture. In children, metallic gadgets and peanuts are the most common offenders.

The disorder seldom escapes detection, for most victims are aware of their plight. An X-ray is capable of demonstrating either the trespasser itself or changes subsequent to the obstruction, particularly when the air channels are involved. A specially designed tube can usually be passed into these passageways and, should the interloper be found, removal is possible at the same time. Often pins can be closed before being abstracted.

Because of the characteristic excitement associated with an accident of this type, the individual or the parents may become unduly alarmed. There is generally no emergency unless breathing is interfered with. Once the object becomes imbedded, calmness should prevail. In the circumstances, skilled aid may be sought and extraction can proceed under ideal conditions.

Watchmaker's Soliloquy

With most people a pretended interest in the exact time of day is merely a morbid form of hysteria. It's like this: Take the 10:30 complex, which seems to be a common form of this unreasoning time-consciousness, and we'll assume it's 10:30 right now. Very well, so what! Or say it's 2:17, or 4:58. All right, what of it!

Of all the useless conventions of our modern civilization, the general practice of carrying watches is about the most nonsensical. Most of us need a watch about as much as we need a set of gills or an igloo. If there must be something in the watch pocket, it might better be a skeleton key, a bottle opener, or even a horse-chestnut. If the latter will not really cure rheumatism, at least you may drop it on the floor occasionally without having to buy a new crystal or a main-spring.

Watch-toting should be restricted to a very limited group, which would include such people as train conductors. A watch always seems to lend dignity and importance to a conductor, and it fits in very pleasingly with his blue suit and brass button ensemble. But can any one suggest a single valid reason why all the passengers should go around lugging watches? If the train crew cannot bring her in on time, all the silly watches in the world won't help.

Unimportant people seem to attach the greatest importance to their watches. Did Alexander the Great pack a watch? He did not. Did Paul Bunyan? No. David and Sampson and Joshua seemed to get their chores done all right and none of them ever heard of Waterbury or Elgin or Geneva.

I know what you'll say: "What about appointments?" All right, what about them? Take an appointment with your dentist. He's getting set to give you a very painful half hour, so what can you lose by being 15 minutes late! Besides, does he worry about your time? If you play golf with a dentist you've probably noticed he's always half an hour late. This will not bother you a bit if you are 15 minutes later.

Our impoverished government could make good use of the gold and silver now wearing away in watches—the springs could be used in better mouse traps or curtain rollers. If some brave soul will start a drive to gather up all this surplus scrap, I'll kick in a watch that belonged to my grandfather. The whole thing, with log-chain and key, weighs about a pound and a half. I'd throw my own in, too, but, being a watchmaker by trade, it would seem sorta funny. Besides, I have to catch the 7:47 every morning.

PLAN FOR FOREIGN LOANS

Chicago, Sept. 27—The question of loans to foreign governments will agitate this country for months to come. Millions of taxpayers feel that they are already burdened enough. Other millions feel that the world can be saved only by loans from America, and that it is our duty to make them. This conflict may be resolved most simply and justly by our government issuing bonds secured only by the notes evidencing specific loans and not by the general credit of our government.

Say Russia wanted a loan of 6 billion dollars. She would deposit with our treasury her note for that amount, and bonds would be offered to the American public secured only by this note. When and as the loan is repaid the bonds would be paid off. Our government would act merely as a collecting agent.

This arrangement would give to those who sincerely believe that it is the duty of this country to raise the living standards of the whole world until they are equal to ours [or perhaps reduce ours until it is equal to that of the rest of the world] the privilege and opportunity of backing their beliefs with hard cash, without imposing any burden upon those whose beliefs are different.

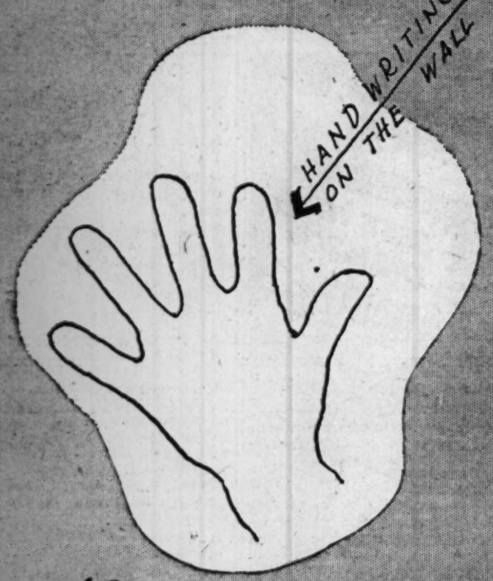
Dear public...



Things-you-never-knew-till-now-department—the hand on our wall! Ever notice the child's hand print in the middle of the mural in the Children's Playroom? (Fourth Floor—our child-parking-lot!) Edgar Miller, the artist, painted the mural. His baby son watched—then got into the paint & added his "signature!"

Poor Digestion?	☐	☐
Headachy?	☐	☐
Sour or Upset?	☐	☐
Tired-Listless?	☐	☐

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25¢.

SUES MRS. KNOX IN DISPUTE OVER PAPER'S CONTROL

Publisher Says He Was Promised Stock

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 2 (AP)—A suit with a writ of attachment for $500,000 alleging breach of trust was brought today in Hillsboro Superior court today by Navy Capt. Edmund F. Jewell against Annie R. Knox, widow of former Navy Secretary Knox, and the Union-Leader Publishing company of Manchester.

Neither Mrs. Knox nor the publishing company had any statement immediately.

Suit Asks Injunction

The suit asks for an injunction against Mrs. Knox to restrain her from wrongfully using her votes, offices, and influence to injure the plaintiff and the value of the newspaper property.

The bill of complaint, filed with the court, alleges that Capt. Jewell was induced to leave his former position as general manager and acting publisher of the Washington Times Herald to come to Manchester in 1933 to enter the employ of the Union-Leader company, which publishes the Manchester Union and Leader.

Charges Pledge of Stock

It contends that the move was made under an agreement on the part of former Secretary and Mrs. Knox to provide that all of their stock in the company should go to Capt. Jewell upon the death of the survivors of Frank Knox, Annie R. Knox, and her sister, Adelia Reed.

Since the death of her husband, the bill alleges, Mrs. Knox refused to recognize the agreement and has threatened to dispose of the stock and to oust Capt. Jewell as editor and publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader.

Angry Mob Boards Train; Beats Vichy Militiamen

Only Broadcast of the Games Offered

BY LARRY WOLTERS

For the seventh year the Mutual Broadcasting system will be the only network to carry the world series. The first game will be aired starting at 1:15 p. m. today, with W-G-N as the local outlet. Bill Slater and Al Helfer will be the specialists on balls and strikes and Bill Corum will handle other matters.

The Radio Manufacturers association estimated there will be 50 million series listeners daily this year —an increase of five million over last season.

Andre Baruch is returning to radio today after four years of war. He expects to get into producing, but for the present he will resume announcing. He joins the Andrews Sisters at 10:30 tonight over CBS. Baruch was a major in the army. One of his jobs, he says, was "to go in on the first invasion of North Africa and tell the French to lay down their arms. When they heard what I was saying they started to shoot."

Eddie Cantor will play his first dramatic role when he takes the lead in Arch Oboler's play, "Mr. Miller," the story of a little man in a bewilderingly large world, to be broadcast over W-G-N-Mutual at 10 p. m. tomorrow. "Mr. Miller" won the Harper award in 1940 as one of the 10 best radio dramas of the year.

Richard Williams, the No. 1 quiz kid in point of appearances, asked Eddie Rickenbacker this question on the air the other evening: "What is it like to face death?" His reply is worth repeating: "Death is very easy to face. When you put your toe inside the pearly gates, you find sweet music and everything is placid and serene. You know, the easiest thing in the world is to die. The hardest thing in the world is to live."

$750 WORTH OF LIQUOR STOLEN

Approximately $750 worth of liquor was stolen in a burglary at a liquor store and tavern owned by Frank Meschler at 1318 N. Spaulding av., he reported yesterday.

COMDR. MEYERS BACK TO POST AT W-G-N; GIVEN NAVY'S PRAISE

Comdr. Carl J. Meyers, now on terminal leave from the navy, has returned to his desk as chief engineer of W-G-N after three years of work on special weapons in the bureau of aeronautics. Comdr. Meyers received a letter of commendation from the chief of the bureau that said in part:

Comdr. C. J. Meyers

"The chief of the bureau of Aeronautics wishes to express appreciation for the services you have rendered to the navy and the bureau during the national emergency and war.

"First, as head of the special type section, supervising the installations of electronics equipment in experimental and special types of aircraft, and, later, as project engineer supervising the installations and over-all systems hookups of electronic equipment for guided missiles, you have made many contributions to the war effort and to the progress of the navy's air borne electronics program."

1,200 Children to Sing in Lutherans' Rally

A chorus of 1,200 children's voices directed by John Rieck, director of music at Tabor Lutheran church, will be heard in an original arrangement at the Lutheran Hour Victory rally to be held in the Chicago Stadium at 3:30 p. m. Sunday after the first broadcast of the 13th season of the Chicago Lutheran Hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 12:30 p. m. Dr. Walter A. Maier of St. Louis, Mo., will preach in the broadcast Sunday.

HELP CHEER UP BOYS IN PACIFIC, WAR FUND ASKS

Drive Chief Tells of Big USO Demand

The United Service organizations' camp shows department has been asked by the war department to provide more entertainers for the Pacific within the next three months than it has supplied that area in the last three years, Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman of the Community and War Fund drive, announced yesterday.

To lighten the boredom of the occupation troops, 86 more units with 1,200 entertainers have been requested within 90 days, he said. Since Dec. 22, 1942, 184 units with a total of 1,137 actors, dancers, singers, and other entertainers have toured the Pacific area.

How Dollar Will Be Divided

Fifty-four cents of every dollar collected by the national war fund will go to the U. S. O., Paepcke said. Twenty-nine cents of every dollar collected by the Chicago community and war fund will be given to soldier aid programs and 27 cents will go to allied relief agencies.

The Chicago fund will allocate 36 cents of each dollar for the 187 welfare agencies within the city limits, four cents for year around administration and campaign expenses, and four cents for contingencies.

War Emergency Not Over

The U. S. O. camp shows have sent overseas 686 units, including 4,378 entertainers, 282 of whom were guest personalities, Paepcke said. At present, there are 278 camp shows with 1,858 members overseas.

"The war emergency is not over and we must meet our goal of $13,040,700 to keep our boys now overseas from being homesick," Paepcke added. "This is our last war fund drive and we must make the boys feel that it is a real victory campaign."

BARKLEY OFFERS PLAN TO FINISH SEAWAY PROJECT

St. Lawrence Job Would Cost 421 Millions

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2—Construction of the 421 million dollar St. Lawrence river seaway and power project was proposed today in a resolution introduced in the senate by Majority Leader Barkley and nine other senators. A similar resolution was introduced in the house by Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.].

The resolution provides for American approval of the 1941 agreement between the United States and Canada, under which the United States would put up 277 million dollars and Canada, 144 million dollars. Canada has spent 133 million dollars fitting the Welland canal between Lakes Erie and Ontario for ocean vessels.

The project would include dams and power plants on the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence at Massena, N. Y., and a system of canals and locks for ocean going vessels. Proponents of the plan say it would increase the tonnage capacity of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence by 20 million tons annually.

Turned Down Previously

The seaway and power proposal has had a stormy history in congress, having first been defeated as a treaty in the senate in 1934. Its last appearance in the senate was in December, 1944, when it was defeated as an amendment to the rivers and harbors bill.

Today's resolution eliminates one of the principal senate objections to the 1941 agreement, the granting of perpetual navigation rights on Lake Michigan to Canada. The measure proposes that the President start treaty negotiations to secure American navigation rights on Canadian sections of the St. Lawrence in return for similar rights for Canada on the Great Lakes and connecting channels.

Another stumbling block was removed in the resolution's provision that a section calling for diversion of waters at Niagara Falls be eliminated from the agreement. Treaty negotiations on this point also were authorized.

Provides Toll Charges

The resolution would direct the President to investigate thru the state department the feasibility of making the St. Lawrence seaway self-liquidating thru the collection of tolls on the foreign commerce of the United States and Canada.

Principal opposition to the project in the senate last year was based on the contention the undertaking should be the subject of a treaty, which requires a two-thirds vote in the senate, rather than an executive agreement which can be ratified by a simple majority of both houses of congress.

Senators joining Barkley in sponsoring the resolution were Aiken [R., Vt.], sponsor of the 1944 legislation, Ferguson [R., Mich.], Hill [D., Ala.], La Follette [Prog., Wis.], Langer [R., N. D.], Shipstead [R., Minn.], Taylor [D., Idaho], Vandenberg [R., Mich.], and Wagner [D., N. Y.].

ELECT GARIPPO TO CITY COUNCIL IN 36TH WARD

Louis P. Garippo, 1650 N. Narragansett av., Democratic precinct captain, yesterday was elected alderman of the 36th ward. His vote was 11,089 to 10,026 for Frank R. Ringa, 6833 Fullerton av., former alderman and president of the Republican ward organization.

The contest was a runoff of the special election Sept. 4 to name the successor of the late Ald. Richard M. Walsh. None of the six candidates received a majority at that time.

Garippo, 41, is bailiff to Municipal Judge John R. McSweeney. He was born in France of Italian parentage and has lived in this country 35 years. He has been a resident of the 36th ward 16 years.

CHARGES GIRL, 23, STOLE HUSBAND; SUES FOR $50,000

Mrs. Ruth Janecek, 36, of 9307 S. Racine av., yesterday filed a $50,000 alienation of affections suit in Superior court against Miss Louise Brown, 23, of 6111 Kimbark av., charging her with theft of the affection of her husband, Raymond, 37, an accounting employe of an insulation firm.

Mrs. Janacek's attorney, Casimir R. Wachowski, said Miss Brown is an employe of the auditing department of the same firm. The Janeceks, who were married Aug. 23, 1933, have two children, Diana, 7, and Cynthia, six months.

The bill stated that Mrs. Janecek has been deprived of her husband's affection since Oct. 13, 1944, altho he still lives in the home with her.

TRADE PROSPECT WITH RUSSIA IS HELD EXCELLENT

Edwin S. Smith, former member of the national labor relations board and present executive director of the National Council for American-Soviet friendship, last night spoke to Chicago business and industrial executives on opportunities for trade relations with Russia, which he declared to be excellent. Variant ideologies, he said, would be no bar to expanding industrial relations between the two nations.

Smith based his opinion on a recent two months' visit to Russia, where he visited industries, collective farm projects, and oil areas. He accompanied a group of 16 scientists who were invited to Russia for the 220th anniversary of the founding of the Russian Academy of Science.

In an interview earlier in the day he told of cultural developments in Russia where, he said, the drama, music, and the graphic arts are flourishing. He said even collective farms have their theaters where plays of Shakespeare, Sheridan, and many other greater dramatists are well known.

GOOD? IT OUGHT TO BE GOOD!

Sure, the New Phillips 66 is a swell gasoline

Why Not?

We'd be ashamed of ourselves if it wasn't! Since Pearl Harbor we've put every ounce of sweat and energy we possessed into perfecting the finest combat fuels the world has ever seen.

Millions of dollars worth of new equipment ...hundreds of thousands of man-hours and brain-hours . . . weren't spent in vain!

Good gasoline? Man, it ought to be good!

And if you're one of those who aren't surprised that Phillips research and Phillips know-how have produced a world-beater of a gasoline, here's a little thought you can tuck in your hatband:

The most important thing about a Phillips 66 Service Station is still the man who runs it. Yes, he can give you fine gasoline. But he'll also give the consistently high standard of thoughtful, courteous service that has always characterized the sign of 66.

We didn't forget how to deliver that during the war, either!

Did it ever occur to you that there is more to being a model beauty shop customer than merely arriving at the shop on the minute set for your appointment? Take it from the beauty operator—there is. Of course, she appreciates a customer's arriving on time. But she also wishes the woman would either come 10 minutes early or settle down to business promptly.

We were much amused by one operator's version of the time-killing act many customers put on, but it contained some good tips on how not to act. The tips are worth passing on. According to her, the customer arrived just at the minute she was due, but spent about 10 minutes in small talk, fixing her coat on a hangar, even stopping to admire it as if she hadn't seen it before, patting into place the hair that was soon to be washed, and doing all sorts of little things which prevented the operator from steering her toward the work chair.

Settled there, the operator was just about to get busy when all of a sudden milady started rummaging thru her purse for a cigaret and decided she needed a little lipstick.

Some customers start a steady stream of conversation with much hand waving and head tossing. Others try to work crossword puzzles or catch up on their knitting. With all this, they want a first class job and are provoked if the work takes longer than the hour they had planned on. It's all exasperating and trying for the beauty operator, who usually is rushed and must work without interruption if she wants to take care of every one in proper turn.

Surely we're not all guilty of being so extremely thoughtless of the time and patience of another, but it would help if we'd remember that a beauty shop is as much a place of business as a bank and do all we can to help it run smoothly. Less talk, less dilly dallying, and a little consideration would go a long way toward making the beauty operator's life more pleasant. It also would help her to work efficiently.

Child Cannot Be Protected from World

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Most mothers feel a certain loving reluctance to see their child grow up, altho, of course, they couldn't want him to stand still in his development.

Really, it is for only a short time that they are tucked safely under your wing. Soon the world outside reaches them; little by little the influences that play upon your children become stronger, more numerous, and more varied.

This is all part of living. It also is fascinating for a mother and father to watch. But sometimes the fascination or amusement is replaced by concern or disapproval. And later there are times when you really worry about the outcome. Still if, thru the years, your child has your love, faith, confidence, and interest that, combined, may be called understanding, he'll come thru.

What made me think of this was a comment in the market the other day about the child of the butcher's customer:

"He used to be such a nice little boy, but this morning he stuck his tongue out at me. And when I told him that wasn't nice, he said, 'Shut up!' They get fresh when they get out among the kids and go to school."

A great many parents can be seen nodding their heads at that assertion. Well, I wouldn't agree sweepingly to the statement myself. They don't have to be that "fresh," but we do notice a difference in our children after they've begun school. Some may be differences we're glad to note, others we're not so happy about.

These latter changes may be the result of the influence of other children. Or they may be the result of their having a teacher who does not understand them, cannot control them, or antagonizes them, just as a desirable change may be due to a fine and understanding teacher who can guide a child individually and manage a group, too.

But whether it is school or a wider social life, we soon must admit that we can't control all the outside conditions that our boys and girls encounter. Our best bet then is to make their home life a full, rich, and important thing; to make it a place where things can be talked over.

THE QUESTION

What do you do when you get the blues?

WHERE ASKED

Civic Opera building.

THE ANSWERS

Marjorie Smith, typist, 513 S. Cuyler av., Oak Park—Ordinarily I take a shower, but when I'm feeling blue I fill up the bath tub, splash in the water, and sing songs. It carries my mind far away from anything that would make me feel unhappy. I step out all clean and refreshed, ready to battle the world again.

Pat Murtaugh, tabulator, 335 S. Taylor av., Oak Park—The weather, when it's rainy for many days, often makes me stormy. But I talk myself out of it by saying, "It won't make any difference a year from now, Cheer up, kid." If that doesn't work, my mother usually manages to convince me that it doesn't make any difference anyhow.

Mrs. Marjorie Pillsbury, secretary, Des Plaines—I sit down and write a letter to my husband and gripe about everything, and tell him how miserably the world is treating me. Thinking I've gotten it off my chest makes me feel better. Then so he won't have to worry, I tear up the letter before I mail it.

Anne Minnick, secretary, 2737 N. Austin av.—There's nothing like a grand shopping tour to cheer me up. I really go out and splurge. Then when the sun shines and the ugly clouds are gone I begin to feel pretty chipper. So I trek back to the store and return my clothes. They don't look good when I think of the money.

Ray Katz, cigar store man, 1346 Estes av.—When cigarets were hard to get we used to say a million times a day: "Sorry, I don't have any well known brands under the counter." Some days I'd be almost ready to scream, so I'd go off in a corner and have a good cry. There's nothing like it for chasing the blues.

Carl E. Miller Jr., junior clerk, 5743 N. Mulligan av.—If I'm not working and feel blue I take in a good movie. If I am working and can't get away I just sulk all day long and go to the show in the evening. When I come out I forget all about the way I felt when I went in and begin looking at the brighter side of life.

Romberg Fills Orchestra Hall for a Concert

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

There's no denying that John Q. Public knows what he likes. The affable Sigmund Romberg and his troupe came to Orchestra hall last night with a minimum of advance ballyhoo and every seat was filled and hundreds of disappointed would-be customers were turned away from the box office.

It is to be doubted that any one complained he didn't get his money's worth. Without any fuss or pretense, Mr. Romberg gets behind the ball and pushes. He is very jolly and amiable about it, and his showmanship lies in his very lack of that quality.

He ranges his small but good orchestra across the stage and directs it from the side, for no better reason that one can discover than to display his friendly aldermanic profile. If it suits him to step off the conductor's stand and walk around among the front stands, he does so, without any suggestion of the prima donna. Spotlights trail him on and off the stage, and it seems entirely natural.

His programs are as catholic as his deportment. Tschaikowsky is placed bang up against Gershwin, Debussy rubs elbows with Romberg. And Mr. Romberg's special arrangements see to it that it all sounds the way the public wants it to sound—soothing and slick, even when it's loud, just like a chain broadcast. So who are we to say it's tinsel?

Soloists are an integral part of the Romberg scheme, and the two that disported themselves during our sojourn appeared to have been selected equally for visual as well as for musical merits. Mary Becker, a tall, handsome violinist, in an open midriff gown, played two movements of the Tschaikowsky concerto, ably added Kreisler's "Schön Rosmarin" for an encore, and played the obliggato for the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria" when the tenor, Gene Marvey, got around to his encores.

Mr. Marvey also is a pictorial person, tall and handsome, with personality plus. He sang over the inevitable microphone, so it would be dangerous to say what his voice is really like, but it seemed that here is the answer to a musical comedy producer's dream.

Another tenor also made music of a more serious sort in Kimball hall last night. John Toms' recital last season marked him as that rarity among singers, a splendid musician. The only disappointment this time was that he didn't sing Handel again. But his early English songs were deftly turned, and his ambitious essay with Beethoven's long and difficult "An die ferne Geliebte" captured its elusive poetry in a highly sensitive manner. "Il mio tesoro," from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," suited his light lyric voice still better, providing a rather remarkable exhibition of breath control. William Whitaker's accompaniments were competent when they were not too pallid.

Sequel to Mrs. McCormick's Book Is in Publishers' Hands

BY JUDITH CASS

CHICAGOANS who enjoyed Renée de Fontarce McCormick's reminiscences of her French girlhood, "Little Coquette," will be looking forward to the sequel to the book, which has been sold to New York publishers and will appear next August in book form. Here from New York for a few days, the author's husband, Leander J. McCormick, is telling their friends about the new book, which carries the heroine, Simone, thru the years of World War I up to the age of 19.

At present Fitzroy Davis, who is here for a visit with his parents, the Frank Parker Davises, in Evanston, is in a flurry of writing last minute revisions for the third act of the play which he has adapted from "Little Coquette." A play of manners laid in Paris in 1912, the three-act comedy is described as a sort of French "Late George Apley." If the McCormicks carry out their plans for going abroad soon on family business, they will take along the manuscript of the play for possible marketing and production on the British stage.

Mr. Davis also is completing his own play, which has the working title of "Q No. 2" [the "Q" being for "Quicksilver," his successful first novel]. The leading role of the sculptress, he says, would be perfect for Edith Atwater, Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon's actress daughter. Between projects Mr. Davis will make a quick trip to New York to gather material for a talk on the new Broadway plays which he will give Nov. 27 in the Woman's Athletic club.

The McCormicks are hoping to have a reunion soon with her son, Thierry, who is ready to sail for home following army service in Europe. Mrs. McCormick's daughter, Mrs. William D. Fergus, is living in New York with her young son while Lt. Col. Fergus is in Japan.

Wedding News

Scarcely a dozen persons will be present at the quiet ceremony Saturday which will unite in marriage Mrs. John T. Schenck and Loring W. Coleman. The wedding will take place at 4:30 p. m. in the apartment of Mr. Coleman's mother, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, with only members of the immediate families present.

Mrs. Schenck, who lives in Chicago, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Biddlecombe of Virginia, Ill., who will be unable to come for the wedding, however. She will be given in marriage by her son, John Schenck Jr., who is stationed with the army at Fort Sheridan. Among the handful of wedding guests will be the bride's daughter, Helen Joelle Schenck; her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Vilas Kuhlman of Downers Grove, and the bride's mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert F. Schenck of Hyde Park blvd., and Mrs. Robert Schenck Jr.

Mr. Coleman's nephew, Jarvis Hunt, will serve as best man. Mrs. Hunt and their daughter, Diana, and Mrs. Coleman's granddaughter by marriage, Mrs. Walter C. Coleman, also will be present. Mr. Coleman and his bride will be at home in his Elm st. apartment.

Engagement News

Mr. and Mrs. Claburn E. Jones of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ann, to Elmer Frederick Wieboldt Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wieboldt of Charlottesville, Va., formerly of Glencoe. Miss Jones was graduated in June from the University of Michigan. Her fiancé attended Yale university before enlisting in the army air forces, from which he recently received his discharge.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. King Jr. of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Maj. Baird V. Helfrich of Peoria, Ill., son of Mrs. George V. Helfrich and the late Mr. Helfrich. Miss King, a lieutenant in the WAVES, entered the service shortly after her graduation in 1942 from Connecticut college. She has been stationed in Washington, D. C.

Maj. Helfrich, a graduate of Knox college and of the Harvard law school, recently returned from 14 months of duty in the far east. He entered the service in 1940 and was assigned as legal adviser to the state director of selective service for Illinois, later being transferred to the office of strategic services. The wedding is planned for early November.

Super-Secretary

When Kathie Keough came to T. W. A. five years ago she wasn't a "just out of school" white collar girl. She already had gained a measure of success in other fields. She had striven to become a top-notch secretary, and she was one. She even had been vice president of a small manufacturing company in Milwaukee, Wis.

Kathie viewed the aviation industry with a mature mind. It seemed logical to her that more and more people would regard flying as a practical means of traveling. The business was an enterprising and sturdy one. It didn't look like too big a gamble to begin at the bottom and work her way to the top again. It wouldn't take long, she was sure.

And so it was that Kathie found her place at the air lines office. It was no soft job, but she was right—it didn't take long to rise. She now is secretary to the general manager of the central region.

If you were to visit her office you'd recognize Kathie's desk right away. There's an air of efficiency and charm about the neat papers in systematic groups atop her desk. If she has met you before, you may be sure she will remember you and greet you with spontaneity and warmth. And if you are a newcomer Kathie will put you comfortably at ease.

Never too busy to lend a hand, never too busy to consider the problems of others, Kathie has a keen sense of fitness and fairness and an astute way of giving directions without their seeming like orders. Recently when she was presented with a five year pin this tribute was paid to her: "It means a great deal more than merely an emblem of seniority. It represents a citation of achievement, of loyalty, and of an established friendship of fellow employes."

All Black Suit to Be Important Fashion News

BY REA SEEGER

Included in the future fashion information is the news that black wool suits, unrelieved with any kind of color or contrast, are going to be tremendously important.

You'll see these suits on the sleek, meticulously groomed women, who wear ink black with enviable distinction. The suits are striking backgrounds for dramatic costume accessories—such as precious furs, excitingly high hats, and the dashing feathered creations sometimes matched with long pull-on gloves of unusual and different colors. Newest of all are the swish taffeta, the gleaming metallic, and the brocaded blouses.

The all-black suits will be severely plain. Fine seaming and expert workmanship will make the most of the fine wool fabrics. What is left of elegant broadcloth will be used, together with the finest of soft woolens—such as duvetyn or the suedelike textures. The skirts have the sheath silhouette. The jackets are fitted and slim. They are longer than the jackets for the colored suits.

There is an inimitable air of patrician suavity to the black suits, unmatched by anything in color or in colored mixtures. Blouses, furs, hats, bags, and gloves furnish the important highlights, making the finished costumes flawless. The suits are and will be perfect foils for all the sensational new hats.

Blouses of gleaming white or deep ivory satin, of chalk white crepes, of fascinating chiffons, of lace combinations, and newest of all, of dashing plaids, of striped and dotted taffetas, and of brocades provide the strongest and most exciting of contrasts imaginable for the all-black suit beauties.

The rest of the contrast trickery is worked with furs, muffs, bags, scarves, hats, and capes or stoles.

Brilliant Bergner Turns Makeshift Melodrama into a Popular Show

"THE TWO MRS. CARROLLS"

Play by Martin Vale, staged by Reginald Denham with settings by Frederick Fox and costumes by Grace Houston. Presented by Robert Reed and Paul Cuimer at the Great Northern Monday evening, Oct. 1, 1945.

THE CAST

Clemence.....Michelette Burani
Pensington.....Stiano Braggiotti
Sally.....Elisabeth Bergner
Geoffrey.....Joel Ashley
Mrs. Latham.....Eva Leonard Boyne
Cecily Harden.....Rhodelle Heller
Dr. Tuttle.....Leslie Barrie
Harriet.....Jean Platt

Elisabeth Bergner is making her Chicago début in a moth eaten melodrama as neurotic as a psychiatrist's nightmare, an amorous jumble of connubial confusion in which sinister portraits and the bedtime hot milk exhale lethal vapors, leading to such a state of nerves that Miss Bergner's screams when she discovers she is being poisoned are rivaled if not outdone by those of the audience when it sees her about to be strangled. Perhaps "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" is not for the faint of heart, but after all the town has been conditioned by Olsen and Johnson. I had a picnic at the Great Northern last night, for watching Bergner act comes under the head of one of my favorite pastimes. It might even be fun some time to see her in a play.

I am solemnly assured that she is now running the gamut of emotions, and I don't doubt a syllable of it. She begins as a lively little coquette, blissfully happy with just a wisp of hair needing to be brushed back from her enchanting little face, and before she is thru she is menaced with madness, that same hair falling in an artfully released cloud over that same fascinating face, only not quite the same at all, but pinched and pitiful with strain, because Bergner is both a frugal and a spendthrift actress. She hoards every line, every gesture, every possible shred of characterization, and plays variations on them, sometimes to the discomfiture of her troupe, but she gives the play everything she has, and that is plenty.

You can count on me not to spoil your fun by telling the story. I couldn't if I tried and you wouldn't believe me if I could, for Martin Vale has the general idea of a horror play without the skill to write it, and Reginald Denham's direction isn't much help. But Miss Bergner is a magnificent actress with extraordinary technical equipment and the charm to make you forget it. Her wide mouth, her tiny stature, her crinkling eyes, her way of worrying a line like a particularly ingratiating puppy—these things may drive her troupe quite mad, as I should think Mr. Braggiotti would be after a session of interruptions—but they are fun across the footlights. And even Mr. Braggiotti acts as if he liked it.

He also acts very well, and Joel Ashley is a handsome villain, tho in his case as in his predecessor, Victor Jory's, I wonder how he can resist diverting some of that poison to the author and director. Michelette Burani is delightful as a fat Italian cook whose kind heart is in the right house, and the others suffice, tho I regret the loss of Irene Worth of the original cast, a girl so beautiful she almost made sense of some of the playwright's nonsense.

Miss Teyte, in earlier years a celebrated Mélisande, is booked into Orchestra hall Jan. 4.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 2—Bette Davis usually gets what she wants, and let me be the first to say she should. Now she wants Henry Fonda for "Ethan Frome." That's as perfect casting as I've come across in many a day. But I don't think she'll get around to it until some time in January. . . . Ben Hecht has his leading lady for "The Specter of the Rose." She is Ballerina Viola Essen, who was born in St. Louis of Bulgarian and Russian descent. . . . From a friend of Lew Ayres in Pittsburgh, Pa.—incidentally it's a man—comes the suggestion that Lew is the only one on the screen who should play Larry in "The Razor's Edge." This fan is taking nothing from Tyrone Power as to his ability as an actor. "But," says he, "Lew has an earthy quality, and this part also requires idealism and spirituality, and nobody but Lew Ayres, who has experienced these feelings, could properly play the scenes in India where he goes to seek the truth."

More Spinach for Bob Cummings

Bob Cummings phoned me from New York City that since he's won his fight for the right to work, he'll bring suit against Universal for the money lost in all the weeks they prevented him from working. They made him turn down at least $100,000 in radio shows, I understand. "And," says Bob, "my battle was with one man in the studio. I never met Nate Blumberg, who is head of Universal, but during my first picture Executive Producer Dan Kelly came up to me and said, 'I was against hiring you. I don't think you have any talent, but Joe Pasternak thinks you have. I'm running your life here, however, and we'll go on from there.'" That isn't a very nice way to begin a happy association, and I'm surprised at Dan Kelly. Yet I know he did practically the same thing to little Elizabeth Taylor, who was so wonderful in "National Velvet." She also proved her talent. The Cummings—Bob, his brother, Oscar, and their two wives—flew to New York in a new twin-engined UC-78 bought from the army. Yes, they painted it spinach color! They ran into some bad weather en route east. In fact, the trip took so long they didn't know they'd won their case until two days after the court handed down the decision.

$60,000 Holdup on Sunset Strip

That little holdup on the Sunset strip took 60,000 smackers away from six of our local bookies. They think they know the five masked bandits who did the trick. If they do, it's going to be a very serious matter. I can remember some years back when one of our present stars who didn't know he was star material then was about to hold up one of the established stars in his studio when he was caught just in time. . . . The reason for James Caesar Petrillo's ban on Artie Shaw Sunday wasn't anything against Artie—the beef is against the network. Last year music was pulled off the Jack Benny show. Last Sunday Shaw got it. But Artie says he's been told he can go on and do one next Sunday. He tells me Petrillo is a friend of all musicians. Last year when there was a row he ruled against Shaw, but at a subsequent time made a ruling for him. Shaw was grateful and sent Petrillo a watch, which was promptly returned with a note: "I don't accept favors, and I did you no favor. I merely did what was right. I hope you'll take it back in the spirit in which you sent it." Well, that's a bright new light on Petrillo.

Spur of the Moment Improvisation

When Kay Kyser and Bob Hope muffed their lines in the Hollywood Bowl the other night they chucked the script and improvised better chatter than what was written for 'em. . . . Red Skelton has been toned down to a nub—at least he was mighty subdued at his first public appearance with wife, Georgia, at the Mocambo the other night. . . . Natalie Draper seems to think Otto Preminger's dancing is irresistible. She ought to hear what his wife says about it. . . . Frank Wolfe, 20th Century-Fox's new answer to a maiden's prayer, won a baby contest at 6 months and a blue ribbon as the most bee-youtiful cheelid when he was 4 months. He's 22, blond and handsomer than Stirling Hayden. His first picture will be Andy Lawler's "Too Beautiful to Kill," if the navy surrenders him in time, and sister, that's just what he is! . . . Stuart Cheney will do John Steinbeck's fantasy, "Wizard of Maine" in New York this fall. . . . 20th Century has another unpublished novel along the lines of "Keys of the Kingdom." It's titled "These Two Hands" and is by Father E. J. Edwards. . . . Ross Hunter chaperoned Judy Canova's hilarious "Hit the Hay" party. Frankie Sinatra, in overalls, had all the farm girls swooning.

Badge of Success in Hollywood

First thing the Cornel Wildes did when both signed contracts at 20th Century—he got a new one and she signed her first—was to go out and buy Norma Talmadge's lovely home in Benedict canyon. Sure, it has a swimming pool—that's the badge of success here. Their old house in Beverly Hills is now for sale. . . . Bob Rhodes, who sees the future in ice cubes where most guys see only a cloudy present, pens me from Wadsworth Veterans' hospital, where he's prognosticating to kill the tedious hours. Rhodes, who prophesied last August that Sept. 2 would be V-J day, says among other things: "Joan Crawford will get the Academy award for 'Mildred Pierce,' and Ray Milland will win with 'Lost Week-End.'" birthday anniversary of Mrs. Lowman's mother, Mrs. Howard Vincent O'Brien of Winnetka who is in Carmel. Coincidentally, Mrs. O'Brien received a letter from Mr. O'Brien postmarked Sept. 20 from Chicago on the same day that one bearing the same date and postmarked Tokyo came from Lt. Lowman.

Today's Events

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Waldo Logan, Mrs. Arthur Wakeley, Mrs. Richard Culver, and Mrs. Edmund F. Mansure will pour tea at the Illinois Opera Guild's benefit opera fashion showing, "Thru the Opera Glass," at 5:30 p. m. today in the 28 Shop of Marshall Field & Co. Bidu Sayao, who will sing in "Manon" in the opening performance Monday of the Chicago Opera company, will be the special guest at the party. Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone is chairman of the benefit.

Mrs. George F. Hartford, president of Bundles for America, will hold open house from 2 to 5 p. m. in her River Forest home to benefit the organization's fifth and last Christmas stocking drive. Mrs. Charles M. Smith of Palatine will serve as co-hostess. She is chairman of the Chicago branch of the organization which is continuing its war time services because of the great demand of service men's families for clothing and layettes.

The first fall meeting of the Glencoe Junior center of the Infant Welfare society will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the Glencoe home of Mrs. Walter Norris.

The Hinsdale Senior center of Infant Welfare will present a fashion show and book review by Florence Bourke Ellis at 2 p. m. today in the Hinsdale Community house.

Here and There

The woman's guild and auxiliary of Christ church, Winnetka, will feel a special glow of pride in the speaker at its all-day meeting today, for she is Capt. Dorothy E. Gerhard of the army nurse corps, daughter of the church's rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, and Mrs. Gerhard. Following luncheon at 12:30 p. m. in the parish house, Capt. Gerhard will speak on "The GI and the Nurses' Corps."

Capt. Gerhard arrived Sunday from Halloran General hospital on Staten Island, N. Y., where she has been resting after arduous service in Africa, Sicily, and Normandy. Her hospital unit service was with the 1st division, and during the battle of the bulge retreated from its headquarters just an hour before the Germans entered it. Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard, who arranged today's program, frequently had word thru Capt. Gerhard of her son, Corp. Joseph D. Ballard, who was with a front line ordnance unit servicing the 1st division. Corp. Ballard now is on his way home from Europe.

Being welcomed back to the runway of the St. Luke's fashion show this year is Mrs. John R. Winterbotham. She is among the 145 amateur models who will show the latest fashions, including a superb platin mink coat, the afternoon of Oct. 17 in the Medinah temple, 14 E. Ohio st.

Dr. Fishbein Gives Warning Against T. B.

Tuberculosis will become a national menace unless the thousands of new victims discovered during the war are given care and treatment sufficient to stop the disease, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, warned last night.

Dr. Fishbein spoke at a dinner meeting in the Standard club launching the annual fund raising drive of the Chicago committee of the National Jewish hospital at Denver, Colo.

"Few states today possess the minimum number of sanatorium beds for the treatment of tuberculosis," he said. "The need for sufficient beds and adequate staffs is greater than ever before.

"The large increase in known cases of the disease during the war years was the result of intensive medical examinations conducted by the armed forces, by industrial organizations, and by the United States public health service cooperating with local health departments and tuberculosis associations."

The Chicago committee, composed of prominent civic and business leaders, has set a goal of $40,000 for this year's fund campaign. Melvin L. Straus is chairman.

State Eastern Star Convention Draws Delegation of 4,000

The 71st annual convention of the Illinois Grand chapter of the Eastern Star was opened yesterday in the Medinah temple with 4,000 delegates in attendance. An address of welcome by Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton, right worthy grand conductress of the General Grand chapter, opened the session. Mrs. Hamilton is slated to head the Eastern Star world organization at the close of 1948.

Special tribute was paid both by the Red Cross and the Eastern Star to Mrs. Reed Eagle of Chicago for her work in directing the society's Red Cross activities. In addition to the order's donation of $15,000 to the Red Cross, thousands of gift articles were made by Eastern Star members for families of men in service, a room in the Vaughan General hospital was furnished at a cost of $1,000, around 450 gift bags at a cost of $5 each were given at Christmas time to the Dwight General hospital, and more than a million Red Cross surgical dressings were made.

Today's sessions will be devoted to business, including an election of officers. Installation ceremonies tonight will close the meeting. Mrs. Anton Thompson is slated to succeed Mrs. James Breedlove of Arcola as head of the state organization.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Nora W., Chicago—A Dutch door can be put to good use in a small child's room, I've found. The upper half can be kept open for ventilation, and yet there is no danger of the child's leaving the room.

Mrs. E. A., Evanston—I use the cold water and glycerine treatment to remove tomato juice or catsup stains. I sponge the spots first with cold water, then work glycerine into the stain. I let the glycerine stand for half an hour and then wash the garment with soap and water.

Mrs. Bill P., Racine, Wis.—When closing up our summer cottage I suspend all pillows by hanging them at their corners on lines strung across the room. This prevents them from rusting as well as keeping them from mice.

If the technique of the squeeze is one of the most involved in the declarer's repertory of advanced plays, proper counter-attack against such measures is easily the most difficult of defensive maneuvers. It's the diagnosis that's the big thing. Observe East's technique in today's hand. He appeared to be operating with the aid of radar.

The bidding is given as it actually took place and the final contract of five diamonds is reasonable enough, tho it will be observed that as the cards are a contract of four hearts, it could have been fulfilled with ease. But South's singleton heart rendered it somewhat difficult to reach such a contract.

West chose to open the king of spades, altho modern practice is to lead low from such a holding. Receiving the encouraging nine from partner he continued the suit and East was in with the ace. At one of the tables where this hand was played East shifted to a club and declarer fulfilled his contract by running off all his trumps. West in order to hold protection in hearts elected to unguard the club queen and declarer picked up the balance of the tricks by refusing the finesse in clubs. The result would have been the same if West had kept the queen of clubs guarded for then he would have been obliged to let go hearts and dummy would have become good.

At the table which now engages our attention, East indulged in a little counting before leading to trick three. The bidding marks South with a six card diamond suit and he has presumably only four clubs. He has already followed to two spades which leaves him but a single heart. Since West is the only defender that can stop both hearts and clubs, East realized that his partner would be caught in the vises of a squeeze if he were compelled to guard both suits. The way to prevent such action was to disconnect dummy from declarer's hand. This he did by returning the jack of hearts. Since dummy could no longer be reached late in the play, West was at liberty to let go his hearts and keep the queen of clubs guarded. Declarer was therefore obliged to go down one.

NECKLACE MISSING

When Mr. Izenga reached his house he found Erica lying on a chaise longue on the porch. She wore a pale green linen, tailored dress, with sandals to match. Her left wrist was encased in a long cuff of thick leather. In her right hand she held a frosty glass.

"There's more in the pitcher." She gestured toward the table. "Have some."

"No thanks." Mr. Izenga threw his hat toward the sofa. He sat down near her.

"How did you hurt yourself?"

"It's nothing. Forget it."

"Is it sprained? Did you go to the doctor?"

"Yes. It has had all the attention it needs and is perfectly all right. I simply took a tumble on the stairs. . . ."

"Fell . . . on the stairs? Erica, how could you be so careless?"

"O, it wasn't entirely my fault. Some one had left a heap of magazines there."

"But Erica, this is serious."

"Wait. I'll tell it all, and then we won't discuss it any more. The telephone rang downstairs last night, the one in the library that has no extension. I let it ring then thought maybe it was Toby, so ran down to answer it. And I fell over the aforesaid magazines. I sprained my wrist."

"And was it Toby?" he asked.

"Humph? Why no, that's the funny part. I said hello. An I distinctly heard some one hang up. Wrong number!"

"Wrong number! Erica, someone was deliberately trying to injure you. I think there should be a guard in the house."

"There you go," she jeered.

"But it's so obvious, my dear."

"Look." Erica finished her drink. "If you can get your imagination off my wrist I have something really important to discuss with you."

"Very well. What is it?"

"I've spent the afternoon, in fact I lunched, too, with Mr. Ellinger," Erica began rather seriously. "He seems to assume he will go right on managing my affairs. I didn't say anything. I don't know what Toby will want me to do."

"Is Newcomb going to be master in your house?"

"I'm going to consult with Toby on everything I do. It will be hard enough to get him to overlook this new money from grandmother."

"My dear, don't you think you and I could discuss this young man of yours a little without getting into trouble?"

She smiled lovingly. All her life he had guided, restrained, soothed and championed her. She nodded.

"Of course. Toby's a very wonderful person. And you are, too. I know you'll like each other when you really know one another."

"No doubt you are right, my dear. But just now, I want to know how does Newcomb stand with the police? You know your grandmother did accuse him of attacking her. . . . O, I'm not saying she was right. But what did the police think and say?"

"Well," Erica began, "Toby told them everything, himself. He was completely frank with the lieutenant. He told how he was waked up by a knock and found this note shoved under his door."

"Did he open the door?"

"Yes. But the hall was dark and by the time he'd got the light lit nobody was there. You know the guest bedrooms are on the third floor. He read the note. It asked him to come down to Gran's sitting room. It said she couldn't sleep and wanted to talk to him. So he dressed and went down. Toby had saved the note. He told them he had only started rapping on Gran's sitting room door when she dashed out of the bedroom one and started screaming at him. At first he thought she was crazy. Then he thought she was framing him. He told the lieutenant all that. And about the ring. I remember now, distinctly, that the set was chrysoprase. There weren't any flecks on it. I was hardly conscious that morning. It wasn't fair to attack me with questions at a time like that. I've told the lieutenant since that I remember the ring. But of course it's too late, now."

"But Newcomb is at large, my dear. He isn't under lock and key."

"He might as well be. He says some one follows him night and day," Erica exclaimed indignantly. "It's worse than jail . . . almost. O, but I'm tired! Mr. Ellinger and I spent the afternoon going over grandmother's safe deposit boxes. [Erica had been appointed an executor along with Mr. Izenga and Ellinger.]

"We checked bonds and stocks and insurance policies and heaven knows what else, till my head ached. And Uncle Bennet needn't worry about Lucianna. We found a release signed by her that covers everything under the sun. You had a hand in that!"

"I never liked Lucianna from the moment I saw her. It has been a great pleasure from time to time to thwart her."

"She needs to be thwarted with a well aimed bullet," Erica remarked. "But where was I? O, yes. We found boxes and boxes of jewelry, besides what she had in the safe in her bedroom. You know she always kept rotating it, in and out. Well . . . we found everything . . . everything except one piece. The best. Her diamond and sapphire necklace that she left to me."

"Was the other one there? The diamond and pearl?"

"Yes. It was in the house safe. Aunt Hester got that. But where do you suppose the thing can be? I'm positive Gran didn't have it out. She was always careful to have only one out at a time. But how could it disappear from a safe deposit box? And surely she wouldn't have disposed of it and not crossed it off the list of what she had."

Erica added, "Mr. Ellinger said we should notify the police at once. It was insured for $30,000. Perhaps the whole thing was just robbery for that."

"And did you tell the police?"

"I insisted on talking to you, first."

He nodded, gratified. "That was very wise, my dear. I have a rather peculiar story to tell you about that necklace. Lucianna went to your grandmother and asked to 'borrow' it to wear to a rather important dinner-dance, last winter."

"What colossal nerve!"

"Quite typical, I am sorry to say. She did not get it, of course."

"Did she make a fuss about being turned down?"

"O, my no. That's not Lucianna's way. She merely laughed in that loathsome fashion of hers and dropped the subject. But . . . two days later your grandmother missed the necklace. She had it out of the bank at the time. And Lucianna had gone on a visit to some friends in Cincinnati."

WORLD SERIES ON TODAY: CUBS VS. TIGERS!

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 2—There are indications this may be the richest world series ever played. . . . It depends, of course, on the competition stretching into seven games and a few breaks from the weather man. . . . The record for receipts was established in the 1940 series between Cincinnati and Detroit—$1,322,328. . . . The Tigers' stadium has the same capacity as in 1940, approximately 55,000, but Wrigley field accommodates about 10,000 more than does Crosley field in Cincinnati. . . . All reserved seats, both in Chicago and Detroit, have been sold for several days. . . . The Tigers' spectacular finish in St. Louis Sunday has encouraged some of their supporters to offer even money on the outcome of the first game of the series. . . . The return of Virgil Trucks, rated by Mickey Cochrane the best pitcher he has caught, has boosted Detroit morale. . . . Spike Briggs, son of Owner Walter O. Briggs, predicts that Trucks will be the surprise of the post-season play. . . . Both Steve O'Neill, manager of the Tigers, and Charley Grimm, boss of the Cubs, agree the series will last only six games. . . . They disagree on the winner, however. . . . Grimm's reliance on Hank Borowy as the starting pitcher hasn't depressed Detroit fans, altho he has defeated their club nine of the 12 times he has faced them. . . . They say Hal Newhouser, a maiden in world series competition, will outshine the former Fordham star. . . . Among the congratulatory telegrams received by the Tigers' management yesterday was one from Clark Griffith, whose Senators were still in the American league pennant race until Hank Greenberg's smash went roaming in the gloaming in St. Louis Sunday. . . . It read "Best of luck in the world series." . . . It was Griff's team that knocked the Tigers out of the 1944 series when Dutch Leonard held them to four hits in the final game of the season.

Mickey Cochrane | Virgil Trucks | Lew Fonseca | Leslie O'Connor

Placidity was restored to the Cub ranks today after Manager Charley Grimm personally arranged hotel accommodations for the wives who accompanied their husbands to Detroit. . . . The confusion resulted from tardy applications for reservations. . . . Jerry Moore, resident manager of the Fort Shelby, was appointed chairman of a committee to get space for Cub players in the city's overcrowded hotels. . . . He managed to find them shelter by assigning the group to three spots. . . . Then came the request for extra accommodations for the wives. . . . The only available place was on the steamer Greater Detroit, docked near the business section to relieve hotel congestion. . . . The players and their wives after inspecting the quarters refused to remain and they called upon Grimm for help. . . . Winning the National league pennant was trivial by comparison, but the Cub boss by 2 a. m. had the whole party quartered in comfortable beds. . . .

The White Sox had no representatives at the series, but that didn't stop speculation among the authors as to Harry Grabiner's successor as general manager. . . . The names most frequently mentioned were Leslie O'Connor, Bill Veeck, and Oscar Reichow. . . . Lew Fonseca, director of the American league movie, has 12 camera men on the job. . . . This year's film will be shown exclusively in army and navy hospitals for three months before it is released for general circulation. . . . The suspicion that baseball folk in American league cities know nothing about the personnel of teams in the National league is borne out this year by information sheets distributed to newspaper men. . . . The captain and first baseman of the Cubs, the National league's leading hitter, is spelled Kabarretta. . . .

The official scorers will be Edward Burns of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Harry Salsinger of the Detroit News, and Martin Haley of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. . . . Dick McCann, recently discharged from the navy, was busy accepting congratulations from fellow scriveners over his appointment as sports columnist for the Washington Times-Herald. . . . He succeeds Vincent Flaherty, who has transferred to the Los Angeles Examiner. . . . McCann was a member of the New York News staff before entering service. . . . Another world series veteran, Frank Graham, for many years columnist for the New York Sun and more recently sports editor of Look, is covering the event for a new employer, the New York Journal. . . . Al Lang, former mayor of St. Petersburg, Fla., and that city's greatest booster, claims to be the only fan who has attended every world series. . . . He expresses some disappointment that only 12 of the 16 major league teams will train in his beloved Florida next spring.

When the Cubs worked out this afternoon it marked Claude Passeau's first trip to Briggs stadium since he pitched that historic home run to Ted Williams of the Red Sox in the 1941 All-Star game. . . . Claude still insists Ted's smash was not a well hit ball and that radio and other accounts greatly exaggerated its trajectory. . . . This department isn't skilled in trajectories, but we'll always remember it as a helluva wallop. . . . At any rate, it won the game for the American league. . . . Lon Warneke, Stan Hack, and Phil Cavarretta played in Briggs stadium in the 1935 series, but they hardly recognized the premises. . . . Almost $1,000,000 has been spent in improvements in the last 10 years. . . . The gas shortage will work no special hardship on world series fans. . . . The park is within walking distance of downtown hotels. . . . The Western Union sent Dave Rush of Chicago, press representative, to Detroit to handle the heavy file.

Ten Years Ago Today—The Detroit Tigers evened the world series by defeating the Cubs, 8 to 3, in the second game. . . . Tommy Bridges held the north siders to six hits. . . . Thirty-nine Notre Dame football players left for Pittsburgh for the Carnegie Tech game.

CHICAGO CLUB GETS RANGE IN BATTING DRILL

Short Fences Make Inviting Targets

Tigers by a Shade!

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP)—Official final world series betting odds: If you like the Tigers, you lay $13 to get $10 back; if you like the Cubs, you put up $10 and win $11.

For the first game the Tigers are favorites, too, strictly on what Hal Newhouser has in his left arm. You lay $7 to $5 if you like Detroit; take $6 to $5 if you like the Cubs.

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2—Charley Grimm and his champion Cubs surveyed Briggs stadium, lair of the Tigers, this afternoon and adjudged it suitable for the hitting styles of the several gents who gave the Cubs both the individual and team hitting championships of the National league.

The short right field is looked upon as duck soup for Phil Cavarretta, who topped both leagues with a .355 batting average; Bill Nicholson, league homer and runs batted in champion of 1943 and 1944, who is doped for a miraculous revival in the world series, and Stan Hack, such times as he is able to pull the ball toward right field, as he does on his long shots. It is true, tho, that much of Stan's .322 batting average was compiled on sharp liners to left and left center.

Short Target in Right Field

In Wrigley field, where the Cubs won half their 98 victories, the right field wall is 354 feet at the foul line. In Briggs stadium the distance is 325 feet to the lower deck and only 315 feet to the protruding second deck. The screen, which formerly extended from the ground to the second deck, has been removed but there still is a barrier which runs up seven feet from the ground.

The left field foul line is 340 feet in Briggs stadium, 17 feet shorter than in Wrigley field and with a protective screen several feet lower than the vine covered bleacher wall in the Chicago park.

Mickey Livingston, who will catch when the Tigers employ a left handed pitcher, likes a pleasing left field vista and Paul Gillespie, who'll catch when a right handed Tiger is working, can slam them to right. Roy Hughes, tho a right handed hitter, knocks to all fields, but his long ones are to left.

The infield in Briggs stadium is in excellent shape, far, far from the weed patch in St. Louis where all the western games in the last three world series have been played. The outfield, too, is in top condition.

In the practice today both Nicholson and Cavarretta batted balls into the depth of the bleachers several times and all the lads rejoiced over the prospects of a much better hitting background than they enjoy on their home premises.

Trainer Andy Lotshaw reported all his charges in excellent physical shape and he also was exuberant over their mental state after psychoanalyzing each regular privately.

WOLVERINES FEAR CONNERS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 2 [Special]—Defensive tactics aimed at stopping Northwestern's Dick Conners and the Wildcats' ground attack will occupy Michigan football players this week.

Heavy rains which have reduced the Wolverines' practice fields to a soggy condition are hindering Coach Fritz Crisler's plans, but he will continue to send his charges thru contact work every day as well as sending his varsity against a reserve team drilled in Northwestern plays.

Stu Wilkins, 183 pound guard from Canton, O., again will start against Northwestern Saturday in place of John Lintol, the mainstay of the Wolverine line sidelined since the Indiana game with an injured knee, Crisler said today.

Art Renner, veteran Wolverine end, recently discharged from the marine corps, also is expected to start against the Wildcats.

WILDCAT STARS OF 50 YEARS AGO TO ATTEND GAME

When the Northwestern university football team takes the field Saturday for its game with Michigan in Dyche stadium it will be greeted by the cheers of 22 letter men of 50 years ago. These veterans will return to the campus for a golden anniversary reunion sponsored jointly by the N Men's club and the athletic department.

Included among them will be four who played in the first Northwestern-Michigan game in 1892, which the Wildcats won, 10 to 8. They are Alvin H. Culver of Wilmette, who scored the winning touchdown; Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of the university; James F. Oates, a member of the university's board of trustees, and Jared Young of New York.

The old timers will be feted at a dinner Friday evening in the North Shore hotel. They will be guests of honor at the regular N Men's luncheon at the stadium before the game and will receive special N buttons at a ceremony between halves.

Pass defense was emphasized in yesterday's practice as Coach Lynn Waldorf sought to bolster the department which has been most vulnerable in the first two games. Opponents thus far have completed 19 out of 34 passes for 248 yards.

Illinois-Indiana Battle Tops Big 9 Football Card Saturday

BY WILFRID SMITH

The Western conference football campaign will be in full swing Saturday with a schedule of four games in which five teams are making first appearances. Indiana university, which already has beaten Michigan and tied Northwestern in the only previous Big Nine games, shares top billing. The Hooslers meet Illinois in Champaign.

The other front page game pairs Michigan and Northwestern in Dyche stadium. The Wolverines, trounced by Indiana, 13 to 7, can retrieve prestige by defeating Northwestern's youthful squad since the Wildcats played a 7 to 7 tie with the Hooslers last week. Other conference games are Purdue at Wisconsin and Iowa at Ohio State. Minnesota, which does not start conference competition for two more weeks, travels to Nebraska where the Gophers should have no difficulty winning their second game of the embryonic season.

Halted Michigan's Sweeping Runs

Before the start of the season, Illinois possibly was the choice of most fans to whip Indiana. Since then, the Hoosiers have produced a dependable line and, in particular, have a fine pair of ends in Bob Ravensberg and Ted Kluszewski. These men stopped Michigan's sweeping end runs and naturally figure to have the same degree of success against the Illini attack. Moreover, Illinois does not have a power attack between the tackles and has lost two more regulars by injury in the Notre Dame contest.

George Bujan, groomed as replacement for Jerry Cies at full back, suffered a broken hand and Eddie Bray a right knee injury. Previously Ed McGovern, right half back, was eliminated because of an appendectomy. Thus Illinois' attack has been seriously weakened altho its rugged line may be expected to check Indiana's ground play.

Buckeye Personnel Superior

Ohio State will have advantage of superior personnel in its game with Iowa. The Buckeye squad grades better and has more capable replacements. In Paul Sarringhaus Ohio State has a back who probably will be as important this season as Les Horvath was last.

The outcome of the Purdue-Wisconsin battle will furnish a more accurate idea of these rivals' strength than their comparative scores against Marquette. While the Boilermakers took a first half lead of 14 to 0 over Marquette, the Hilltoppers finished strongly and were beaten only 14 to 13. Wisconsin smothered Marquette's attack and with an efficient forward pass and ground assault won last Saturday's game 40 to 13.

Purdue Boasts Rugged Line

Jerry Thompson and Ben Bendrick are Wisconsin's fleetest backs. Opposing them will be a rugged Purdue line which has few reserves. Ned Maloney and Bob Heck, marine combat veterans, have won the starting assignments at ends. Pat O'Brien, who rightly is named one of the best tackles in the conference; Tom Hughes, right tackle; Ken Glaesner and Bill Horvath, guards, and Joe Kodba, center, complete the line.

If Dave Shaw, speedy right half back, has recovered from injury received in the Marquette game, he will be ready to handle the Boilermakers' punting. This also will return Ed Cody to full back where he is supported by George Mihal. Bill Canfield, shifted to left half this year from quarter back, and Freshman Bob De Moss, Purdue's forward passing field general, complete the back field.

MAJORS PLAN REVIVAL OF 10 MINOR LEAGUES

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP)—Heads of 10 major league farm systems met in the lull before the world series today and pledged cooperation in restoration of 10 minor leagues next year.

Art Ehlers, minor league promotional director, said the meeting should assure smoother relations between major league interests in the minors. It was indicated that a minimum of 20 minor leagues will operate in the first peace time season. Last season only 12 of 41 prewar circuits were active.

List Leagues Returning

Ehlers said leagues expected to return to competition next year include the Texas league, class A; Three-Eye, South Atlantic, and Southeastern, class B; the Canadian-American, Pioneer, and Western International, class C, and the Georgia-Florida, Florida State, and Eastern Shore, class D.

Only major league clubs not represented at the session were the Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox, Washington Senators, New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds, and Philadelphia Athletics.

First Meeting of Kind

Present at the session were Joe Mathes of the St. Louis Cardinals, Billy Dewitt of the St. Louis Browns, Branch Rickey Jr. of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Bob Rice of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Jack Sheehan of the Chicago Cubs, George Weiss of the New York Yankees, Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves, George Toporcer of the Boston Red Sox, Joe Reardon of the Philadelphia Phils, and H. B. [Buzz] Wetzel of the Cleveland Indians.

"This was the first meeting of its kind," Ehlers declared. "In the past every major league club distrusted all others in the farm system business. Now everybody realizes that cooperation is needed to build up the main player source of the majors, especially since athletes returning from the war will need special consideration.

"When minor leagues are revived next year, the major league farm heads will keep in close touch with each other to see where they can help out."

WAR DATE TAKES LADIES HANDICAP AT BELMONT PARK

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—War Date won the 75th Ladies handicap at Belmont Park today, placing her owner, Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, ahead of Film Magnate Louis B. Mayer as leading money winner so far this season.

Giving weight to six other rivals, the brown 3 year old daughter of War Admiral scored by half a length to add $11,800 to the $444,855 previously accounted for by Mrs. Graham's Maine Chance farm. Mayer's last reported total was $450,605.

A belated stretch rush brought William Dupont Jr.'s Surosa in second and H. P. Headley's Letmenow was third.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2—The world series, the baseball magnates' annual glamor show and, incidentally, an affair in which financial loot falls to some of the ball players, will get under way tomorrow afternoon. From what is definitely known about the principals anything might happen before one or the other nails down the title with the required fourth victory.

The contestants are Detroit's Tigers, American league champions after a tough struggle, and Chicago's Cubs, who emerged as National league victors after an equally strenuous summer.

Both were long term residents of first place, the Cubs since July 8 and the Tigers since June 11, but neither could dominate its own league. Largely because of this there is no reason to believe either can strongly overshadow the other.

It Rains on the Tigers

Dark clouds were swirling overhead today and there was some rainfall, especially when the Tigers were taking a last preliminary workout. But the weather developments failed to cause either Charley Grimm, the Cub boss, or Steve O'Neill of the Tigers, to give any thought to possible alterations of pitching plans for the opener.

It still is the 25 game winning Hal [Lefty] Newhouser for the home folks and Hank Borowy, the American league refugee, for the Cubs. Not a little of the backing built up behind the Cubs is due to the influence wielded over the Tigers by Borowy when he was with the Yankees.

Grimm's pitching program beyond tomorrow is questionable. O'Neill claims he has a fair idea of how he is going to proceed regardless of what happens to Newhouser before the 54,000 spectators. Grimm is going to wait a while before naming his second game nominee. O'Neill says it will be either Virgil Trucks, recently discharged from the navy, or Frank [Stubby] Overmire, who is left handed and frequently pretty tough.

Webb at Short for Tigers

Along with other last minute developments the managers let it be known they would go into the series with the lineups in use at the end of the season. Skeeter Webb, former White Sox, who supplanted Joe Hoover at short during the last 10 days of the Tigers' stagger toward the flag, will remain there. In the same spot for the Cubs will be Roy Hughes.

Hughes, who recently relieved Len Merullo at short and then moved to second when Don Johnson was hurt, will be back at short because there is no longer need of his utility services at the other side

NOBODY KNOWS, HOW SERIES FOES WILL CUT PURSE

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP)—The one big world series secret left is how the Tigers and Cubs voted to cut up the cash.

Both have held their meetings already, but all hands have been instructed not to mention how the purse was divided. The Tigers tell you the announcement must come from the commissioner's office.

OSSIE BLUEGE SLATED TO KEEP SENATORS' POST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—One thing certain about Washington's Senators next year is that Ossie Bluege again will manage the club.

Bluege and Owner Clark Griffith will not come to terms on a 1946 contract until the Detroit-Chicago world series is over. That is in keeping with an old Griffith custom.

HUNTERS HAVING A PRE-WAR YEAR IN NORTHWEST

Sportsmen Fill Dakotas for Pheasant Season

BY BOB BECKER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 2—These are boom days out here in the Northwest with thousands of hunters firing their shotguns for ducks and pheasants. The increase in hunters is so large that it looks like the good old pre-war years.

Hunters are here from many states. Yesterday we saw a group of sportsmen in 10 gallon hats and riding boots from Texas and Oklahoma. Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky and even the state of Washington are represented here in the biggest assembly of shooters that this picturesque capital of North Dakota has seen in many a season.

Among the visitors is Nash Buckingham, nationally known bird dog judge and author, who heads a party of hunters from Tennessee. English setters, labradors, spaniels, short haired pointers and other hunting dogs are a big factor in this first post-war hunting season and they parade in and out of the hotel with their owners to put more hunting atmosphere to the scene.

After taking a little tune up shoot on the ducks yesterday our party hit for the pheasant country this morning. Our destination was Flasher, southwest of Bismarck where both ringnecks and sharp tailed grouse are found. We found it difficult to keep up any sort of a driving pace thru the rolling hills because of the number of pheasants seen along the highway. The temptation was to stop and begin the hunting before getting to Flasher. Our party, made up of Lyman Barr, Highland Park, Ill.; Dr. George F. Munns, Winnetka, and Peter Offerdahl of Bismarck, found birds in coulees in weeds and in the cornfields near Flasher. Farmers were delighted to have us shoot and one hospitable landowner stopped us on the road to ask us to hunt in his fields.

Joyce, Ray to Head Stadium Show Oct. 19

Willie Joyce, Gary lightweight, who stopped Danny Bartfield in Madison Square Garden last month, and Elmer Ray, Hastings, Fla., heavyweight, who knocked out Henry Cooper in St. Paul on Sept. 14 for his 31st straight victory, yesterday were signed to appear in two bouts of 10 rounds featuring the first indoor show of the season in Chicago Stadium Oct. 19. Joyce has been matched with Joey Barnum of Los Angeles and Ray with Hubert Hood, former Golden Gloves and Catholic Youth organization champion.

An amateur boxing show will be held tonight in the West Side Boxing club, 10 S. California av., and a professional wrestling program in Rainbo Fronton, 4836 N. Clark st. Johnny Farrell, Elgin light heavyweight, will meet Fred Beasley of the Savoy Athletic club in a five round headliner in the West Side club. An additional five round event will bring together Mike De Rosa, Elgin welterweight, and Luther Palmer, also of the Savoy. Cyclone Anaya and Fritz Von Schacht will be principals in the mat windup in the Fronton. In other matches Pete Bartu will face Tex Hager and Zack Malkov will encounter Billy Dittmor. An Australian tag team match will pit Benny Trudel and Jack Zaravich against Tarzan Zimba and Sid Hayes.

Four $2,500 Races Carded at Hawthorne

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Three sprints of six furlongs and a mile and one-sixteenth grind, each for a purse of $2,500, feature today's program at Hawthorne and will bring out some good older horses.

Ten 3-year-olds have been named for the fourth race at six furlongs, including the Straus and Austin entry of Corina Lark and So Proudly, and the top weighted Some Bid, Major Jimmy, and Lucky Colonel, each carrying 111 pounds. The fifth and sixth races also are sprints for older thorobreds, 10 going in the fifth, including Sergeant Bill, Hit It, and Cherry Wine, while the sixth lists nine topped by Shady Brook farm's Merrymarch, a candidate for the $10,000 added Hawthorne sprint handicap Saturday. Others entered are Alar, Valdina Date, Three Clovers, and Don Devito.

Late Thread Seeks No. 3

The distance event, to be run as the seventh race, has attracted Black Pepper, Jamerica, Bolo's Choice, and Late Thread, a double winner at the current meeting.

After several days of rain which played havoc with attendance, yesterday's more pleasant conditions brought out a crowd estimated at 10,000.

Steve Brooks, after scoring a double with B. Fogelson's Lucky Barney in the second and Leo Caillouette's Watch Andy in the third, brought in Dixiana's Chapel Bells first in the $2,500 Veterans of Foreign Wars purse, the featured sixth race, scoring handily over J. C. Stone's Stonette in an eight horse field. Schlosser and Fox's Supreme Way was third. The winner paid $5.

Double Pays Only $36.80

Well backed entrants accounted for the double duck, which paid $36.80. Mrs. N. E. Klapproth's Mighty Blow, ridden by Aullie Carr, won the first race at $6.60 and Ben Fogelson's Lucky Barney took the second and paid $9.60.

The day's mutuel handle was $791,894.

EXPECT NORMAL NYLON HOSIERY SUPPLY IN YEAR

Temporary Retention of Credit Curbs Asked

A group of department store experts and a banker last night fired back answers to questions on merchandising problems ranging from when will nylon hosiery supplies meet demands to when should consumer credit controls be abolished. The occasion was an open forum held in the Merchandise Mart's Merchants and Manufacturers club and sponsored by C. L. Quaintance & Co., an apparel lines representative.

About one in every 10 consumers will be able to purchase nylon hosiery by Christmas, said E. M. Brock, vice president and general merchandising manager of Lords, Evanston department store. Nylon inventories will not reach normal levels for at least a year, he asserted.

Urges Retention of Credit Curb

J. C. Spiess, president of Joseph Spiess company, Elgin, Ill., department store operator, said nylon hose have become predominant in the market and that silk hose will be back on the market in only "limited" volume. He said rayon hosiery would become a "dead duck" on the market.

R. L. Redheffer, president of Merchandise National bank, said regulation W, the consumer credit control, should continue until production begins to meet demand.

William S. Street, vice president and general manager of Marshall Field & Co., said retailers must induce manufacturers to take "another look" as their products' qualities, in discussing future standards as compared to those of war time. Customers today are mor interested in quality than in price, he asserted.

Expects No Price Decrease

Spiess said he expected no drastic decrease in prices of consumer goods for "some time," but rather an increase in some lines in which production would not balance demand for at least a year.

A. L. Lincoln, president of S. S. Sencenbaugh company, Aurora, Ill., department store operator, demanded an immediate end of the control on apparel styling. Consumers wish "fuller" garments, he asserted, adding that women are "tired" of short skirts.

GAIN IN QUALITY LIFTS AVERAGE PRICE OF HOGS

The improved quality of hog receipts at the Chicago stock yards yesterday raised the average price 5 cents to $14.65 per 100 pounds, highest since July 3 and within 5 cents of the peak since October, 1943, when price ceilings were imposed. A larger percentage of supplies consisted of stock that sold at the $14.75 top and fewer had to go at the $14 ceiling for sows and stags.

Price trends were mixed in other live stock. Many classes of cattle sold weak to lower despite a decline in volume to 7,300 head, fewest on a Tuesday in seven weeks. Steers and heifers were steady to 25 cents lower.

Receipts of 8,000 sheep and lambs were the largest since April for a Tuesday. However, demand was broad at steady to strong prices for old sheep and lambs sold strong to 25 cents higher.

C. & N. W. PREFERRED

Chicago and North Western railway preferred stock at a recent quotation yields more than 7 per cent from the $5 dividend. How is the stock regarded?—R. A.

The high yield reflects market opinion that the stock, issued in the 1944 reorganization, is unseasoned because the earning power on the new capitalization under peace time conditions is not clearly defined. War time profit has been large, equal last year to $17.61 a share on the 914,526 preferred shares before deducting sinking fund and debt retirement requirements. This is exclusive of substantial claims on the earnings of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha.

After sinking funds and other required allocations of net income, the remainder last year was equal to $16.56 a preferred share. However, in 1939 and 1940, when wage rates were lower than now, the parent company's earnings as adjusted to the reorganization plan, would have left no income for dividends. Postwar traffic, at least for some time, presumably will be larger than prewar.

Moreover, North Western, since the reorganization date, June 1, 1944, has cut its fixed interest and contingent charges thru debt reduction and refinancing. Such charges in the first seven months of 1945 were $851,000 less than in the 1944 period as adjusted.

The $5 preferred dividend is cumulative only to the extent earned after required appropriations. The stock is entitled to participate with the common up to $1 a share in any further dividends declared for any year after the common has received $5 a share for such period, and it is convertible into common, share for share. One common dividend has been paid, $5 at the end of 1944.

House Passes Bill on Sale of Surplus Ships

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—The house by a voice vote today passed and sent to the senate legislation providing a method for disposing of an estimated 17 billion dollars worth of surplus merchant ships built for the war.

Emory S. Land, maritime commission chairman, told the merchant marine committee the fleet consisted of 2,134 vessels ranging from 2,000 tons up. This does not include 2,700 Liberty ships which would be unmarketable because of high operating costs.

Setting minimum and maximum sales prices on merchant ships, the legislation calls for retention of a fleet that would be:

1. Capable of carrying all domestic water borne commerce and a "substantial portion" of the nation's foreign commerce.

Adequate as Auxiliary

2. Adequate to serve as an auxiliary to the army and the navy in event of war.

3. Owned and operated by United States citizens.

4. Made up of the "best equipped, safest and most suitable types of vessels."

5. Supplemented by American owned facilities for repairs, marine insurance and other services.

Price restrictions would provide that a vessel could not be sold for more than 80 per cent or less than 55 per cent of its pre-war domestic cost to a subsidized operator, or less than 50 per cent to an operator not subsidized, minus depreciation deductions. These would bring the bottom price to not less than 40 per cent for subsidized operators and 35 per cent for nonsubsidized.

Must Consult Secretaries

The measure provides that the secretaries of war, navy, and state must be consulted before sales are made to noncitizens.

Persons not citizens may purchase ships only on these conditions:

1. The commission must find that the applicant has the financial ability to pay and the purchase would "not be inconsistent with any policy of the United States in respect of relations with other countries."

2. The vessel is not necessary for the American merchant marine.

3. It is not necessary to the defense of the United States.

4. The ship has been available for sale to citizens of the United States for a reasonable time, and no responsible offer of purchase or charter has been made by a citizen.

A. & P. OFFICIALS 'LACK POWER' TO AGREE ON PRICES

Danville, Ill., Oct. 2 (AP)—No executive of the company had any authority to agree with any group on food prices, W. A. Carlton, Jacksonville, Fla., southern division sales director, asserted today as a defense witness at the trial of the anti-trust suit against the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 28 officers and subsidiaries.

The government charged that an A. & P. sales manager or a Miami, Fla., superintendent of stores attended meetings of the Miami Retail Trade association at which food prices allegedly were agreed upon.

Carlton said some of the Miami association's price lists had "found their way" to his desk, but he did nothing to stop their arrival because they were not addressed to him. He said A. & P. prices were not changed after receipt of the lists.

FOREIGN ASSETS IN GOLD, DOLLARS NEAR 30 BILLION

Gold and dollar assets of foreign countries are approaching the 30 billion dollar mark, more than 50 per cent larger than their holdings when the war began, the Institute of Life Insurance said yesterday. Latin American and neutral nations have made the largest gains.

Basing its report on a compilation obtained from government sources, the institute said about 75 per cent of the holdings at the end of 1945 would represent liquid assets readily usable for purchase of goods and equipment—a large portion of which normally are bought in the United States. More than half would be in gold and some 6½ billions in dollar balances. American currency held abroad, and short term assets. Long term assets were estimated in excess of 6 billions.

Nature of Increases Shown

Gold held abroad and under earmark in the United States plus official dollar balances approximated 17½ billions at the end of 1944, against 10.1 billions at the end of 1940, and are expected to reach 19.7 billions at the end of this year. Added to United States currency held abroad and other short and long term assets, the over-all monetary reserves approximated 26.7 billions at the end of 1944, against 18.7 billions in 1940, and will amount to about 29.1 billions at the end of 1945.

"Official secrecy" bars a breakdown of foreign liquid assets as to "who owns what," asserted the institute, but the federal reserve board bulletin's statistics on gold reserves of central banks and governments gave some clews.

Argentine Gold is Trebled

"For example, at the end of 1940, Brizil had only 51 millions in gold reserves," said the report. "In May of this year the total had risen to 342 millions. Mexico's gold reserves rose from 47 millions in 1940 to 231 millions in June of this year, and Türkey's from 88 to 225 millions.

"Argentina, which had 353 millions in gold at the end of 1940, currently holds well over 1 billion dollars."

It is unlikely that all these funds will be spent fer purchases abroad, but foreign liquid assets are regarded by United States officials as potential claims on this country's output, said the report. Thus, authorities believe foreign funds must be given appropriate consideration in connection with problems of American reconversion and in relation to the current inflationary potentials in the American economy.

WASHER FIRMS TO APPEAL OPA PRICE CEILINGS

Assert 15 Pct. Hike Is Essential

Washer and ironer producers will appeal to the office of price administration for reconsideration of the price ceilings announced for the industry Monday, a spokesman for the Washer and Ironer Manufacturers' association said yesterday. OPA said manufacturers would be allowed a 7.7 per cent increase over 1942 ceilings, but the industry was firm in its assertion that an interim increase of at least 15 per cent would be necessary and that 20 per cent or more is needed for it to break even.

Industry executives contended that OPA has not taken into consideration all the necessary cost factors in computing the increase. Manufacturers were told several weeks ago that OPA intended to set the increase at 7.7 per cent. They could submit further evidence toward necessity for a higher price in the interval before formal announcement of the percentage.

Assail Burocratic Rule

Assailing the burocratic rule of the agency, they said submission of evidence was entirely in vain as apparently OPA intended to insist on the 7.7 figure no matter what proof was offered of its inadequacy.

OPA also announced Monday that the Hurley Machine division of Electric Household Utilities corporation, Chicago, would not be allowed the 7.7 per cent increase because the division had reduced its output of low cost models from pre-war levels.

Edward N. Hurley, chairman, said yesterday he was awaiting a copy of the announcement, not yet received despite the fact that the new ceilings go into effect tomorrow. Other manufacturers observed also that no copies of the order were available, leaving them without details as to proper procedure.

Retail at Pre-War Prices

Hurley charged that the OPA's action in denying the Hurley division a necessary increase was "another example of burocracy at its worst."

Retail ceiling prices on new washers and ironers will range from $29.95 to $199.95, which will be the same as pre-war prices, OPA said. The increase to manufacturers must be absorbed by a slimmer profit margin to retailers. The dollars and cents prices fixed for dealers in Hurley division machines will be the manufacturer's suggested retail prices for the first two weeks of October, 1941. Unless Hurley is granted an increase, after changing the proportion of low priced washers and ironers it makes, his dealers apparently will not be required to narrow their profit margin.

OPA POLICIES ASSAILED

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 2 [Special]—Office of price administration policies regarding cost absorption are holding back production and distribution to the point that serious unemployment may result, the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations charged today. Joseph T. Meek, executive secretary, told merchants and association leaders that there are six "misconceptions underlying present OPA pricing policies which the unions, the taxpayers, and the consumers ought to know about."

"To say that the retailer is opposed to price control is unfair," Meek continued. "No one has a greater stake in price control than the inventory laden retailer. But he is close enough to the scene to see what is going on—or is not going on—in the manufacture of goods because of cost absorption theories."

Meek said the first misconception is the belief that price stabilization means an unchanging price level. Increases to cove rhigher costs need not mean runaway prices.

The major fallacy is that prices can be held stable while wage rates are permitted to rise. Meek said if wages are increased without relationship to greater productivity there will be instant and compelling pressure for higher prices.

Price Control No Production Bar: Bowles

Price Administrator Bowles told the Illinois Manufacturers' association last night that "price control will not be permitted to stand in the way of production in the future."

Speaking at a dinner in the Palmer House, Bowles maintained that price control had not blocked production in the past. The enormous increase in farm and industrial production during the second world war, compared with the first war during which there were few price controls, proved that the charge that price rule impedes production is "nonsense," he said.

"The quicker we can increase production, the quicker we can get rid of our controls," he said. "With plenty of goods in the stores, supply and demand will do a better job of setting prices than we burocrats can ever do."

Specific Assurances Lacking

Bowles did not say, however, what measures would be taken to keep price control out of the way of production. He quoted some authorities as saying that "price control has helped to increase production because it has enabled business managers to know their costs in advance. One man's price is another man's cost. Stable prices have meant stable, predictable business costs."

Bowles called for all possible production as an answer to all pricing problems. Prices will be adjusted whenever necessary to enable production to move ahead, he said.

He said OPA is following a four point program: [1] Keeping a firm hand on the cost of living, which decreased .02 per cent in the bureau of labor statistics index between July 15 and Aug. 15; [2] reconversion pricing; [3] removal of price controls on luxury items and on those selling below ceiling or on which production is large enough, and [4] keeping the pricing program flexible.

OPA's Size Hinders Work

Altho many changes have been made in pricing, "they have not been as fast as we would like to see them," Bowles said. The large size of the OPA, with 92 departments, has made it impossible to avoid some slowness in making changes, he said.

He asserted that difficulties of reconversion pricing have been overemphasized. One-third of all manufacturers beginning peace time production have not even sought new OPA ceilings, but have gone ahead using 1942 prices. Only ° per cent of the total volume of industry needs new prices for reconversion, he added.

Bowles said after his speech that the audience was too large for him to answer questions from the floor. He declared that those who do not ask that price control be removed entirely but wish a 10 or 15 per cent increase in their prices do not realize that if they received an increase, everyone would want an equal one. The result would be "10 or 15 per cent inflation."

KITCHEN CABINET LINE TO BE MADE BY G. M. DIVISION

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation soon will bring out a complete line of kitchen cabinet equipment, E. R. Godfrey, general manager, said today. He asserted all distributors will have a sample supply by the end of the year with the program getting into full swing after Jan. 1.

The new equipment will include base, wall, and utility cabinets and unit sinks of various sizes, constructed of steel with white baked enamel finish. The sale of kitchen cabinet equipment marks the division's second post-war expansion, coming closely after announcement of home freezer production.

Bus Holdings Shift; Many in Broker Names

With the uncertainty over the future of the Chicago Motor Coach company in the new transit system, several important shifts have been made in stock ownership in the company, investigation disclosed yesterday. More than half of the company's stock is held in the names of brokers on behalf of others.

The company has been operating on a temporary franchise basis for several years. How it will fit into the new transit setup is uncertain. However, it is expected that the company's equipment ultimately will be taken over by the Chicago metropolitan transit authority. The price at which the bus property would be acquired is indefinite. Estimates have ranged from 6 million to 10 million dollars.

Herts Remains on Board

John Hertz, former Chicago capitalist and now a partner of Lehman Brothers of New York, has not had a direct ownership interest in the coach company since 1943. At that time he liquidated his direct stockholdings in Omnibus corporation, holding company which owns Chicago Motor Coach, altho he has continued to serve as a director of the parent concern.

Securities and exchange commission reports disclosed that John Hertz Jr., who was the contingent beneficiary of a trust owning 10,000 Omnibus shares in 1943, has reduced this ownership interest to 500 shares as of last April.

John A. Ritchie, chairman of the board of Omnibus, who held 14,400 shares in September, 1943, had cut this investment to 1,000 shares by last April.

Leonard S. Florshein of Chicago made a similar reduction in his Omnibus holdings. He owned 1,000 shares last April compared with 10,000 in September, 1943. Florsheim remains a director.

Owners of Half Unknown

Benjamin Weintraub, president of Omnibus, said that 52 per cent of the 647,000 shares of the common stock is listed in the names of 150 brokerage firms in the company's records. Who the actual owners are is unknown to the company, he said. The average holding of other stockholders of record is slightly less than 100 shares, Weintraub said. There are also 62,000 shares of preferred stock outstanding of which the average holding is about 40 shares.

The Chicago bus company operates on routes extending over 150 miles of Chicago streets. Most of the routes are thru boulevards controled by the park district. It is the park district that controls the company's temporary franchise. The company owns 550 coaches and carries about 6 per cent of the city transit passengers.

STRONG BUYING BOOSTS WHEAT, RYE TO PEAKS

New Crop Futures Gain 1 to 3 Cents

Public buying came into the market yesterday to boost all wheat futures to new peaks. July and September options led. These new crop months closed at the top with gains of 2¾ to 2⅞ cents a bushel. Near-by futures finished up ⅝ to 1⅛ cents.

December was the only delivery of rye that failed to reach a new high as prices rose ¼ to 1⅜ cents. Oats advanced ⅛ to ¾, and barley 1⅜ to 1¾. Corn lost ⅛ to ⅜.

Trading in new crop wheat futures was the largest of the season. In addition to much outright buying, spreads with the near-by months were closed, resulting in relatively small advances for them.

Cash Wheat Back at Ceiling

Inflation psychology and strength in securities again influenced grain markets. Reports that the Commodity Credit corporation contemplated advancing its buying price for cash wheat in the northwest were not confirmed.

Cash wheat prices returned to ceilings at leading markets on the recent upturn in futures. All offerings of No. 1 dark northern spring wheat at Minneapolis testing 13½ per cent or more protein were quoted at the permissable maximum, as was high protein wheat at Kansas City.

Commission houses with eastern interests were buyers of rye futures, but outside interest was not as large as recently after an advance of more than 16 cents a bushel in the last six weeks.

Corn Estimate Due Tomorrow

Weather conditions in the corn belt were much more favorable and demand for futures lagged as December reached $1.17½, within 1 cent of the ceiling. A private estimate on the corn crop will be issued early tomorrow.

Announcement that a senate subcommittee would investigate the effect of the Canadian export tax on the United States oats market as well as the 5 cent a bushel premium permitted for a delivery of extra heavy oats on future contracts on the Chicago Board of Trade had some effect on the market. Profit taking occurred, but the finish was near the top on renewed buying late in the session. Barley was higher on buying traced to reports of a big demand for the cash grain.

OFFER FINANCING FOR INDIVIDUALS BUYING PLANES

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 2 (AP)—An aircraft financing plan designed to put the private ownership of airplanes within the reach of the salaried individual was announced today by the Bank of Jamestown.

C. George Niebank, president, said the plan provides that a prospective owner may buy a plane with a cash down payment equal to one-third of the purchase price.

Niebank said interest rates "compared favorably" with those charged in automobile financing.

Ship Builder Makes Diesel Locomotives

BY ANTHONY WIRRY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pascagoula, Miss., Oct. 2—The Ingalls Shipbuilding corporation, producer of seagoing ships and structural steel, is entering the diesel electric locomotive field to diversify its post-war operations.

Ingalls is one of more than 50 companies to be visited by newspapermen this month in a country-wide survey of the reconversion progress of American industry. The tour, by air, is sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Monro B. Lanier, president of Ingalls, said today the first diesel will be put into trial operation by the Southern railway in November. It will be the first made in the south.

Includes Five Regular Models

The diesel line will include five regular models and also custom built locomotives to meet particular requirements and operating conditions. The standard models include one of 3,000 horsepower, 69 feet long with top speed of 120 miles an hour, adaptable to either passenger or frate hauling; one of 2,000 horsepower for either passenger or frate; switching and hauling locomotives of either 1,500 or 1,000 horsepower, and a switcher of 1,000 horsepower.

They will be of all-welded construction. The standard units can be used in multiple to provide extra power when needed.

Present plans call for the production of 10 locomotives a month at the company's shipyards here.

Lanier said it would be comparatively easy to adapt present facilities and labor skills to diesel production, and expects it to comprise 15 to 25 per cent of operations in three to five years.

Uses Shipbuilding Skills

"The manufacture of the diesel electric locomotive can be carried on with the same crafts and approximately the same equipment as the building of ships," he said. "The program will provide jobs for 3,400 on a basis of 120 all-welded units a year, requiring every craft used in shipbuilding. We will require 170 shipfitters, 290 welders, 320 pipefitters, 300 electricians, 120 burners, 285 machinists, and 70 chippers."

Answering a question on competition from other diesel builders like the Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation at La Grange, Ill., Lanier said:

"The field is very much under supplied, and we will be the only diesel manufacturer in the south. It is estimated on reliable authority 3,700 diesel locomotives, 1,700 for domestic and 2,000 for foreign use, will be required each year for the next 15 years. The present capacity of the industry is only 1,500 a year."

The company will continue to produce its full line of seagoing ships. The Brazilian government recently ordered 14 streamlined 12,000 ton cargo and passenger ships.

STOCKS UNEVEN AFTER SETTING 8 YEAR PEAKS

Strikes Cause Late Steel, Auto Sales

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—Selling of steels and motors in the final few minutes forced down the stock market today after the averages earlier had set new peaks for more than eight years. The close was irregular.

Belated liquidation was attributed mainly to the curtailment of metal production by coal strikes and the halting of automotive output by labor disputes. Accounts were trimmed elsewhere on the belief a sizable technical correction was overdue. Threatened breakup of the foreign ministers' conference in London also was a restraining influence.

Prominent gainers were Life Savers, ahead 4½ on a splitup proposal; Eastern Air Lines, up 3⅜; American Airlines, up 3¼; Schenley, up 3⅜; Distillers corporation, up 2, and National Distillers, up 1⅝. Brighter profit expectations aided liquors and aviations.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS

Prices closed higher in slightly reduced turnover of 53,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of 130 issues traded, 65 advanced against 31 declines. Among most active issues were Chicago corporation and Admiral, each up ¼, and Commonwealth Edison, up ⅛.

RAIL BONDS RISE

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—Selected rails and utilities advanced in the bond market today, surviving a late flurry of selling that wiped out many advances and left some early gainers at lower levels. Industrials finished with only fractional changes. Sales of $5,790,000 compared with yesterday's $5,490,000.

LOUISVILLE

AS the oldest farm implement manufacturer in the United States, we believe we are facing at the present time the greatest opportunity we have ever had.

Prior to the war we concentrated our efforts in the South doing an annual business of from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 through our ten branches. We were employing at that time approximately 500 people.

We are now in the process of spending $1,500,000 on complete modernization of our machinery, machine tools and the enlargement of several of our buildings.

Our present plan calls for an increase of 250 employees and by this time next year we expect to be employing 1,000 people.

At the first of the year we plan to introduce a small tractor to our present large tractor line and when we are able to get into full production we expect to triple our tractor output.

We now have approximately 120 dealers with 200 additional dealer applicants in the South. We are invading the Middlewest market through the steadily increasing number of Montgomery Ward farm stores.

Our estimated volume for 1946 is $7,000,000.

We have greater confidence in the era to come than we have had in any of those we have passed through since our beginning in 1820.
